THE METROPOLITAN county scheme seems to be losing ground every day, and it is well. A State House correspondent to the Weymouth Gazette, who evidently knows what he is talking about, says:

"It may be set down as certain that there will be no county of Boston carved out of most of Norfolk, all of Suffolk, and a part of Middlesex and Essex this year. The hearing of the matter was set for Monday by the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, but when Monday came, with it came a committee from the associated boards of trade who asseverated that while they favored the scheme, they were not sufficiently acquainted with its features to advocate it. Wherefore the committee, with characteristic courtesy, put the whole matter over to February 15. Chairman Harwood of the Committee on Counties says the bill will never be enacted. Chairman Dallinger of the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs agrees with him. There you are. The indications are that the matter will be speedily disposed of when the committee gets at it. Perhaps there may be one or two cities where sentiment would favor the new county. Boston would prefer annexation of her outlying This would bring them into Suffolk county, and she could increase their valuation and her own greatness. If

The tree on Depot street near the corner of City Hall was ornamented with a large new sign Saturday which read :

> Not a Public Way Dangerous Passing.

A glance up depot street showed why the Commissioner had caused the sign to be put up for the street was piled full of snow. The street outside of the railroad track is narrow and received its full share of the snow which fell last Thursday. Many were not aware why this was not a public street and as there was no notice to the contrary, had anyone been injured by the bad condition of the street the city would have been liable for damages.

Saturday Mr. H. H. Faxon put some men at work clearing off the snow from the flat roof of his block, and as the men shovelled it off it fell with a thud upon the tracks of the street railway, filling it solid with nearly a foot of snow, so that the street railway had to abandon its use.

This made the street still more impassible The than ever, and then it was that the sign above referred to was nailed on the tree. This relieves the city from any damages in case of accident, but it is a pretty pass if the street to our depot is to be closed to

The big vessel is periously damaged, and it is impossible to say when she will be able to go into active service. At present she is in no danger of further damage, being fully protected in the safe anchorage afforded by the ice breakers. How the accident occurred can only be established by a court of inquiry, and this, Captain Cook of the Brooklyn has

On board, however, a general feeling of gloom pervaded the officers and men, and, although none could be prevailed upon to talk about the matter, it was evident that they felt deeply the accident to their ship. Captain Cook was seen, but politely and firmly declined to discuss the situation. P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, Saves a Man From Becoming a Cripple.

Mr. Asa Ammons, a well-known citizen of Jacksonville, Florida, was afflicted by a terrible ulcer. Medical skill seemed unavailing in stopping the ravages of the terrible disease. eg was swollen and intensely painful, as the ulcer had eaten its way down to the very bone. All medicines and treatments having failed to effect a cure, the doctors said the leg must come off. Just when it seemed that Mr. Ammons would become a disabled and a crippled man, he tried P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and the result was wonderful. P. P. P. SAVES HIS LEG.

"Jacksonville, Fla., July 1, 1895.— Two years ago I had the worst ulcer on my leg I ever saw. It had eaten down to the bone, and my whole leg below my knee, and my foot was swollen and inflamed. The bone was swollen and painful, and discharged a most offensive matter. My physicians said I had necrosis of the bone, and my leg would have to come off. At this stage I commenced to take P. P. ENDEAVORERS' DAY.

Celebration of Sixteenth Anniversary of Society's Organization.

Total Membership Is Now Over Two Million.

Dr. Clark, Founder of Society, Is Now In Plague-Stricken India.

Boston, Feb. 2 .- The Christian Endeavor society is 16 years old today and a meeting in celebration of that event is being held in all parts of the world. Many of the great city unions of this country have arranged mass New Orleans Molasses meetings in honor of the occasion and a majority of the almost 50,000 societies meetings in honor of the occasion and a in the world will also especially observe the day. The Boston union has planned a big meeting with Mr. Moody and Rev. F. B. Meyer of London as speakers. More than 5000 tickets to the meeting which will be held Thursday night in Mechanics' building, have been issued from the society's office here. Secretary Baer states that the enrollment of young people's societies of Christian Endeavor is now 36,327, with a membership of 2,174,220. In addition there are 11,375 junior societies, having 341,250 members enrolled. These societies exist in all parts of the world. Besides this the societies of other kinds foot up the grand total up to about 48,000 Christian Endeavor societies, with a

REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

The man who originated the Christian Endeavor in Portland, Me., Feb. 2, 1881, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., is now in India, having reached that country on a Christian Endeavor tour. The officers at the United society headquarters expressed some concern as to the welfare of Dr. Clark, as he was scheduled to arrive in Bombay, the plague stricken city, on Dec. 27. No word has been heard from him since. The Christian Endeavorers have exessed considerable anxiety as concern ing the welfare of their leader, but the latest assurances from the seat of the plague declare that none of the missionaries or white population have been affected by the scourge, so it is believed that before long assurances of Dr. Clark's health will be received.

Endeavor convention would be taken away from San Francisco, because the Endeavor officials were not satisfied with personal concessions and favors. is emphatically denied by Secretary

Baer. He says: We are interested only in securing a low railroad rate in a reasonable time limit for the conventon, and are not interested in nor have we asked for a single concession of any kind whatever. The report to the contrary, originating in Chicago, is absolutely false and libelcus. Endeavorers will please pay no attention to misleading and unauthorized stories, and wait for official announcements, which will be made very soon. The railroads have agreed to a low rate but several important conditions covering the sale of tickets, etc., have yet to be settled.

STRIKE AT BROCKTON. Serious Difficulties Between Employes and

Two Manufacturers. Brockton, Mass., Feb. 2.-Brockton has a fight between the shoe manufacturers and the unions on its hands, and is in practically the same position as the town of Stoneham, except that a few factories have announced their intention of moving away. Charles A. Eaton & Co., who operate one of the largest shoe factories in this city, discharged 300 employes yesterday morning, and issued a notice that the factory would be closed indefinitely. It is understood that several other manufacturers will close, in order to lessen the power of the unions, if possible. The affairs at the factory of T. D. Parry & Co. are still unsettled, although 200 employes were at work yesterday, leaving Mr. Barry 50 men short of a full crew. The union officials say that of the number who are at work, only 75 were employed there previous to the back yesterday. Union pickets are keeping an eye on the factory. The closing of Eaton & Co.'s factory was a big surprise, and changes the situation entirely. This shop has been running steadily for nearly five years, but trouble, and that no union men went ness men here fear that other factories will close. The union officials do not think the situation is serious, and say that the closing of both Barry's and Eaton's factories were part of a plan to scare the unions

The shop crews of T. D. Barry & Co. C. A. Eaton & Co. and Joyce & Fletcher For Latest Local and Vicinity held a meeting last night, at which President Tobin, Secretary Eaton and Treasurer E. Howes of the National Boot and Shoe Wokers' union were present. The whole situation was discussed, and the employes of C. A. Eaton & Co. voted not to go back. President Tobin has issued the following statement: "Mr. Barry makes what is apparently a fair statement regarding the matter, in which he asserts that no discrimination shall be made against his former this statement, we are willing to meet him, and, as soon as he recedes from his present position and will conform to his former statement, we will order the men back. The old conditions must be restored, and the old men reinstated. This much we are willing to concede for the best interests of the city at large." The situation in the other two factoies is very bitter, and both sides are preparing for a long fight. The officers of the union declare there is no other

MASSACHUSETTS LAWMAKERS. Senators Debate on Civil Service--Prison Work

In House. Boston, Feb. 2.—There was a spirited debate in the senate yesterday on the appropriation for the civil service commission. Amendments were offered cutting down the appropriation from $15,000 to $11,000, and, after a discusion of an hour, in which local politics played an important part, the amendment was rejected by a close vote of 17 to 16 against reduction. Bills were introduced to enable a new hotel in this city, situated partly inside and partly outside the 400foot schoolhouse line, to obtain a liquor icense. Another bill appeared against bucket shops, while Senator Roberts introduced a measure to reduce the metropolitan sewerage commission from a three to a single-headed commission. The house discussed a bill appropriating $100,000 for carrying on the work of convicts in the prisons of the state. Some senators hope to supplant this 4 bill with the subject of the Hawaiian cable, and others with the Pacific railroad commission bill. It appears most probable, however, that the bankruptcy bill will be given first place on the calendar, barring appropriation bills and conference reports.

Senator Lodge expects to secure consideration of the conference report on the immigration bill during the week. Senator Gibson will antagonize this report, and the friends of the bill count M. Immigration Will Be Restricted. Washington, Feb. 1.-Senator Lodge

As they stated in an interview that they were sending out their telegrams only in their indi-116 vidual capacity, it will be interesting 47 to obesrve that this circular is adalso to act in their individual capacity, and not as agents of the North German 20 Lloyd Steamship company. The circu-28 lar, in full, is as follows:

To Agents: The immigration bill, which is intended to materially restrict immigration, comes up for final disposition in the house of representatives, Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, 27th 17 instant.

It is quite clear that immigration will really be restricted almost to the extent of total exclusion of immigrants should the bill become a law, and every effort should, therefore, be made to insure the defeat of the bill.
You are indirectly interested in the defeat of the bill as much as we are, and we would respectfully ask you to wire your representative in congress im "What to Eat" is the most artistic, at mean repudiation by his constituents and his defeat at the next election Trusting that you will not fail to give H. Claussenius & Co.

Enclosed was a little slip in red type as follows: "Wire your representative fully, and let us know cost of telegram, and we will promptly refund to you." I think it very desirable that the attention of congress, of the press and of the public should be drawn to this attempt on the part of agents of a foreign corporation to defeat a measure of great public importance, in which the people of the United States are profoundly interested.

Captain of Cruiser Brooklyn Reports Accident to Secretary Herbert.

An Official Investigation Will Soon Be Made.

Vessel's Bottom Torn For a Distance of 125 Feet--- Cramp's Offer.

Washington, Feb. 2.-Captain Cook of the cruiser Brooklyn sent the following report of the accident to that vessel to the navy department:

U. S. S. Brooklyn, Marcus Hook, Delaware county, Jan. 30, 1897.

Sir—The Brooklyn, anchored off League island, was dangerously beset by ice. I had been quite anxious lest the ship be carried ashore by floes that were getting heavier and heavier. Upon receiving the throttle valve chamber on board yesterday noon, I determined it was best to put the ship in a safer position, if one could be found. I learned, upon consultation with Captain Eargent of Cramp's shipyard, that a safe berth could be had at that yard. I decided at once to recommend to Commodore Howell that the ship, with her own engines, and assisted by tugs, should go to Cramp's as soon as posisble. Commodore Howell approved of my ommendation. Three tugs arrived near the ship between 8 and 10 a. m. The fourth tug was wedged in the ice at the "Horseshoe," and did not arrive until we reached Marcus Hook. The ice boat No. 1 broke the thicker ice around the ship, where we had been wedged since the flood tide of the night before, heading down stream. I weighed anchor and, with cur own engines and the assistance of the tugs in breaking the ice, tried in vain to turn the ship. Finding I could not do so, my best resource seemed to be to make an attempt to get out of the river. The pilot, an experience i and apparently intelligent man, said the tide was favorable, and he advised strongly that I go to Marcus Hook and tie up at the ice piers, and thus be ready to go, on a favorable tide, on down the river. Bear to make an attempt to get out of the was then appointed by M. A. Hanna as a member from Illinois of the executive committee. Mr. Dawes is president of the gas companies of Akron, O. Being convinced that it was my best course, I determined to go, having previously called a second pilot from one of the tugs to keep the ranges with him.

I was about to congratulate myself upon the success of the whole movement when she struck while passing "Schooner ledge" and while she was on the range of the best water, and having the assurance of such from the pilot, the navigating officer, Lieutenant McCrea and myself also

The captain's request for a court of inquiry has been granted. It is believed at the navy department that the accident was unavoidable, under the adverse conditions surrounding the Brooklyn's movements, but Captain Cook's record will stand better after such a court of inquiry has formally made such a declaration.

Lewis Nixon, representing the Cramps, called to see the secretary. He explained that the firm naturally felt an interest in the magnificent ship, and, therefore, had inwith all possible speed at the actual cost of the material and labor necessary. Th secretary gladly accepted the offer, and work on the ship will begin at once. Mr. Nixon says that the indications are that the bottom of the big cruiser is and that about two weeks' work will be required to repair her.

Ben Hur.

A good audience assembled at Bethany Congregational church Tuesday evening to the reading of Ben Hur, a tale of Christ, which was illustrated by stereopticon views. As a prelude the old hymn " Nearer My God to Thee" was illustrated by verses and with the words thrown upon the large screen, and the audience united to organ accompaniment in singing. The story of Ben Hur was read by Dr. A. H. Gilson and for one who is not a public reader was creditably done. The dissolving views were in charge of Mr. A. H. Taber and were brought out with wonderful clearness. There were 72 imported views to illustrate Ben Hur, and at the 10 close " Rock of Ages" was illustrated by by some beautifully colored American views, while a mixed quartette sang behind the screen.

Care of Furnaces.

The principle to be attended to in construction of all hot air furnaces is to generate and communicate the greatest amount of heat with a given quantity of fuel without producing any change in the breathing property of the air. A common fault is that the water pan is allowed to become empty so that the heated air has that dry nd stuffy quality of which many people justly complain. But with water constantly evaporating in the furnace, with cold air drawn from out of doors and with such an arrangement of pipes that every room will receive its due proportion of heat, there is no system more satisfactory for ordinary houses, nor any more economical-an important consideration .-Selected.

THE ATTEMPT to pass a general law to provide for a system of apportionment of sewer assessments in cities and towns seems a good move. There should be more Durgin & Merrill's Block, - Quincy general laws and exceptional special legislaion. The uncertainty in Quincy over sewer assessment is undoubtedly the cause of the delay and agitation over the system. Some cities rush right in and construct several miles of sewer before they determine the method of assessment, but Quincy is not inclined to do things that way. Woburn, for instance began the construction of sewers in 1895 and now has over ten miles of pipe in her streets, yet no assessments have been levied and no system adopted. There is no reason why some cities should pay only one-quarter of the cost, other one-half, some two thirds or three-quarters and others assume the whole cost. And it should be decided whether or not rentals shall be charged either to pay the cost of construction or the cost of maintainance.

Provisions Made for Annual Deficit of chapter one hundred and thirty-three of or Surplus.

The sections of the sewer act of 1895 elative to the city's liability for a sewer system will be of interest at this time, yet they are complicated and must be read very carefully to be understood.

Some question has arisen in the consideration of the plan of Councilman Pinkham, as to just what is meant by "annual proportionate payments." Webster says, proportionate is "adjusted to something and only such as shall, at the time the portion is "Harmonic relation between parts, or between different things of the same kind; symmetrical arrangement or adjustment."

City Treasurer Gray, who has had experience in placing bonds and knows how some doubt about the Pinkham order being

The act evidently does not mean "equal annual payments," or it should have so stated. Then it would have been perfectly clear. But now there may reasonably be a question. Then something is said in the act about considering the assessments in connection with the payments.

The sections are given in full below: SECTION 12. THE WEATHER INDICATIONS. ALMANAC, THURSDAY, FEB. 4

Forecast for New England: Generally fair weather with northerly to easterly winds; no change in temperature.

There are gems of wondrous brightness Ofttimes lying at our feet, And we pass them, walking thoughtless
Down the busy, crowded street. If we knew, our pace would slacken, We would step more oft with care, Lest our careless feet be treading

If we knew what hearts are aching If we knew what souls are yearning For the sunshine we might fling, If we knew what feet are weary Walking pathways roughly laid,

To the earth some jewel rare.

We would quickly hasten forward, Stretching forth our hands to aid. If we knew what friends around us Feel a want they never tell, That some word that we have spoken Pained or wounded where it fell, We would speak in accents tender

To each friend we chanced to meet, We would give to each one freely Smiles of sympathy so sweet.

Senator Vilas Indefatigable In Opposing the Nicaragua Canal Bill.

Thurston Denies Right to Foreclose on Pacific Roads.

Contested Election Case From Virginia Decided by the House.

Washington, Feb. 4.-The Nicaragua canal bill again succumbed to the strong opposition led by Mr. Vilas yesterday. The Missouri senator continued his speech against the measure, making the third successive day of his argument. The day was consumed in parliamentary fencing by friends and opponents of the measure and ended finally in an adjournment because of no quorum.

The parliamentary contest continued at intervals for half an hour, when all business was suspended by the absence of a quorum and refusal to adjourn. The friends of the bill finally gave up hope of securing a quorum and yielded to an adjournment. Mr. Vilas continues to hold the floor. In his remarks he asserted that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was in full force, and that the American people would insist upon a full and honorable adherence to its terms.

Mr. Thurston of Nebraska spoke in opposition to the resolutions of his colleague. Mr. Allen, questioning the right of the executive branch to foreclose the government liens on the Pacific rai!roads. Mr. Thurston declared that the nending foreclosure suit offered the most hopeful means of settlement. The senate agreed to the house resolution, fixing Feb. 10 for the ceremony of counting the vote of president and vice president before both houses of congress.

The contested election case of Cornett vs. Swanson, from the Fifth Virginia district, occupied the attention of the house. Three Republicans and three Democrats on the elections committee had reported in favor of the Democratic contestee, Mr. Swanson, and three Republicans offered a minority report, recommending that the seat be declared vacant, on the ground that a fair election could not be held under the Virginia election law. The majority report was sustained by Mr. McCall (Rep., Mass.), Mr. Jones (Dem., Va.), Mr. Jenkins (Rep., Wis.), and the contentions of the minority by Mr. Thomas (Rep., Mich.), Mr. Gusson (Rep., Tenn.) and Mr. McCall (Rep., Tenn.). When the vote came to be taken, the minority

Before adjournment the house adopted' a special rule, making it in order to place on the District of Columbia appropriation bill a rider, repealing a law passed, it was claimed, by sharp practice by the last congress, which gave the court of claims jurisdiction over some old claims, said to aggregate $1,-400,000, against the District, when it was under a territorial form of govern-

Three years later, however, he was elected to congress, holding the position for four successive terms, his majority at the polls increasing with each suc-ceeding election, from 219, in 1879, to 5000, in 1890. While serving his fourth congressional term, he was appointed by President Harrison, in 1892, judge of the United States circuit court, succeeding Judge Sawyer. He has rendered many important decisions, nota-bly in connection with the railroad legislation, in California, during his five years of service on the bench. DESTITUTE LOUISIANIANS.

One Hundred Thousand People Suffering Because of Bad Crops. New York, Feb. 4.-According to a statement made by Congressman C. J. Boatner, 100,000 people in the northwestern part of Louisiana are destitute, owing to bad crops. Speaking of the mat-

I shall not ask congress to do any thing, for I am confident that a bill providing such aid would be vetoed by the president. I have, however, induced a number of my associates to send seeds to the needy farmers on their own account, and this will be a great help. The situation is this: We had four months' drought last year at the critical time in the growth of crops, and, as a result, all the young vegetation was killed. Not only were the crops lost but the streams dried up, and the cattle died for lack of water, which could not be procured in sufficient quantities from the wells to keep them alive. The few that survived were mere shadows at the end of the dry spell. The drought was confined to the hill country or sandy soil, and not the rich bottom lands along the Misissippi, Red and Ouachita rivers. The failure of the crops, to the hill country people, meant dire disaster, as they depend entirely upon what they raise to keep their families from starving from one season to the other.

Some of the farms are mortgaged, and the owners have, in many cases, lost stated that J. Addison Porter of the their property through their failure to pay the interest when due.

The people of Louisiana are doing private telegram from Mr. Porter, who their best to aid the 100,000 farmers in distress, but even their generosity is states that Major McKinley has aphardly sufficient to meet such a demand as has been made upon them.

The planting season will begin in a few weeks, and, if the farmers can obtain the seed for crops, with such aid as can be given them in the way of provisions to tide them over until fall, they will come out all right.

TROUBLE IS NOT OVER

Differences Between Brockton Factories and Employes Unsettled.

Eaton & Co. Are Running an "Unfair Shop."

President Tobin Unable to Bring About Satisfac ory Agreement.

Brockton, Mass., Feb. 5 .- Contrary to expectations the strike among the employes of the shoe factories here is still unsettled. Barry & Co. opened their factory yesterday, according to agreement, and the old hands returned to their places.

The sole fasteners and edge-makers, whose grievance started the trouble, are dissatisfied with the settlement, and say that it was made under protest from The war of the machines was resumed. At the factory of C. A. Eaton & Co. a "free" shop was opened. Although they had previously announced that they had more than enough help to fill the different departments only four rooms were started. In the treeing room everyone there was an old operative, and Mr. Eaton stated that each one had signed the agreement. The labor officials announce that they will spare no efforts to make the firm come to terms. It is not so much a question of wages, but the so-called "ironclad"

the operative of his liberty. The Eaton agreement, which that firm compelled its help to sign, will become nationally known. The factory has been declared unfair by President J. F. Tobin, representing the organized shoe workers of the country. It is proposed to publish the agreement broadcast, in without any comment than any ordinary agreement, which they declare deprives

President Tobin held a long conference dressed the meeting briefly, saying that no settlement could be reached. He had, he said, suggested every measure, for the union but to prepare for a bitter fight. The agent of the union would find out where Eaton's goods were offered for sale, and everywhere people would be discouraged from buying them. The American Federation of Labor would receive notice of the trouble and Mr. Eaton's refusal to deal with the union officials, and they would make the case one of national interest. The boycott is illegal, but the union would use as its greatest weapon the ironclad agreement which was condemned by all who knew its effect. He said that the chief allies of the union would be the sellers of other manufacturers shire to use their efforts to bring about who made the same line of goods that | a ratification of the treaty. Mr. Eaton manufactured. They would acquaint the buyers with the system under which the shoes were made. The inferior quality of the work and the fact that the goods would probably not be ready on time on account of the changes in the help would also assist in the fight. President Tobin, accompanied by the executive officers of the local union, went to the factory of Joyce & Fletcher, where a previous conference had been held early in the afternoon.

He remained until after 6 p. m. and announced that no settlement had been reached, but that an appointment had been made for today, when the diffi-culty will probably be settled. The proposition made by the firm was that the conditions existing at the close of last season be restored. This would mean a noticeable increase in the wages of one or two departments, and it is generally understood that the firm will agree to the proposition. President Tobin called at the factory of T. D. Barry & Co. to investigate a rumor to the effect agreement signed Wednesday, and Mr. Barry explained that he had retained some of the new help in order to give satisfied with the explanation. BECGING FOR LENIENCY. Harvard Students Promise to Refrain From Further Pistol Shooting.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 5 .- The proposed action of the Harvard faculty to punish the men concerned in the discharge of firearms early one morning a week ago has created a great deal of feeling among the undergraduates. Bull and Hollister, two of the offenders, and members of the 'varsity crew, have already been prohibited from rowing, but just what final punishment will be inflicted on them has not been decided. The loss of these men to the crew would be very great, and for this reason steps are being taken to have the faculty allow these men to row. At a meeting of the class of '98 the following resolutions were drawn up, which will be presented to the faculty after being signed throughout the college:

We, the undersigned members of the class of 1898, while recognizing fully the wantonness of the disturbance on Tuesday night, Jan. 26, believe it to have been due rather to the thoughtlessness of the men engaged in it than to any vicious purpose, and we beg the administrative board to treat with len-iency the students detected in the use of explosives on that night. We think that the time has come when the whole college should unite in an endeavor to put a stop to such disturbances and to relieve the college of the scandal which they cause. We therefore promise to refrain from the use of firearms and explosives of any sort either in celebration of other athletic victories or at any tion of other athletic victories or at any other time, and to do our utmost to discourage and prevent the use of such explosives during the remainder of our college course.

This petition will be carried through the college, signed by all classes and presented to the faculty. Five men of the 40 or 50 who participated in the celebration last week have already paid $15 fines in the district court.

Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, Feb. 5.-In the senate yesterday a petition was received of Charles S. Clarke and others for the appointment of a board of license commissioners for the city of Boston. The commission is to consist of three members, to be appointed by the governor for a term of three years each. The salary of the chairman is to be $3500, and of the other members $3000. The commission is allowed $2000 for a clerk, necessary deputies at $1200 each and $1000 for incidentals. All matters pertaining to the granting of licenses will be under the jurisdiction of the board, and all licenses must be duly recorded.

The committee on prisons gave a hearing on the petition of Thomas M. Denham of New Bedford, relative to prison labor.

The new legislation asked for provides that the number of persons employed penal institutions of the state shall not exceed 15 per cent of the number of persons confined in such institutions. Each article manufactured on the piece price plan shall be branded, stamped, labeled or otherwise marked. Such mark shall be in legible letters, and shall not be placed on any part of the article where it would be concealed from view.

General Superintendent of Prisons Fred C. Pettigrove said that while the new act would be practicable in prisons where there are a large number of inmates, it would be entirely impracticable in the small institutions of the state.

George F. McNeil, the vetran labor leader and the father of the eight-hour work day, spoke in opposition to prison labor, and said: The main point is not to make a factory of a penal institution. The problem is to turn out a man and not a shoemaker. It should be the training of the man and not of a product which should be kept in view." The committee on election laws resumed its hearing on proposed changes the belief that it will be more potent in the Australian ballot system. Three times was the benediction pronounced and three times was Mr. Pratt com pelled to repeat his sermon, owing to the almost frantic pleadings of his wrought-up listeners. At midnight half of the original congregation left for their homes, but the balance, numbering fully 200, remained until long past the hour of dawn, and it was long past ? o'clock in the morning when the last fervent and enthusiastic revivalist consession of Jeave, after an all night's 12 consecutive hours.

It is too often the case in the Quincy City Council that votes are passed without the matter. Continuing, Mr. Curran said any expression of opinion by the members, but simply on the declaration of the President. It would be worth the while to take a yea and nay vote on the advancement of every order or resolution.

Deputy Sheriff J. J. Sheehan gave reasons why a change shouldn't be made to a one-board government, and referred to the cities of Waltham, Quincy, and North Adams as illustrating, he thought, the unwisdom of making a change. A single board would better allow fraud and corruption to be carried on.

The above paragraph is from a report of a meeting at Fitchburg for the discussion of a new city charter. Wonder what Mr. Sheehan is hinting at? There is no city in the commonwealth better governed than Quincy. The one board plan is coming more and more into favor, and Mana Stormy Scene at Annual Dinner of Loyal Legion at New York.

General Ames Criticised General Curtis.

The Latter Replied in Forcible Terms to Reflections on Himself.

New York, Feb. 5 .- According to all accounts there was a rather stormy scene at the banquet of the Loyal Legion at Delmonico's Wednesday night.

It is said just as a speech by General A. A. Ames of Lowell, Mass., was finished, General Newton M. Curtis of Ogdensburg, N. Y., jumped to his feet, and shaking his clinched fist, called General Ames a craven hearted coward. It is denied that these words were used, but it is not denied that there was some such occurrence.

General Curtis was seen soon after the dinner. He was emphatic in his denial that the words "liar," "coward," and others of a strong character had been used.

"The scene may have been stormy, he said, "but I can say that the words that have been published as coming from me were not used. General A. A. Ames of Lowell, Mass., read a paper on 'The Capture of Fort Fisher' before the command on the evening of Feb. 3. It had been stated that the council struck out certain passages which it was thought would produce irritation, but they were, nevertheless, read.

"His statements were so much disapproved of that the members several times cheered me during the reading of it, and at the close called on me and requested that I make a reply to the strictures upon General Terry and his part in the battle.

"In obedience to this general call, the commandery recognized me, and I replied to certain assertions which had been made, in very plain and decisive words. I was then requested to prepare to read a paper before the commandery of my views of the subject discussed by General Ames.'

The trouble began over a speech by General Ames, in which he described his own conduct at the battle of Fort Fisher To use the words of one of those present, Ceneral Ames made some reference to General Curtis which was not regarded as complimentary.

General A. A. Ames of Massachusetts was the guest of honor at the dinner, and was the first speaker. His subject was the battle of Fort Fisher. He was in command of a part of the Federal forces in that fight. General Newton M. Curtis, member of congress from the Twenty-second New York district, was also a guest at the dinner. General Curtis also took an active part in the marks of General Curtis. General Porter rapped for order, General Wager Swayne began to pour oil on the troubled waters. He was recognized finally, and said that the discussion was out of order.

Then General Curtis got up again and apologized for his impetuosity, but did not mention General Ames' name in his apology. Friends of General Curtis begged him to desist. General Swayne, in order to end the discussion, moved that General Curtis be asked to prepare a paper on the battle of Fort Fisher, to be read at the next meeting of the legion. This was adopted and the meeting broke up. Wolcott Is Sanguine.

Paris, Feb. 5.-Senator Edward O. Wolcott, who is now visiting Europe in the interest of bimetalism, has had an interview with Premier Meline. The interviews which he has so far had were without the result hoped for by the senator. The latter's interview with President Faure on Saturday was short and formal and did not lead to encouragement or any promise whatever. M. Loubal, president of the senate, in his interview with Senator Wolcott-seemed to have been enthusiastic. On the other hand, M. Meline was guarded. He is reported to have said that however favorable France might be to the object sought, nothing could be done unless the consent of England and Germany were previously obtained. In official quarters little confidence is felt for the ultimate success of Senator Wolcott's mission, although the senator seems to be sanguine of England taking part in the bimetallic movement.

Newfoundland Fish Merchants. St. John's, N. F., Feb. 5 .- The principal fish exporting merchants of St. John's have presented a memorial to the government asking for the enforcement of the bait act against the French upon the ground that the latter's bounty led to excessive competition and destroyed foreign trade, Newfoundland fish being unsalable in Europe. The government was also urged to resume negotiations with the United States looking to reciprocity arrangements in the matter of salted as well as of fresh fish It is desired that salted and fresh fish shall be considered as one article. The people of Newfoundland are anxious to arrange for a free entry for their fish products into the United States.

Carlisle Casting About. Washington, Feb. 5 .- Secretary Carlisle has gone to New York. While his mission has not been made public it is believed that it is to investigate certain business propositions which have been made to him, looking to his opening a aw office in New York after March 4. It is understood that the secretary's preference is to open an office in Louisville, but his final determination of the matter is not yet certain. It is said inducements have been held out for him to go to Chicago.

Washington, Feb. 5.-The session of the senate yesterday was one of unusual activity, with sharp colloquies and vigorous speeches which drew large crowds to the galleries. when Mr. Morrill endeavored to pass a bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicants in the Capitol building.

This aroused the opposition of Mr. Hill (N. Y.), who denounced the busy bodies and mischief makers in inspiring this class of legislation. The senator spoke for the fullest enjoyment of individual liberty consistent with the common ground. The speech was not only notable for the vigor which Mr. Hill prolonging the debate to 2 o'clock, when the special session of congress. the bill was displaced by the Nicaragua canal bill.

The amendment to that bill, to repeal a law by which the court of claims was engaged in passing on claims aggregating $1,000,000 against the district, during the Governor Shepard regime, was adopted with practical unanimity.

which the committee puts back to the McKinley duty of 3 cents a bushel because the farmers contended that the Wilson tariff had turned over the market into the hands of the Canadians, while the maltsters who have been using Canadian barley have made a hard fight against any increase. The committee has devoted some time to the consideration of manufactures of iron and steel and to cotton manufactures, but has not perfected these schedules. In the cotton schedule there will be few changes from the present law except in rates on fine yarns and the most costly fabrics. The changes in the iron and steel schedule will be limited to a few specialties like cotton ties, on which McKinley duties will be re-enacted, on tin plate, which has not been settled, and some forms of tube steel and surgical instruments. No other schedule has given the committee so much trouble as the one which includes earths, earthenware and glassware. It has been claimed by all the tleboro on the Central Vermont. The pottery and glass interests that the Wilson law has proven disastrous to their interests, and that no system of ad valorem levies could properly protect them. Accordingly the committee has determined to adjust the items of the schedule to such specific duties as will be equal to the duties of the McKinley law, most of which were ad valorem. On account of the decorative features of such wares, which often are the chief element in their value, it is particularly years. difficult to adjust satisfactory specific rates. Throughout the work the policy of establishing specific rates wherever it was found possible to substitute them Durgin & Merrili's Block, - Quincy for ad valorem has been followed. The interests of the farmers, it is stated, have been particularly observed in fixing duties for the purpose of protection. On the other hand the increases on manufactured goods, most of them, have been on higher grades of goods and those which are considered luxuries.

My innocent position, which was two good yards from Cynthia, courted observation, and we both felt a little injured.

"I wonder what he expects to see?" I said, resuming my seat upon the sofa. "Augustus in the presence of Cleopatra was not more careful to see, nothing. Is it a sense of decorum or a feeling of contempt that inspires his caution?"

"Never mind," answered Cynthia. "Let us talk about ourselves. Are you sure? Are you sure you are quite sure?" This conundrum I had heard before, and my answer was stereotyped. I was quite sure, and I pressed her hand to convince her. "And when," she continued-"when did you first, you know? Was it at Any demonstration that I may have been contemplating was rudely interrupted by a further agitation of the door. With a promptness bred of some practice I was again in an erect position on the hearth rug, and Cynthia was reading a book. It was a manservant with a scuttle of quite unnecessary coal for the fire. He poured on the fuel and brushed the hearth with scrupulous care. The operation seemed to take an enormously long time.

Left once more to our tete-a-tete, Cynthia's impatience of these interludes found words.

"I wish we lived on a desert island," she said. "How delightful it would be!" "Indeed it would," I agreed. "Long yellow sands and blue sea and palm trees and solitude, with nothing to disturb our conversation. We could talk together from sunrise to sunset."

"I should want an accompanist," she observed dubiously, "because you can't play the piano.'

'It would be most Elysian," I went on. "We should have our house, our books and our music. Far away from any fellow creature we could idle away the sunny summer afternoons together and be totally happy. We would be invisible to even the telescope of the passing vessel.'

Cynthia took up the parable and amplified it, "The world would contain for you one woman and for me one man, and each would be ample company for each other.

"Ample!" cried I confidently. We had only been engaged a fortnight. "Ample!" she maintained with suspicious emphasis, as if conscious that the statement needed repetition to render it convincing.

"For exercise," I continued, rashly sketching in the details, "we would have a lawn tennis court.

"You beat me so easily," she sighed. I passed the compliment by and stroked her delightful hair. A tap resounded on the window pane behind us and made us jump dreadfully. It was my uncle, a man devoid of proper feeling, and I knew he was about to make a shouted suggestion of a stroll in the garden, himself being the third, as Thucydides used to put it. So I shook my head firmly, and he waddled off with a despairing wave of his hand which he may have considered humorous, for I saw him smile as he went.

"How long," asked Cynthia, becoming pink in the face, "do you think?" And she nodded guiltily toward the window.

"I wish I knew," was my answer. "We ought to draw the curtain,"

"That would only make matters worse. Besides, there is really nothing to be ashamed of.'

"Nothing whatever," I said. "Still the island would be less painful to the nerves.

"You could play cricket on the sands!" cried Cynthia, rendered desperate by the stings of conscience. "Anything to be rid of these constant distractions.

"I might at low tide," I said dubiously, "but you know I prefer to play with 21 other men."

"If they were nice men," said Cynthia blandly, "we might allow them to come. I delight in watching cricket." "Nice men!" I repeated with suspicious severity. Recollect I was new to the character of a passionate shepherd. "Well, we could take our bicycles, at any rate," said Cynthia diplomatically. "The roads would be exquisite; no hills and no thorns in the road." "It would be fatal if we were punctured," I said. "We should want the nice little man from the shop."

"So we should, and to clean them."

There was a pause, which we employed in contemplating the fire and thinking of our island.

"And I could cook their flesh," observed Cynthia valiantly. "You would do it delightfully," said I, "with a few days' practice."

"Yes; while you were fighting the savages. "I doubt the advisability of savages," I replied. "The interruption of a tomahawk flung at us would be worse than one occasioned by a rattle of the door handle." "And, after all," added Cynthia, giving up the savages, "there would be no knowing how long they might have been peeping at us from behind the palm trees. "On the whole a civilized desert island would suit us better." "Is such a thing ever advertised?"

asked Cynthia. "With a 99 years' lease. We might inquire."

There was silence in the library for a space of 20 seconds. Then Cynthia said, "Ninety-nine years is rather a long time.'

"Yes," I agreed. "If we talk hard the whole time, we shall have said a great deal." "I think we might allow callers." It relieved me to hear her say so, but

"How do you mean?" she asked. "To give it up," I replied.—St. James Budget.

The Pointed Beards.

The Society of the Pointed Beards recently held its third dinner in New York. The Pointed Beards is one of the most exclusive societies in the city. Article 2, section 1, of the bylaws says, "No one shall be eligible unless he have and personal growth, in good standing point half an inch from the apex of the chin, of sufficient evidence to preclude controversy." As far as possible everything connected with the dinner harmonized with the aims and objects of the society. The menu cards, most of which were either designed or executed by the diners themselves, gave ample evidence of the whisker mania, and even the celery was served with its foliage trimmed a la Vandyke. There were 33 members present, several of whom are well known artists.

Wheelbarrow Instead of Knapsack. Major Padrin of the Italian army has invented a very ingenious contrivance which is designed to supersede the knapsack. He has invented a vehicle to which he has given the name of the cyclosac, or the sack on wheels. On this will be carried the baggage of two soldiers, and the aprights of the tent will drag behind him when ascending or push before him when descending. The two soldiers will take it turn about to push or draw the cyclosac, and it is not merely enable the troops to march gained a prominent place at the bar in much longer distances, but to fight

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

1-pic For the Week Beginning Feb. 7. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.-Sincerity-with oneself, with others, with God.-Ps. xv, 1-5; Ezra viii, 16, 17. . The Fifteenth Psalm is supposed by some to have been written by David at the time of the bringing of the ark to Jerusalem, but it was probably written later, as the expression "holy hill" would indicate. It was the ark that made Zion the "holy hill."

It opens with the question, "Who shall abide in thy tabernacle; who shall dwell in thy holy hill?' And in answering the question it draws a picture of the perfect man, making his perfection Hundred, near Laurel, Sussex county, to consist in his personal integrity and sincerity and a similar relation to others. In relation to himself, the man who holds communion with God is: (1) He that walks uprightly his whole life is right; (2) he that worketh righteousness -that doeth the will of God; (3) he that speaketh the truth in his heart. Truth, sincerity, dwells in his heart, and he speaks it there first. The sincere man is sincere in heart. If the heart is deceitful and hypocritical, though the words and actions of a man may seem to be sincere, he is not sincere. Sincerity, truth, trueness, begins in the heart. It is a heart characteristic.

Sincerity in oneself will necessarily include sincerity to others. The man who is false to others is not true to himself or to God, for it includes that. In trueness to others there are several negative qualities embraced: (1) He is not neighbors; he does not injure them by thought, word or deed. (2) He will not even listen to reproaches made by others; he neither speaks ill of his friends on Dec. 9, 1856, his parents being de- nor allows others to speakill of them to scendants of the earliest settlers of Del- him. Because God county. He was re-elected state librarian hates these things, and the true man jutant general of the national guard of He will want to be sincere with God

Sincerity with God is the most important of all. If we are sincere with while not pronounced in his views, is God, if we are honest in all our dealings with Him, we cannot be false to ourselves or others, for that would include falsity to God. When we sin John D. Long, who is expected to fill against ourselves or others, we sin pria place in President McKinley's cabinet, marily against God. Sincerity is a noble has been out of public life for several trait of character. No trait of human years, having retired in 1888 in order to character is so admired both by God and give his attention to his law practice man. God and man both love sincerity

Working In Common.

Christianity has nothing in common with apathy. It does not transform men into stoics. We may admire the old Roman who shed no tears over calamity nd hore all in stolid nuconcern, but marble insensibility is not akin to either nature or the gospel. The Christian religion recognizes true, manly, hearty sympathy. It evokes, enjoins and honors becoming emotion. It says, "Weep with those that weep." Our Lord wept at the grave of Lazarus as the bereaved friend and over Jerusalem as the solicitous patriot who saw the approaching desolation of his beloved city. Surely it is not unmanly to weep. Sensitiveness ever finds occasion for tender and responsive expression. - Presbyterian.

One of the Crying Evils of the Day. We are living in an age in which old beliefs have been much unsettled. A large proportion of our new generation have never received, either at school or ements of morality, and particularly in the necessity of restraining the inclinaers. Dishonesty in various forms is one of the crying evils of the day .-Catholic Standard and Times.

Real Endeavor.

A Christian Endeavorer of Berlin, Ont., a young woman 17 years old, visits the almshouse every Sunday, carrying good literature. The poor old folks anxiously look for her, and her visit is to them the brightest spot in the week. Hundreds of Christian Endeavor societies are engaged in similar work.

Politics and Moral Character.

The man who enters politics poor and after a few years retires with a competency is not likely to have much, if any, moral character left. - Lutheran Observer.

Lovely Selfishness.

Would the "chinook" never come? The wind veered and backed, now blowing as if in derision, and anon becoming calm as if in contemplation of the desolation on the face of nature, while the poor dumb animals continued their ceaseless tramp, crying with pain and starvation. At sunset the temperature was only 13 degrees, the air scarcely in motion, but occasionally seeming to descend from overhead. Mr. Reed's policy against mortgaging the next administration with large appropriations is well known. Mr. Washington had pleaded several times for recognition in vain, and the speaker had listened attentively. Finally Mr. Washington said:

"Mr. Speaker, what can I tell my constituents to show that I am doing something in their behall?" The speaker looked at the genial Tennessee member for a moment and drawled, "Joseph, just tell them that you saw me." Then the speaker smiled,

Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer conone of the largest office buildings and go up and down and around in it, you will see that it is not a mere house, but almost a town in itself. It nearly covers the space of an entire city block. Thirty-two elevators serve the persons and the wants of its denizens and their visitors, and they carry some 40,000 passengers each day. The great business concern which owns it fills a whole floor, with halls as big as churches and regiments of clerks. On the other floors live many another big company and many an individual doing a big business of this sort or of that, and their number will not amaze you as much as the luxury with which prosaic tasks of money making now surround themselves. I wonder sometimes what my grandfather would have thought of it. No one in New York did business in a bigger way than he, sending his famous clipper ships to encircle the world and traffic in a score of ports. Yet, when my father most poking themselves in at the windows as they lay along the border of

You can almost believe that a man might live in this building, going forth only to sleep, and be supplied with pretty much everything he need desire, except the domestic affections, a church and a theater. It seems rather surprising indeed that a missionary chapel has not been started in one of its corners, a roof garden for daytime performances up on the hilltop called its roof. But up on this roof you may find the bureau which breeds our weather for us, and down in its underground stories, in the very entrails of earth, you may confidently leave it your

There are rooms full of trunks, and I remember a big one with the sweat of steam glistening on its walls and ceilings, which was filled full and heaped and piled with bales of a shining cream colored stuffraw silk, costly and also perishable, needing to be kept perpetually moist lest it lose its pliability.

When in this treasure house of uncountable riches we see marble floors which can be lifted by levers so that they lie against the bases of doors impregnable without them and vents which can throw curtains of scalding steam down upon the head of any one who may try to tamper with them, it seems as though the days of oriental magicians had returned, with conspicuous modern improvements. Of course waiting rooms, too, all shut in by gates and bars and passwords. "The ladies" waiting room is a great convenience," said the gray coated guardian one day. Lovell's Grove.

This popular summer resort is to be boomed the coming summer. The Journal reports the transfer of one-third interest to Andrew Anderson and J. H. Van Auken, but these well known business men of Boston have secured two-thirds interest.

Last season the resort was very largely patronized, and the coming summer bids fair to be even more prosperous since the closing of Downer Landing to the public. In anticipation of this increasing business, Mr. Donaldson determined to organize a stock company, and the transfer in interest to Messrs. Anderson and Van Auken represents its establishment.

The company has recently been organized under the laws of the State of Massachusetts, and at a late meeting the officers were chosen as follows: President Andrew Anderson; Treasurer, J. H. Van Auken.

The published story also says that at the 29 3 Penniman & Sons, close of the hearing the remonstrants began to close around Mr. Curran and shake his hand and that fighting words were used. Now that is not so.

I do not know what took place in the ante room after the hearing closed, but I 4) do know that there was no such language used in the committee room while I was there, and I did not leave until after it was all over?

There were several gentlemen present from Quincy and while they were opposed to me they will tell you that they heard no such language.

He Gives Some Individual Views on Long Suit Openings.

VII. Next to the trump attack the strongest form of initiative at whist is the long suit opening. By this we mean not the Pole-Cavendish lead from the longest suit in hand without regard to other strength, but for revenue only, equally applied and in the same proportion to foreign and home products, and the other column sale of spring goods. Other relatively tablished plain suit, with considerable trump strength and some protection in the other suits. The whist player who considers his whole hand and all its possibilities does not invariably begin with his best suit. He looks at the different elements of his holding-best suit, trumps, high cards in short suits, short suits without high cards-and not at the one element the best suit, alone. If outside of the best suit he has little or no strength, he reasons that the hand may perhaps be opened in a against 24,000,000 pounds last year, is more advantageous manner than by the original lead from the best or longest suit. Suppose you hold hearts (trump), 8, 2; clubs, Q, 7, 6, 4, 3; diamonds, 7, 6, 5, 4; spades, 10, 5. What is the use of opening the clubs? You may establish them; but, even if you do, what then? Let partner win two rounds with the king and ace, leaving you with the best one, what is his next play? Unless be has quite extraordinary trump strength a trump lead will not help you. If he goes on with the clubs, your hand will be dead after the third round. If he opens another plain suit, he is at the mercy of the adversaries, for you cannot assist him. And you may be sure-mathematically sure-that the odds are far and away against his having such strength that your opening of the clubs can be of any strategical benefit to your combined hands. In such a case the practitioner of the advanced game resorts to the short suit opening, which, from the given hand, is the S 10. In a previous article in this series I have pointed out some of the virtues of the short suit opening-the gambit, we call it -and in future articles I hope to say more on this subject. For the present I desire merely to assert as distinctly as I can that the logical player, untrammeled by the Pole-Cavendish long suit or nothing rule, does not open his hand with a small card 305 throughout the United States as from his best suit unless he has such accompanying strength in other directions -trumps and re-entry-that with such assistance as partner may probably be able to render him he may not only establish his best suit, but may also get trumps out and "bring in" the suit-that is, make tricks with the small cards of it. Let me say by way of parentheses that by "the long suit opening" I mean only the lead of a small card from a long suit. The lead of king from A, K, Q and others is a long suit opening in a sense, but I prefer to call it a high card opening. Such a combination you can open without de pending on partner for anything. The long suit opening as I wish to have it understood is a bid or call for partner's assistance, and its success depends on the amount of assistance he can give you.

And this suggests the very important feature of our long suit opening as contrasted with the Pole-Cavendish idea—that the small card lead under our system of play means something to partner; means a great deal; means: "Partner, my hand is strong. Back me up fearlessly. Play forward game. Bend every energy to the bringing in of my suit. Do not be afraid States and from St. John, N. B., this to sacrifice your hand for mine. Unless your hand is much below the average in strength we have a great score." This is 2,907,000 bushels in the week a year ago. the informatory feature of our logical long 2,020,000 bushels in the week two years suit opening. Its value cannot be over ago, 2.678,000 bushels three years ago and as contrasted with 3,931,000 bushels In "Wh In "Whist Openings" I defined the in the like week of 1893. Exports of "minimum limit of long suit strength" Indian corn this week show a marked as (1) a plain suit of at least five cards, in-increase, amounting to 3,659,960 bush-cluding two or more high ones, 10 or better; (2) either four trumps or two or three very good ones; (3) reasonably sure reentry, such as an ace or both king and queen, in another plain suit. After a great deal of practice I have found no reason to change those requirements in a material degree. Of course you may weigh the several elements of strength together, Richard R. Kenney Succeeds Senator Higgins and if one element is extraordinarily good it may make up for a deficiency in another direction. Let us take a hypothetical long the Delaware seat vacated many months suit hand and examine it in detail. Say terday admitted Richard R. Kenney to you have hearts (trump), Q, 10, 9, 2; clubs, A, J, 8, 5, 2; diamonds, 10; spades, K, Q, 6. Here are all the requisites for the long suit game-the excellent plain suit (clubs), the four card trump suit and the reasonably sure re-entry in spades. Now, if the long plain suit were even longer, say A, J, 8, 5, 3, 2, and the trumps were only three, say Q, 10, 9, we might still prefer the long suit to the short suit opening, or, with the same four trumps, Q, 10, 9, 2, and the six clubs, A. J. 8, 5, 3, 2, if the re-entry suit is weaker say only K, 6, instead of K, Q, 6, we should again be from Governor Tunnell, certifying that on the other hand, if one element of the justified in starting the long suit. But, given hand were weaker than it is without any compensating advantage, we might rather open "short." For instance, take one less small club, so that you have A, (Dem. La.), speaking against the bill. 5, the other suits remaining the same, and The pension calender was cleared dur- you might open with the D 10. This ringing the changes on a hand is a very Yesterday was private bill day in the is no better way indeed of educating the house and the entire day was spent in judgment upon this particular point when and when not to open a hand with the best suit.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. BOTH LUCKY AND RICH.

The Author of "Shamus O'Brien," Which Has Made a Hit In New York.

George H. Jessup, the author of "Shamus O'Brien," was for many years a well known figure in New York life. He came here from San Francisco nearly 20 years ago and supported himself by writing for the newspapers and weekly periodicals, devoting his spare time to dramatic work.

He was a contributor to Puck in its early days, and also to Fiction, a weekly story paper started by Keppler & Schwarzmann and written by H. C. Bunner, W. J. Henderson, Townsend rulings of the courts in relation thereto are Commodore, which was wrecked off the Percy, R. K. Munkittrick, A. E. Watrous and others of the budding writers legislation that will tend to prevent specu- an active member of the New York city of that era. Later he was editor of Judge, and it was about this time that he came into public notice as a dramatist. He wrote "Sam'l of Posen," 'Myles Aroon," "A Gold Mine" and many another play that has served its purpose with the public.

A few years ago an English family lawyer, of the kind so frequently seen in stageland, wrote a letter of the kind that seldom reach any young men except those who figure in the drama. This let-ter informed Mr. Jessup that a relative had died and left him a fine property in the neighborhood of Dublin and an income sufficient to maintain it in suitable style. The dramatist read the letter and then pinched himself, and as he did not "wake up" he knew that it was true, and very soon afterward he installed himself in the beautiful old family mansion which is still his home. He is now a county magistrate, and peasants of the kind that abound in his plays touch their hats to him when he rides by. To this day he sometimes wonders one of the characters in a play of his own.-New York Journal.

The Paving Amendment.

It is understood that the Committee on Streets will not make any report at tonight's Council meeting, on the order introduced at the last meeting of the City Council, striking out the fifth clause of the street railway double tracking order, which was that the company should pave Hancock street from curb to curb between Granite and School streets.

The reason for not making a report is said to be that the Committee considered · that the thirty days have expired and as some new order in relation to the matter is to be introduced tonight it was thought best to consider them all at one time.

Although the order was signed Jan. 4. some claim the thirty days have not expired, as the company was not notified until Jan 10.

If tonight's meeting passes without some action being taken, the order will be dead, and before any part of Hancock street can be double tracked the whole matter will have to be gone all over again.

If a new order is introduced tonight, and it is hurried along as fast as possible, at least six weeks must expire before it reaches the Mayor for his signature.

Numerous side trips have been arranged; and the people guarantee the delegates and their ladies a royal Texas welcome.

They have been invited, after the convention, to visit the city of Mexico, and it until Feb 23. is expected that most of the delegates and ladies will accept the invitation and go to that quaint old city.

The journey from Boston to Mexico and return is about 8,000 miles; and the delegates that leave this state expect to be gone about four week; occupy the same car with the same pleasant company, throughout this long trip to the land of flowers. The delegates hire the drawing for one week. oom cars by the day, and go from place to place, as they please.

-It is cheering to those who favor reforms in the educational system of this city, says the Boston Home Journal, to see President Eliot striking out from the shoulder against existing wrongs. The changes which he advocates must commend themselves to every thinking man or woman who has devoted any study to the faults of the educational system of Boston. A desire to see the public schools of this city taken out of politics is a sentiment which will be indorsed by all who are not politicians. President Eliot wants to see the education of Boston youths directed by a board of seven or nine members, highly ducated, public-spirited men who are interested in their work. They need not be educational experts, and they should work without salary. As it is, the schools of Boston do not approach what they should be, and President Eliot is quite right when he declares that it is already nard enough for a bright child of poor parentage to secure dealer or clerk who does this cares nothan education. He might add that when ing for your welfare. He simply wants the education is secured it is many times your money. Do not permit yourself to of little practical use in the life to which be deceived. The broadcloth covered casket was draped with the American flag, while on the lid were the sword and belt of the Knights of Pythias. On the front of the platform was a profusion of beautiful flowers among which were: A pillow with name 'Father," a star with word "Comrade," crescent of white pinks with word 'Grandfather," a large colored shield on stand with letters K. Delegates, Arriving For Annual Convention Which Begins Wednesday.

Lively Interest In Contest For Presidency.

Organization In Excellent Condition and Work For Good Roads Going On.

Albany, Feb. 8 .- Hotel accommodaarrival in the city of a large number of League of American Wheelmen. The convention meets Wednesday, but the wheelmen are coming early, to participate in the contest between Sterling Elliott and Isaac Potter for the presidency of the league. The fight has narrowed down to these two gentlemen, and the feeling hasbe come very bitter. Political wire pulling is being done by both candidates, and the outcome is watched with great interest.

STERLING ELLIOTT.

Every delegate who reaches town is put in possession of a printed circular detailing the work that Mr. Potter has done for the league. They call attention to the fact that he obtained the passage of the bill giving wheelmen the same privileges as any other vehicle owner on public highways; that he increased division from 2900 to 21,000, and, lastly, that Albany is the place of his birth, and, the convention being held here, it would be a deserved compliment to elect him president

The actual work of the delegates will not begin until Thursday morning, and then it is expected that a great deal of time will be consumed in discussion of the many important questions which will be presented for consideration.

One of the reasons for holding the con vention in Albany was to impress the New York state legislature with the strength of the union, and, if possible, have this state become the pioneer in the movement for good roads. The entire session on Wednesday will be given up to this matter, and it is altogether probable that hearings will be arranged before some of the legislative committees on Wednesday afternoon on the good roads bill, introduced by Senator Higbee. In addition to Lieutenant Governor Woodruff, it is expected that Speaker O'Grady, Assemblyman Armstrong, who secured the passage of the free bicycle transportation act, and Saturday evening at Altona and St | Senator Charles Guy, who has just had reported favorably a bill giving bicyclists an exclusive strip of roadway along some New York highways, will all be present and address the meeting. Superintendent of Public Works George W. Aldridge, who has granted permits for bicycle paths along the Canalberme of the official decree. bank, has also been asked to say some thing to the gathering. The league has appropriated $1000 for the purposes of this meeting, and for the printing of and distribution of literature on the subject. On the eve of this meeting, State Engineer and Surveyor Adams, in his annual report, favors the wheelmen's bill, and says: "I believe that, since the management of the great bulk of this work will be so largely of an engineering nature, it should all be placed in the charge of this department, and that of the superintendent of public works, exactly as is now the case with all other public work of this character; and, as these two departments now have an effective organization, reaching into every county in the state, I believe that no new, cumbersome or expensive commision is required for this purpose."

The reports of the secretary and treasurer will be presented to the league on Thursday, and will contain an interesting and rather startling array o figures. There are now in the league 74. 026 members, of whom 20,826 reside in the state of New York; 11,204 in Pennsylvania; 9711 in Massachusetts, and 4597 in New Jersey; Illinois comes next in number, followed very closely by Missouri and Ohio. From third in the list of states as to membership, New York division has gone up to first place; and, from having 12 per cent of the entire membership, New York now has 31 per cent The gain in membership during the last year of the entire national league has been about 2600. As to the finances, the report will show that, while in the expenditure of money for pushing the good roads crusade, the organization is $14,493 surplus, of which $7214 was paid Eugene Haussmann.

FORECAST OF CONCRESS. Arbitration Comes Up In Senate Today--- Can vas of Electoral Vote.

Washington, Feb. 8.-Senator Morgan morning hour today. He expects the motion to be antagonized, and, in that event, will secure a vote which will, he thinks, demonstrate the voting strength of the canal bill. He expects the vote to be largely in the majority, but, whatever the result, he probably will announce his abandonment of the bill for the present session, on account of the determined obstruction to its passage, while at the same time he will declare h's purpose to press the measure with more determination than ever at the next session.

The withdrawal of the Nicaragua canal bill from its present place at the head of the calendar will leave the way open the membership of the New York state for taking up other measures pressing for consideration. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill has already been reported, and there will be an effort to secure attention to it today. WARSHIPS IN A STORM.

Vessels of Atlantic Squadron Tossed About by Mighty Waves.

Four Men-0'-Warsmen Lose Their Lives.

Moun'ainous Seas Wash Over the Ships

Charleston, Feb. 9.-After a most disastrous experience with wind and wave, the Atlantic squadron has reached this port. Three men were lost overboard from the Maine, and one man was crushed to death on the Marblehead. Seven others on the latter vessel were badly injured. All the vesesls had a hard time of it in the storm, and the Marblehead presents a woful appearance. Her forecastle is stove in, a portion of her superstructure and two hatches are carried away. The heavy seas that swept her decks also carried away her searchlight, lower port boom, smashed the rails and swept overboard the lifeboats.

Carpenter Shawberl was crushed to death in the forecastle when it was wrecked by a monster wave, and Plumber Hickey had his skull crushed by the wreckage and probably will die. The six seamen who were injured are believed to have been hurt at the same time, but the officers of the vessels are reticent as to the details of the accident. Carpenter Shawberl was buried at sea. The other vessels of the fleet show marks of their rough voyage, their upper works and deck hamper being damaged. The squadron weighed anchor in the Roads Thursday morning and put to sea. Friday evening the weather thickened, and by night was blowing a gale. The Indiana returned to the Roads, owing to the condition of her turrets. The rest of the fleet, however, poked their noses into the storm and headed south. When about 50 miles off Hatteras the fleet en-countered the full force of the blow. Open squadron formation was maintained, and the vessels were put in or-der for a siege of weather. The battleship Maine rolled in the big seas, the water washing her decks at every plunge. It was late Friday afternoon that the accident occourred which cost three sea-men their lives, and three others were make more secure the lashings of the lows: big guns. The deck was deluged and the wind was freshening every moment. The men were at work with the lashings. when an unusually heavy sea curled depression existing in other industries over her bow and swept aft. Six of the is shared by this, and, as it was the gang were picked up and carried overboard before they could escape the wave. When the cry of "man overboard" of hard times, it will be the last to rewas carried back, there was a scene of momentary confusion, but in an instant the splendid discipline of the crew was apparent.

Life buoys were cut loose and the order quickly given to get a boat overboard. The high sea made this a work of peril and difficulty, but a boat's crew, under Naval Cadet Walter R. Gherardi, son ot Rear Admiral Gherardi, retired, was finally lowered, excellent seamanship alone preventing the frail craft from battleship. While the engines had been reversed at the first signal from the bridge, the momentum of the ship had carried her some distance beyond the spot where the seamen were swept overboard, and the set of the current was carrying them away every moment. The ship's crew watched the rescuers as they pulled manfully in the heavy seas, the waves running so high that the little boat was at times hidden from the vessel's deck as it rushed down into the trough. Meantime the drowning men fought bravely, and three of them managed to keep afloat until their mates hauled them from the water. They were Seamen Hassell. Cronin and Freeman. The three remaining, Brown, Nelson and Kogel, were not to be seen. The lifespot, but the brave fellows had given up the struggle and met a sailor's fate. Cadet Gherardi and his boat's crew were highly complimented by the officers for their brave work.

Friday night the fleet made heavy weather of it, but managed to keep within signalling distance of one an other. Towards morning the squadron was hove to and weathered out the rest of the gale in that manner. The officers say it was one of the worst gales the fleet has ever experienced.

What promised to be a long and spicy meeting of the City Council on Monday evening came to a sudden end. The Street Committee was not ready to report on eliminating the paving clause from the order granting the Quincy & Boston street railway a location for a second track on Hancock street, but after debate a recess was taken to give them an opportunity. Finally when they reported in favor, the Council refused to suspend the rules, and now the amendment cannot pass before the thirty days expire. The business of the evening is fully reported below.

President Bryant resigned the chair and spoke on the question. He said that the paving might be considered indirectly in debating the recess motion, those in opposition voting against the recess. The question was whether the city should ask some return for expenditure on account of the street railway. It did not seem wise for this Council to rescind in one week what the previous Council had done after months of consideration. Councilman Sprague did not quite agree with the preceding gentleman. He was willing the committee should retire and report. Until good reasons were shown to the contrary he should still favor the order as adopted by the Council of 1896. Councilman Badger was in favor of recess, and he hoped the committee would lature passed a law permitting cities to collect a rental from street railways it would be time to act. If the city required the company to pave the street it might not be able to accept the proposed act, for the company could say they had already paid for the franchise. Councilman Little thought the street railway was not perfect, but he was opposed to restricting them too much. While he had favored the order last year he would now vote to strike out.

Councilman Pinkham opposed a recess. The order was put through that the city might be reimbursed in part for expenditures. The granting of this location growing into a worse condition-often would give the street railway all it wanted on our main streets, as Hancock street was the main artery to the South Shore. He Sleep induced by the use of Hood's Sarsawas not strongly in favor of paving the whole street, but the restriction was there and it should remain. He admitted that street railways had done much for the city, but there was no reason why the company and those who ride should not pay something toward city expenses.

Councilman Nickerson asked if street railways were allowed to pave streets. City Solicitor Blackmur said there was a question whether the city could enforce the restriction. To Councilman Poland he said there might be a question if the company could use its income to pave more than eighteen inches outside the rails.

The vote was 12 to 9 in favor of a recess, which was declared.

Union and the Inaugural. The Young Woman's Christian Tem perance union has its weather eye out for the inaugural ball committee. The wearers of the blue object, they say, to ushering President Elect McKinley into office in the chariot of Bacchus. Hence the following appeal sent to the executive committee of the national Republican party: The Young Woman's Christian Temperance union stands for the principle of individual total abstinence and national sobriety. It believes that serving wines or liquors of any kind at the inaugural balls has in the past been productive of evil and has degraded what might otherwise have been an imposing ceremonial. The society therefore comes before you with its large representation of young men and women most earnestly requesting that President Elect William McKinley may be ushered into his solemn office by a sober people, without a taint of dishonor attaching to any of the civic functions relating to the great occasion.

Believing we shall thus be helping to attain "that righteousness which exalteth a nation," we remain yours for the patriotism that guards public morals and the integrity of the home. - Frances J. Barnes and Associates.

Baptist Standpoint.

He believed much, he said, of what Mr. Butler had said, but with a change of emphasis.

In polity he said the Baptist churches were independent, each local church being a unit and entirely independent as to government of all other churches. Their doctrines are what are contained in the Bible. The church is made up of regenerated immersed believers.

Regeneration he said is a change of heart, a radical change by which one becomes a new man in Christ Jesus. Only those who are thus regenerated should be baptized, and baptism should be by immersion. The Lord's Supper is an ordinance of the church to be partaken of by those thus regenerated and baptized.

They believe in the absolute separation of church and state, and had never accepted from the government money for the support of denominational schools.

Rev. W. R. Breed spoke from the standpoint of The Episcopalian.

The Episcopalian.

The Episcopal church is difficult to define, he said, because there is no special thing that sticks out. It is peculiar in the fact that it starts out with the child rather than with the adult. Children are baptized and this baptism is often the anchor which holds them to the church as they grow up. Baptism is the outward expression of the stand-point of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Washington, Feb. 9.-The internation al arbitration treaty was debated in executive session by the senate. Nearly the judicial districts of Texas was passed over the president's veto by a vote of 57 to 1. Mr. Caffery of Louisiana cast the dissenting vote.

The first half of the session was spent in debating a motion introduced by Senthis motion. The debate was characterized by several sharp passages at arms between the author of the motion and Senators Morgan, Lodge and Sherman, the three last named contending strenuously for the observance of the senatorial custom of secrecy in dealing with the treaty. It was stated that it was the wish of the administration that the public should be excluded from the debate.

on the Hill motion, which was defeated, the count showing only 9 for, 19 against The negative vote was cast by two gold Democrats, Hill and Lindsay; two silver Democrats, Roach and Tillman; two independent silver Republicans, Teller and Pettigrew; two Populists, Peffer and Stewart, and one straight Republican, Brown. This was not considered in any respect a test vote, as there are known to be man, senators opposed to the treaty who did not favor a departure from the ordinary practice of the senate. Still, the friends of the treaty believe sufficient was developed as to the attitude of senators to justify the conclusion that the treaty is certain of ratification if it can be brought to a vote.

It is claimed that the straight Republican vote is solidly favorable to ratification, and that a fraction, at least, of all the other elements will be found in that column when the vote is announced It was made apparent, however, that the treaty would stand no chance without the committee amendments. The supporters of the agreement are not, how ever, so sanguine of early action as of a favorable result when secured. A quite determined spirit of delay was made manifest, and when Senator Sherman expressed the hope that consideration could be concluded at another sitting. With the Hill motion disposed of, the senate took up the treaty upon its merits. Senator Sherman, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, spoke for about an hour, making a strong plea for the ratification of the treaty, which, he urged, was the realization of a dream which had long been cherished in the United States.

Senator Sherman contended for the paramount importance of the treaty, and urged the senate to act upon it without unnecessary delay, as, only by pursuing this course could the wishes of the country and the expectations of the amendment eliminating the King of Sweden and Norway as umpire had been made after due deliberation, and that this step was only taken as a precaution against unwelcome complications. In conclusion, the senator said that it would be a great mistake for the senate to repudiate the treaty, a mistake which would forfeit much of the high regard felt toward the United States as a nation of peace lovers, and which exert a serious influence upon the progress of the world in the settlement of disputes without resorting to the atrocities of Senator Morgan replied to Mr. Sherman, speaking in opposition to the treaty. The Alabama senator's argument was largely constitutional in tendency. He dwelt with especial emphasis upon its sweeping character, claiming that in delegating, as the treaty does, to the president the right to determine for this country the circumstances under ing she had as much notion and greater which arbitration shall be restorted to, it robbed congress of a prerogative esfamily tea. The court now has the pecially conferred upon it. In reply to a question from Senator Vest, put so as to show that such was the Missouri genator's conviction, Senator Morgan Boston, Feb. 9.—The execution in said that he believed the ratification of favor of the defendant in the libel case the treaty would amount to an abrogaof Helen Gougar vs. Congressman tion of the right of the senate to co-Morse, for $263 and costs, has been operate with the executive in the making

Senator Morgan said that there were probably few who would be willing to announce themselves as opposed to the principle of arbitration, but it did not follow that every one must swallow the first measure presented which professed to put into execution this method of settling disputes between nations. He said that it behooved all persons to regard with especial caution the overtures of Great Britain in such an interest, and remarked that the island kingdom had never been especially known for her devotion to the welfare of the United

Senator Morgan was speaking when the senate adjourned. His and Mr. personal and had no political signifi- Sherman's were the only set speeches cance. He further asserted that he was made, but there were many other brief utterances. Senator Daniel intimated opposition to ratification on account of the danger of entangling alliances, and Senator Turple asked a number of questions pointing in the same direction. Senator Nelson made a plea for the retention of the clause continuing King Oscar of Norway and Sweden as umpire. He contended that Oscar was benign ruler and a man whose sympathies were largely with America. He said the treaty of 1855 between Sweden, England and France had long since lost its significance, as it was negotiated during the Crimean war, for the purpose of preventing an alliance between Sweden and Russia, which would have resulted in blocking the Baltic sea against the allied powers. Intimations were given of several amendments other than those proposed by the committee on foreign relations, among others one definitely withdrawing the Alaskan boundary as a subject the clause in regard to the arbitration which some regard as unconstituional take up the question again today,

The Daily Ledger. IN EXECUTIVE SESSION, Story Told the Court at Farmington of Dolngs of Philip Ross.

The prisoner is a small, swarthy and unprepossessing Corsican He was the center of interest, especially as the story told by Mr. Blaisdell was quite graphic. report of the civil service commission, covering the past fiscal year, has been submitted to the president. It reviews shaky nerves stands a mighty poor show in the business world of to-day, where he must hit the bull's-eye of fierce competition the growth of the government's civil service, the efforts of the commission to eradicate partisanship in federal offices and important civil service reforms and many times in a day. Steady nerves are dependent upon pure blood, and to have pure blood one must have a perfect digramment of the growth of the government's civil service, the efforts of the commission to eradicate partisanship in federal offices and important civil service reforms and and important civil service reforms and extensions contemplated.

During the year the commission conducted investigations into charges of ious discriminations, illegal appointments and alleged fraud or unfairness in connection with examinations and appointments. In a number of cases of charges of political assessments, it was found that there had been no technical violations of the law. The promulga- gists sell it. tatory effect.

At the Toledo postoffice an employe was shown to have made false representations to injure the prospects of appoint ment of certain other eligibles. Action in this case is still pending. During the last four years the remov als from competitive positions in the classified departmental service at Washington have been less than 2 per cent for all causes, not including such removals as resulted from necessary reductions in the force. In the unclassified and, except service at Washington, the removals are believed to have aggregated in the four

Within a short time, satisfactory regulations are expected to be in operation in all the departments so that promotions may be made wholly on merit and removals and reductions merit and removals and reductions made only for satisfactory causes, without regarding personal, political or religious considerations. The temptation to increase the number of employes or to retain employes when there is no work for them to do, which was such a characteristic feature of the spoils system, has entirely disappeared under the new civil service system. There are now nearly 10,000 persons in the public service commissioned by the president, and this number is growing every year. At this rate of increase, says the report, in a few years it will be physically impossible for the president and cabinet officers to examine the papers and hear arguments and complaints relating to the large number of persons to be commissioned, and the repeal of the four years' tenure law will be necessary. The commission is of the opinion that the fourth-class postoffices may be included in the classification by executive order. ADVICES FROM CRETE. The Greek Government Is Blamed For the Recent Ou'breaks. London, Feb. 10 .- Private and official advices and private letters from Eng-

The Greek government, believing that the end of the Ottoman empire is near thinks the time opportune to carry out the long-cherished desire to annex the Island of Crete.

Public officials here and on the continent regard the situation as serious, and as thereatening the peace of the whole of Europe. In the event of a colpers everywhere urge the powers to bring pressure to bear on Greece, in or der to prevent further aggravation of Turkey.

It is announced that Turkish warships and a transport have left Constantinople for the Island of Crete, and that, in spite of the advice of his ministers and of the ambassadors, the sultan favors the dispatch of troops and repressing the troubles by force.

A dispatch to The Times from Canea "The immediate cause of the says: outbreak here was the news of the troubles at Heraklion. Before dawn, one-half the Mohammedans had left the tians descended from the mountains in strong force, and during the next two days there were incessant conflicts around Canea, in which the Christians appeared to have had the advantage. The efforts of the consuls and bishops to pacify them failed, and the Mohammedans, whose anger had been aroused to the utmost, found themselves unable to continue their expedition into the country. The excitement among the Christians of Canea increased, but the first fighting in the town was on Thursday. It commenced with desultory shots, and in a few moments became general and incessant. The shooting continued until dark. Among the victims were Turkish soldiers, but the troops, nevertheless, under great provo cation, behaved excellently."

THE OBJECTION to the transportation of one grade of the Quincy school to the new Massachusetts Fields school is not a matter of principle but of inexpediency. Atlantic people whose children are in the grade which it was proposed to transport objected emphatically to the move. With a graded school handy to their homes they objected with reason to entrusting their children to any transportation in crowded and perhaps unsafe barges over private ways to the new building.

The mistake seems to have been made in erecting a school building at Norfolk Downs. It might well have been delayed a few years, particularly as the city could ill afford it, and other school districts were more in need of accommodations. An addition to the Quincy school would have seemed to be more expedient, and seems to be demanded now.

Had the boundary line between the Quincy and Massachusetts Fields schools remained as first adopted it is said the need of transportation or a room in the Music hall building would not have been necessary. The lines of the Massachusetts Fields school should be extended even further north if necessary to relieve the Quincy school, particularly as there is plenty of room at Norfolk Downs, and it is a new building, well ventilated, lighted and heated. With fewer pupils each could receive more attention and better progress result. Under the circumstances Charles street should be adopted for a few years as the northern boundary, and the enlargement of the Quincy school put off. The line of Charles street should be extende on the west in a straight line or via Squantum street to the railroad, and on the east to the water. It is said this would relieve all the rooms at the Quincy school and that it would not be necessary to hire any room outside This would cost less than transportation and should meet with no serious objection.

FROM THE start there has been a question as to the lega'ity of amending the order of the City Council of 1896, granting the Quincy & Boston street railway a location for a second track on Hancock street, although the City Solicitor had given an opinion bearing on the subject. Here was an order passed and signed by the city government of 1896, and it seems pre mature for the new Council to do anything with it until the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company has signified in writing whether it is accepted or not. When they refuse to accept the location under the restrictions it will be time to act.

When the Mayor vetoes an order it mus be put again upon its final passage without amendment. This order would seem to Boston terrier I have ever seen." have passed beyond the City Council when signed by the Mayor, especially as the rules of the Council say that a motion to reconsider must be made at the same meeting at which the order passed.

It is useless to talk about the unsafe condition of the present track on Hancock street, as the company has already been granted and has accepted a location for a new single track in the centre of the street. There is no objection to a second track on this street between the First church and the Neponset bridge, and but for the rider which includes the remainder of this street, House. There were present Frank L. nances shall forthwith examine the same, the order for a second track would have Hoenes, of Denver, Col.; Isaac Coombe, and certify on the back thereof that been granted long ago.

It was questioned if the company could contribute, but we were told there was a way. So there would be for the paving of Hancock street. It would not do for the company to say the restriction could not be enforced for the City Council could revoke all loca tions in the city or it could insist on the a train something like 63 miles in length paving of all lines; those to Quincy Point, and would nearly reach from Boston to West Quincy and even to Houghs Neck. Newport, R. I. But there are doubtless better ways in which the city may be reimbursed. Dangers Attending the Opening of Long Suit With Small Card.

In what I shall have to say of the long suit form of whist strategy I will try to avoid giving the impression, which some people are too ready to get, that the small card opening is an indication of numerical trump strength. The lead of a small card merely for the purpose of showing four or more trumps I have never recommended. The Quincy club are moving iuto their In "Whist Openings" (page 33), I gave new rooms in the Savings Bank building the maxim, "You shall not indicate the long suit game by your original lead unless you are perfectly willing that partner should immediately lead trumps, from strong or weak ones." A hard and fast rule I was careful to lay down, telling the player that he must use his discretion in guest of her sister Mrs. Elias Earkin of regard to the matter of trump strength in connection with the small card opening. At the same time I stated, as my own ex-George L. Miller, the well known granite perience, that the original leader should contractor of West Quincy, has been not attempt nor indicate the long suit game unless he has four trumps with an honor or two honors, irrespective of length. This advice I see no reason now to alter. It appears to be founded in reason as well as in experience. A practitioner of the logical, common sense game never tries at the outset of a deal to establish a long suit not headed by a sequence unless Quincy Methodist church tonight. All are he has a good hand. The good hand his logical, common sense partner will inevitably infer from the small card lead. Partner is thereby encouraged to play a for-Monday night by a bank of snow on ward game. He will lead trumps from a Washington street, and at 6 o'clock Tues- hand that would not justify the trump atday morning the city had a gang of men at tack without the original leader's encour It follows, therefore, that the original leader, in considering his opening, must also consider very seriously what his partner may infer, and, in short, the original leader, when he starts with a small card, must be prepared for a trump lead from partner. How far he must be prepared is the matter that is to be left, to a certain extent, to the player's discretion, but it seems reasonable to say that he should have either length in trumps or else, without length, some high ones with which to give partner support and assistance in the trump attack. "Some high ones" I have defined to mean at least two honors, so far as experience has taught me the definition. The student of the advanced game can hardly do better than to accept this limitation, as a rule, for general practice Hands he will have, not containing as great trump strength as that which I have indicated, from which the long suit opening will strike him as safe and advisable. Very well. There are exceptions to all rules, and the intelligent player will be able, with practice and experience, to rec ognize the exceptions to this rule when they present themselves. Only let me add this advice: If, taking into account part from 8 to 10, after which a collation was the wisdom of venturing the small card opening, don't. If there is a question be tween the long suit and the short suit initiatives, prefer the short. Always endeavor not to mislead partner in regard to suit (diamonds) and the re-entry (CA), but the third element-fair trump strength -is missing. It is a hand for the short suit opening, if there were one, but we cannot start the only short plain suit (spades) without deceiving partner by the small card lead of the 4 or 2. Studying leading the spade. The long diamonds were the next thing I considered. If I opened them, I argued, I must lead a small card, and then partner would give might be dangerous, I thought. What, then, could I do? The lead of a club, high or low, would be purposeless. And the trump? Well, I didn't dare, on account of the weak spades, knowing that partner would give me credit, after a short trump lead, for all round plain suit strength.

8, 5; clubs, A, 6, 8; diamonds, K, J, 9, 5,

4, 2; spades, 4, 2. Here we have two ele-

So eventually I decided on the small card opening from the diamonds. Partner won the first trick with the D A, both adversaries playing low, and then led the ace of trumps. All followed with small ones. Partner came along with the H 9; second hand, H J; I, H 8; fourth hand, H K. Partner had all the rest—seven All Sizes of Purses trumps to the ace and queen originally. The winner of the third trick now led a small spade. Partner had the SA with two small ones and also a small diamond to give me. If he had gone in with the S A at second hand, next leading the diamond, we had all the other tricks—12 on the deal. He played a small spade, however, and third hand won. We made only 11 tricks therefore. After the play I asked partner why he had not jumped in with his S A. "Because," he replied, "from your small card opening, followed by the disclosure of utter trump weakness on my lead, I supposed you must have strength in every plain suit, and trusted you for the first spade trick." What could I say? I had deceived him by the indication of strength on my original lead. Finding that I had no strength whatever in trumps, he naturally inferred my strength to lie in plain suits. The inference was wrong, and it cost us a trick in an important tournament game. But it was my fault. What, then, should I have led? Why, it is just here that the moral of our little story comes in. I should have led the trump. We would then have "coopered" second hand's king; partner would have cleared the trumps with his ace and queen in two rounds and would then have led two more trumps to get my discards; I would have "trashed" a spade and a club; he would have given me the ace and then the small diamond, and we would have won 13 tricks, one better than any other pair in the game, instead of losing one as compared with the best score. Moral .-If, being utterly weak in trumps, you are forced to the long suit game because you have no intelligible short suit opening, be gin with the trump attack. This is not a hasty deduction from a solitary instance. I have investigated the situation thoroughboth the strategic and the informatory circumstances of the case, the safest lead from the given hand is the H 8. E. C. HOWELL Boston Press Club, Boston.

The facts are, that the rebels in Pinar Del Rio, numbering fully 7000, are better equipped and disciplined than at any time during the war. In support of this asertion, the fol-tries to return to Havana. Thousands of persons are being vaccinated daily throughout the entire province. In spite of this, it is asserted, about 5000 cases of smallpox exist in Havana, and during the last four days 30 persons, or 8 per cent of the entire mortality, have died from this disease. The Spaniards here, it cannot be denied, are heartily sick of the war, excepting those who are without money or property and who are actually making a better living out of the revolution than they ever did before or could hope to do again, if peace is proclaimed. Then there is another class anxious for the war to continue-those who hope to better themselves considerably should the in-

Mr. Morgan. Another important amendment was offered by Senator Bacon of Georgia. It provides for a modification of Article 8, so as to relieve the southern states from any obligations that might arise under the bonds issued in the reconstruction days. The amendment was the result of a conference among the southern senators, who concluded that pay cash, and our per cent. of cash to credit der it possible to make these bonds, previous one when held by subjects of Great Britain, the object of arbitration. Mr. Bacon sought an opportunity to address the senate on the amendment, but was prevented by the fact that Senator Mor

When Senator Morgan renewed his remarks, he stated that the treaty before teen hundred persons are drafted the senate should be amended so as to except, in definite terms, the Nicaragua canal and everything relating to that Fresh Pork, enterprise. He dwelt at length upon this Shoulders, phase of the treaty, and read from a number of reports bearing on the subject, showing the interest of the United which, the senator declared, was more tends to Bawalpindi and Bellary and is vital than any treaty which could be made with Great Britain.

Senator Morgan, at 5:30 p. m., concuss other phrases of the treaty before a vote was reached.

A number of amendments have been prepared, which will be offered in the course of the debate. Among them is one declaring that all subjects of arbitration must first be submitted to the president and senate before being sent to the tribunal provided for in the treaty. Another excepts from matters subject to the treaty. Fish through the Alaskan boundary dispute, also any controversy as to the boundary line in the Straits of Fuca, which separate Vancouver island from Washington state. The friends of the treaty did not enter the debate yesterday. During the day, Senator Teller stated that he wanted it understood that the silver men were not opposing the treaty as silver men, and that the opposition was being made to it because it affected the silver interests. There were other and sufficient grounds on which to base their objections. The suggestion read by Senator Daniel in the committee on foreign relations as to whether the difference between the price of silver and gold (in case this country goes to a silver basis) should be made the subject of arbitration, did not receive much consideration, nor did it attract any particular no The proceedings connected with the consideration of the treaty on its merit were not exciting, and it was impossible to hold the senators in their seats while they proceeded. The early part of the session, however, was by no means so devoid of interest. The first two hours were given to a discussion of the full reports of Monday's secret session that were printed in the papers yesterday morning. Senator Vest sprung this subject as soon as the confirmations were disposed of. The time was devoted to a senatorial discussion of the methods of the modern news seekers, which was more in the nature of faultfinding than of criticism of their accuracy. The reports were generally complimented for their accuracy, and the majority of the remarks were devoted to an effort to explain their appearance. Senator Vest asserted that no one but trained newspaper men could give the proceedings in such detail as time, and there seems little hope even of sent out, and contended that an expert must be employed somewhere in the Wedding and Visiting Card Engraving chamber. Bradley-Martin Ball the Social Triumph of the Century.

Fabulous Fortunes Spent by Guests For Costumes.

Sotham, and Probably the World, Has Never Seen Its Equal.

New York, Feb. 11.-Mrs. Bradley Martin stepped into the large ballroom of the Waldorf just after 12 this morning, and the grandest and most elaborate ball ever given on the American continent, if not in the world, one which rivalled the famous fetes of old world courts and great houses, began.

Beyond description, beyond even the liveliest imaginations of her guests, blazing with splendor and personal adornments, graced by women whose beauty is world-famed and by men who are distinguished in all walks of life, the scene entranced all who were permitted to gaze upon it.

All that the wealth of the great me tropolis could command in the markets of the world, all that the jewellers, the florists, the costumers, the epicures, the composers, the designers of the big city could give in response to that command, was bestowed with a lavishness and extravagance that was simply startling in its very munificence After a month of preparation, after

Mrs. Bradley-Martin had done everything that could be done to make a lavish display with the greatest secrecy, the ball was opened just before midnight. Hours before that, however, every street in the neighborhood of the Waldorf had been crowded with people, those who were the coming guests and the still greater numbers drawn by curiosity. Carriages came in an endless stream, discharged their occupants and rolled away. To those who looked on, and knew nothing of the world of detail, all seemed hurry and confusion, where, in reality, it was the perefection of regularity. Still, with the 700 odd guests, much time was needed to get all into the hotel, and they were, not all there when the ball was opened.

Every feature of the ball and all concerning it in the slightest was guarded closely. Mrs. Bradley-Martin, from the first, insisted that the ball was for her guests, and that the first intimation of the decorations should be received when the guests entered the ballroom. Arrangements for receiving the guests as they arrived were as nearly perfect as they could be. Carriages approached from Fifth avenue, east, through Thirfrom the carriages and went directly to the second floor of the hotel, where they were received by Mrs. Martin in the small ballroom. In this room Mrs. Martin stood on a dais, slightly raised, under a canopy of rare tapestries. The scheme of decorations in this reception room was that of the time of Louis IV. and before the dais passed the counterfeit presentments of all the prominent people of that time, to mingle in picturesque confusion with characters of other days.

After being received by the hostess the guests passed through a flower-lined corridor into the large ballroom. In the early portion of the evening dancing in the small ballroom on the not until all the guests had paid their first floor had been general, and it was respects to Mrs. Bradley-Martin, the nostess; in the small ballroom, and she had been escorted to the ballroom proper, that the fancy dress ball was declared formally opened. In the small gallery, where were the members of the Twenty-second Regiment band and the Hungarian band, the music suddenly stopped. There was silence for just a moment, to be broken by a flourish of trumpets as Mrs. Bradley-Martin and her escort, John Jacob Astor, entered the room. A moment later. they had taken their places at the head of the reom. There was another flourish of the trumpets, which told that the quadrille d'honneur, arranged by Mrs. William Astor, was about to be opened. The forming of the first figure, "The Salute," was like the turning of pages of history. The characters gathered from all sections of the room. There was Mrs. Bradley-Martin, wearing a Marie Stuart costume, copied from an old plate of that queen's time; John Jacob Astor, in a Louis VI. court costume; I. Town send Martin, as a cavalier of the court of Louis XIII., and Henry Lohr in Louis XV. court costume. From another section of the room came Mrs. Orme Wil son, looking picturesque in a Louis XVI. court dress of white and silver brocade. which followed the elaborate designs of the period, and Mrs. Whitney Warren, wearing a costume of pale blue brocade and silk, after the style of the time of Louis XV. Lispenard Steward closely followed his partner, Mrs. Whitney Warren, and looked elegant in his dress of a cavalier of the court of Louis XIII. The others of the 16 who took their places in this quadrille were Mrs. Lee Tailer, Craig Wadsworth, Miss Gerry, Center Hitchcock, Miss Lena Morton, J J. Van Alen, Miss Madeline Cutting, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

As these partners took their places and waited for the opening first bars of the music, the scene was the most impressive of the night. For, beyond these characters of action, about them make up the historically represented to the cheap brands. personages of the ball, the whole backgrounded by the natural flowers, the tin and Mr. Stewart. Then the side couples approached in a similar way four at a time, leaving an aigle in the centre, Mr. Astor and Mrs. Bradley-Martin promenading down the aisle, the other dancers bowing, then following in twos, then all returning to their original

As when, 200 years ago, when the quadrille d'honneur was danced at court, where the king and the queen took part in it, they were accorded due and proper honor, so, last night, Mrs. Bradley-Martin and Mr. Astor were given that honor as king and queen of the night. In those old days, too, the crown prince and princess stood beside king and queen at the head of the quadrille, so in the set of last night, these places were given to Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and

Robert Vancortlandt. After the first measure followed "The Figure" and "The Honor," both of which were more elaborate.

The second quadrille, which had been organized by Mrs. E. L. Baylies, was danced by Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. John J. Astor, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Mrs. Henry Sloane, Miss Edith Morton, Mrs. Van Rensslaer, Mrs. Alfonzo D. Navarro, R. D. Robbins, Worthington Whitehouse.

In another quadrille, organized by Mrs. E. L. Baylies, were several of the debutantes of the winter, among them bing Miss Evelyn Sloane, Miss Mae Van Alen, Miss Josephine Brooks and Miss Alice Babcock. For their partners were G. Beekman Hoppin, J. D. W. Cutting.

Robert Livingston and William Sloane. The cotillion, which was led by Elisha Dyer, Jr., was the event which had been looked forward to by the younger of the a rich costume, consisting of a cloak of royal purple velvet, lined with violet satin and embroidered with gold. The coat was velvet, embroidered with gold. The doublet, also of purple velvet, was slashed with violet satin. The tights were of violet silk, worn with shoes of the period, a hat with large ostrich maintained his reputation as a leader of fashionable dances by his executive ability, his ingenuity and his good nature. While, during the evening there wer light refreshments, it was not until after 1 o'clock, at the conclusion of Mrs. Bronson's quadrille, that the regular supper began. This was served at small tables in the winter garden. But this place would never have been recognized even by one who had been familiar with it. The 100 odd tables had all passed through the hands of the florist, and were so hidden by his art as to have lost all resemblance to bits of furniture. American beauty roses and white lilacs were banked so high that the guests seemed to eat from the top of a flower bed. Beyond the tables, and between the guests, so as to almost hide one from another, were decorations of spring flowers-tulips, lilacs, boganvillia and forsythia-to make the place a bower beauty and fragrance.

Several Spectators Were Knocked Down but No One Was Injured.

Boston, Feb. 11 .- A brisk fire in a sporting goods store on Cornhill, in the down-town district, made things quite lively for a time last night, especially when two heavy explosions of gunpowder shook the neighborhood and caused a general and indiscriminate shower of cartridges, rifles, revolvers, knives, decoy ducks, boxing gloves and other sporting goods upon the firemen and interested spectators.

The fire was on the first floor of the 4-story brick building at 11 Cornhill, occupied by W. Shafer & Sons, sporting goods. Two alarms were quickly rung in, but the fire made very rapid headway through the building. Before the firemen arrived, a perfect storm of exploding cartridges was falling, and, strange to say, nobody was seriously hurt. Just as the second alarm came in, a heavy explosion of gunpowder knocked over a large crowd of people who were standing in front of the building, and then followed a shower of glass and merchandise. A few minutes later a much heavier explosion came, and the big plate windows in McArthur's furniture store across the street were shattered and the furniture on exhibtion badly cut up by rifles and revolvers. Windows in other buildings on both sides of Cornhill and Brattle street were blown in, and the force of the explosion was felt fully half a mile away. An idea of feather, ruff and dagger. The total loss to all parties will be in the neighborhood of $40,000, of which about $3000 will be on plate glass windows. It is said that, with the exception of the glass, the property was fully insured. A detailed account of the damage done cannot be made, as it is impossible to determine how badly shaken the Shaefer building is, and the effect of the explosion on other buildings. The fire loss to William Shaefer & Sons will probably reach $25,000.

Boston, Feb. 11.-The annual meeting of the New England Amateur Rowing association was held in this city last the association to hold its annual Fourth of July regatta on the Charles river, under the auspices of the city of Boston, on July 5, that being the regular day for the celebration. His Honor Mayor Quincy offered a fine sum for the regatta, and said that the entrance fees of all actual starters would be refunded. Springfield was very anxious to have the regatta held there, and Cornelius J. Murphy, representing the Atlanta Boat club of that city, promised good money, good prizes and expenses. The committee, not wishing to use undue haste in deciding, postponed its action until next Wednesday, when a meeting of the executive committee will be held and a decision probably reached. A total of 16 clubs were represented at the meeting. The election resulted as follows President, Walter Stimpson of the Arlington Boat club; vice president, Arthur A. MORGAN CIVES UP. He Will Not Attemp to Secure Passage of Canal Bill.

Washington, Feb. 11.-Senator Morgan, champion of the Nicaragua canal bill, announced in the senate yesterday his abandonment of the measure for the present session of congress, and, thereupon, it was displaced by the bankruptcy bill. The senator made this move after a protracted contest, covering several weeks, which had disclosed that obstructive opposition could not be overcome. He gave notice that he would renew his advocacy of the bill at an early day of the coming extra session.

There is a tacit understanding that the consideration of the arbitration treaty will not be resumed until Monday next. This concession has been made by the managers of the treaty to the urgent necessity that is felt on all hands of advancing the appropriation bills as rapidly as possible, and of dis-posing of the bankruptcy bill and the conference report on the immigration The prediction is freely made by sever-

Washington, Feb. 11.-The navy department is securing a constant improvement in the quality of its armor riate. A recent test made at Indian Head demonstrated that it now possesses the best thin armor, at least, in the whole world. A four-inch plate repre senting some of the side armor of the battleship Kearsarge, that was well up in the bows, was fired at with a five-inch gan. Not long ago a shot was calculated as able to penetrate completely an armor plate one and a half times as thick as its calibre. In other words a five-inch shot would penetrate a plate 7½ inches thick. This four-inch plate, however, not only kept the shot Granite St., near the bridge, Quincy. out but it smashed it up, and the only mark left on the plate was a slight dishing in the center, not more than half an inch deep. This passed the plate. Then another shot was taken at it to ascertain the power required to perforate the plate. This was accomplished only by giving the shot the high velocity of 1985 feet per second, and even then the plate was not cracked.

Commissioner Wright Reports on Conditions of the Industrial World.

Effect of Employment of Women and Children.

Statistics Show That Proportion of Women to Working Class Is Increasing.

Washington, Feb. 12.-Congress has received the 11th annual report of the department of labor, which relates to report was prepared by Labor Commis-

As collateral information, an interest ing showing is made of the figures of the past three censuses concerning the employment of women. The proportion of females 10 years of age and over employed in all occupations in the United States rose in its relation to the whole number employed from 14.68 per cent in 1870 to 17.22 per cent in 1890, while males decerased in proportion from 85.33 per cent in 1870 to 82.78 per cent in 1890. Verdict of $4.19 Against Representative Newcomb.

Accused of Slandering the Quincy Point Ladies' Aid Society.

Judge's Charge in Full.

The witnesses in the mock trial of Representative Newcomb at Quincy Point are probably wondering whether they or the defendant were on trial. Certain it was that there were some awful insinuations against most of those who went on the witness stand, both for the plaintiffs and the defence.

The vestry of the church was improvised for a court room, and the room and ante rooms were densely packed with those interested in the trial. It would have been k hard to tell which side had the most friends.

The court came in with difficulty because of the crowd, and the prisoner nearly escaped from the two policemen who guarded him. The officers of the

MR. FAXON'S REASONS.

Why He Objects to Construction of

In view of the fact that it would be the height of folly for one who pays an assessed tax on $450,000 to oppose any enterprise that would advance the health, morals, or business interests of his city I invite your attention to some of my reasons against the construction of a sewer in Quincy at the present time.

1. Statistics show that the health of our people is excellent. 2. I believe that the project can be delayed five years without endangering the physical welfare of the community. 3. For several years only a small number would connect their premises with

Last Monday, Commissioner Knowlton, Contractor Howard, and an inspector of tne New England Insurance Exchange, visited the building, The inspector asked Curtis if the wiring was completed and he replied yes. cheered when he rose to respond to the address of Sir Clements Markham. Ir the beginning of his speech, he alluded in general terms to the universality of science, and the effect produced by Dr. Nansen's explorations and the writings by Captain Mahan upon naval subjects. He referred to the importance of the rule of the road at sea to come into operation next July. This, he said, was only the forerunner of greater things yet to be accomplished by agreements between nations. He made a direct allusion to the arbitration treaty, and inquired whether, with this important measure and the matter of the rule of the road at sea settled, it could not be believed that all other differences could be disposed of by arbitration. This was followed by loud and long-continued

Continuing, Mr. Bayard said: "We have here in person the lord chief justice of England, Baron Russell of Killowen, the greatest living advocate of that great principle. I have always doubt, then, if plain speaking can make them believe, that the real heart of the American people, for which alone I pretend to speak, is for a manly trust between the people of both countries." The conclusion of Ambassador Bayard's address was followed by prolonged cheers. The archbishop of Canterbury said, in responding to Mr. Bayard's address: "Ambassador Bayard has won the strongest regards of the people of England. He represens the side of the American character most like our own. We feel that the links which Mr. Bayard referred to bind us for all time. They will always remind us that we are of one blood. He spoke of the ambassador as "one who truly came as a messenger of peace; one who, while he has in no way lessened the rights and position of a great republic, has found it consistent with the loftiest patriotism to bring two great nations close together." In conclusion, Lord Chief Justice Rus-

CHANGED SHOES.

Young Viscount Petersfield was remarkable for three things, his intense bashfulness, his indecision of character and his abnormally small hands and feet. On the latter he particularly prided himself.

He was the most eligible of bachelors. Equally, of course, he was being everlastingly stalked by husband hungry mammas and daughters. But they could make nothing of him. Their most sirenic efforts simply frightened him.

But exemption was impossible. He was young, single, a viscount. He had $125,000 a year.

One autumn, three or four years ago, Lord Petersfield went down into Sussex to stay with his friends the Wentwarps, at Wentwarp hall, a very fine old country seat.

For one thing, they understood his character and did not worry him with excessive hospitality. And then, for another, the daughters of the house, Mabel and Maud-very pretty girls, too, by the way-did not run after him or make eyes at him. They were simply friendly and cordial with him.

Now Viscount Petersfield had contracted a deplorable habit of easing his pinched toes by kicking off his pumps during the progress of dinner and only resuming them just before he had to jump up in deference to the rising of the ladies.

He was rather sorry when he saw Lady Wentwarp preparing to make the signal, and he had to feel for his vacant pumps. He found them and got them on in time-phew! Certainly they were abominably tight! They seemed to throw him forward on his toes in a way to which he was not accustomed. Only as the last fair diner swept past him, on her way out, did he realize that his toes were being tortured in a pair of lady's shoes.

They were high heeled, of black satin, with large rosettes and silver buckles. He had no difficulty in recognizing them. They were Mabel Wentwarp's.

Then he saw how it was. An unintentional exchange. The young lady must have kicked off her shoes also, and, meaning to resume them, have unknowingly resumed his instead.

He decided that his best course was to slip away, on some pretext or other, while the gentlemen were still smoking their cigarettes; then to hurry up stairs to his bedroom and exchange the satins for a second pair of pumps, which he had fortunately brought with

Having decided on this line of action, he murmured—with a very red face—a few excuses and apologies to his host, and then performed a skillful and speedy exit with so much rapidity as to make it impossible for the black satins to be

Now, as he passed with rapid and nervous stealth along the corridor which led to his room, he happened to notice that one of the bedroom doors on the way stood open. He recognized whose room it was. It was Mabel Wentwarp's. In an instant he had popped them safely inside the door of her room and was proceeding with a lighter heart toward his own apartment at the end of the

On reaching his own room he turned up the gas and vas about to hunt out his second pair of pumps from a cupboard when his eyes fell upon his best pair—the pair which Mabel Wentwarp had appropriated-standing in a conspicuous position by his dressing table.

He saw how it was. Miss Mabel, having discovered her mistake, had had the promptness and delicacy to replace them thus in his room. It was certainly most tactful and considerate of her.

When they joined the ladies, Lord Petersfield still, however, felt rather nervous in case any of the fair guests might have shared Miss Mabel's discovery about the exchange of shoes. But he was soon set free from anxiety on this point by Miss Wentwarp herself, who, taking the opportunity to approach him as he stood for a moment alone, murmured, with a blushing, downcast

"I found out our little mistake, Lord Petersfield, and I at once restored your property to your room. Sh! No one knows anything about it. Ah!" (turning her eyes down upon his varnished toes). "I see that you have already reclaimed your own!"

At that moment Julia Slanderson swooped down upon her prey and to his great annoyance forcibly annexed him for the rest of the evening.

Next morning after breakfast the unfortunate viscount noticed that this persistent young lady was still hovering on the pounce. He evaded her at the expense of some skill, and slipped off into the dampest and most secluded portion of the garden to enjoy his cigar alone.

Mabel Wentwarp startled him by suddenly appearing at his side. Her face was white and distressful. Her eyes, he noticed, where bright with unshed tears. "Oh, Lord Petersfield," she exclaimed, "forgive my intrusion, but I saw you come out, and I have followed you, because I-I-have something I-I-must tell you." "I-I-trust there is nothing the matter!" remarked his lordship, looking embarrassed and conscious of a

And poor Mabel, unable to restrain her feelings any longer, began to sob. "Oh, dear! Pr-ray don't distress yourself, Miss Wentwarp."
"Oh, Lord Petersfield, I—I—don't

in a tone of evident dismay. "What "And also," Mabel went on hurriedly as if anxious to finish her painful disclosure, "she waited up there, spying in the dark, and saw you slip out of my room without your shoes on!"

"But, surely," began Lord Petersfield. "I-I-told her the truth," interposed the girl. "I-explained everything. She-she-scoffed at my version. She said she would-would-publish the scandal to the four winds of heaven. Oh, Lord Petersfield, what is to be "But, surely," stammered Lord Pe tersfield, who was naturally in a great state of mind, "people will accept our version rather than that of this vile scandal monger!"

"Alas," sobbed Mabel, "I wish I thought so! You see, Lord Petersfield, I cannot help recognizing the very unfortunate state of appearances. She will say that if-if-we had-any-anything to conceal we should, of course be ready with an explanation, and that even at that our explanation is lame and improbable. Besides she will enlarge and exaggerate and-and tellfalsehoods, until-oh, I had rather have died than have had this happen!"

The viscount was silent for a minute. A sudden idea, born of the circumstances, had flashed across his mind. He had never thought of Mabel in this light before. He would not have done so now unless the situation had forced it on him, but as he looked at her pretty. woeful face he realized that it was not such an unwelcome light in which to think of her after all.

"My-my-dear Miss Mabel, I-Imight, for all that Lady Slanderson knows to the contrary, have-have-acquired the right to-to-take youryour-slippers to your room."

"Oh, yes! It-it was not that. 1 s-sacrifice yourself to-to-save my reputation.'

"It wouldn't be much of a sacrifice," said his lordship. "Do you know, I am rather glad now that this-this-unfortunate situation has opened my eyes? It -it-shows me something I didn't realize before. I-I-oh, Mabel, will you?" "He is a noble man, mamma," said

"Don't be afraid of that, Mab. Your old mother will not give you away. It was a risky sort of joke, wasn't it, though it has had the happiest results, as it seems to have opened both your eyes?"-London Truth.

Cant Regarding Stage Setting.

This is the symbol used in Revelation to represent the churches of Christ. Joshua and Zerubbabel, the anointed ones, leaders in the rectoration, are renresented under the symbols of olive trees. As soon as Lorau's men saw him, they seized him and, despite their officers' commands. literally hacked him to pieces, uttering the most appalling yells at each stroke of their machetes. The other prisoners were released the next day and sent to Artemisa. In the train were provisions and some arms.

Senorita Martla, the beautiful daugh ter of a captain in the insurgent army, was captured by the Spanish at Mattanzas last Tuesday. CLOOMY OUTLOOK FOR CUBA. Unless War Soon Ends, Island Will Be Morally Blighted.

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 13.-An important Cuban letter, depicting the situation on the island, was received in this city vesterday. The letter came to Paul Rojo, who is well known as being prominent in Cuban circles, but the name of the author, further than that he is a Cuban, occupying a high position in Havana, is withheld, for reasons that are apparent. It may be stated, however that the letter is of a semi-official nature, and it is important for that reason.

Naturally, for myself and for all those people who have something to lose things look very gloomy, as the only hope for us now is the intervention of the United States, which would come like a blessing from God. Every day, in Havana, we hear the shots that tell of executions, and we have come to lose our pity. If this terrible war shall continue, Cuba will not only be materially ruined, but morally as well. LOOKS LIKE WAR. Turkey Preparing to Fight Greeks For Island of Crete.

London, Feb. 13 .- The Athens correspondent of The Daily News telegraphs that Turkey is forming the marauding bands of Albania into bodies This is a new lot. After these are sold we that will be employed to invade Thessaly.

The Greek government is fully alive to the danger in this direction, and is hastening troops to the frontier to repel any attiempted invasion of Grecian territory.

It is reported that a collision has already occurred between the troops and Albanians on the frontier.

Intense excitement prevails here. The newspapers have issued midnight editions containing a report that the Vali of Smyrna has chartered a steamer for the purpose of transporting troops to Crete, and this in face of the assurances given to the powers by the porte that Turkey would not send re-enforcements to the island.

The newspapers and the crowds in the street declare that the action of the vali is taken with the full cognizance of the porte, which has again proved, if proof is necessary, that not the slightest confidence can be placed in its assurances or promises. Hearty denunciations of the Turkish government are heard on every hand. The city is alive at this hour, and the who demand that the Grecian warships last year. shall prevent the landing of further troops in Crete.

It is believed here that orders to that effect have already been given to Prince George, and there is no doubt that he will fully carry out his instructions. In that case war with Turkey would probably result, unless diplomacy or superior force should be employed to divert Greece from her determination to protect the Cretan Christians, and also, perhaps, to bring about the annexation

Review of Wool Market.

He Explains the Second Variety of Long Suit Opening.

IX. A very striking illustration of the value of strength and as an invitation or encour- among leading colors on this side the waagement to partner to lead trumps has recently come to my notice. It is a deal played by two practitioners of the new (trump), K, Q; spades, J, 10, 8, 5, 4, 2; hearts, A, 3, 2; clubs, A, J. Here was aljustify the trump attack at once, but it was better first to see how the spades lay. Therefore the leader began with the S 2, showing (1) a spade suit worth playing the pool. The latter finds prices from for, (2) re-entry in either hearts or clubs, or both, and (3) either a long suit of trumps or a short suit centaining high cards. The leader's partner held: Diamonds (trump), A, J, 7, 2; spades, A, K, Q; hearts, J, 8, 6, 2; clubs, 8, 6. Partner won the first spade trick with the queen. Now comes the point. So informatory is the small card opening under the new system of play that partner could even thus early, after only one trick, read the leader's hand with accuracy and confidence. This is how he did it: "The spade suit must be headed by the jack, for otherwise the lead would have been the highest instead of the lowest card in it. If it contains only four cards, the leader must be very strong numerically in trumps, for otherwise he would not have opened low so weak a suit. If it contains five or more cards, the leader's trumps may not be long; but, if not, they must certainly be and queen. In either case we have virtually the whole spade suit between us, and, with my four excellent trumps, enough trump strength most probably to be able to exhaust them in defense of the spades. Moreover, although I am quite weak in the other two plain suits, the leader must have re-entry and protection in one or both of them, probably in both, on account of his having attempted the long suit game with a long suit apparently so weak. Therefore, after we have got the trumps out of the way and I have cleared the spades with my ace and king, he will The movement of prices is, on the and can place reliance in the information one who is versed in the advanced game who did this reasoning, therefore, immedi ately led trumps, and the deal was played

The Rain Engineer.

Three years ago the attention of the community was directed to the question of the artificial production of rain. The principle upon which rain was to be made, as it was commonly stated-viz, concussion of the air-was neither countenanced nor accepted by meteorologists. The results of the experiments were exactly such as were forecasted by men who knew the worthlessness of the claims then made and yet fully realized that rainmaking was nevertheless a scientific possibility. The rain engineer will some day be enrolled among the prohas closely followed and clearly comprehends the physical processes of cloudy condensation. He must be something of physicist, chemist and meteorologist combined. Problems such as Hertz solved in his graphic methods of following adiabatic changes in moist air or Von Helmholtz discussed in his papers on "billow" cloud formation will be appropriate work for him. The changes which a cubic foot of air charged with a given amount of vapor goes through as it moves from place to place in the atmosphere he will understand and control.

Air at sea level at a temperature of 80 11 grams of water vapor in each kilogram of air. If the pressure is suddenly changed from 750 millimeters to 687 millimeters, the temperature lowered about 15 degrees, certain conditons result. The air is in the condition of a soaked sponge and has all the water vapor it can hold. If the mixed air and vapor can be lifted about 4,000 feet, the rain engineer can ordinarily form a cloud or fog. Conversely, if he can increase the pressure and supply the requisite amount of heat, he can alter conditions so that no fog forms, or, if it has formed. cause it to disappear. Provided we can control the thermo-dynamic conditions we can condense the invisible vapor of the air into visible cloud and, on the other hand, change the visible fog into invisible vapor. trusts need not carry out the contract tains the best chess players of the two thus made.

CIVIL SERVICE A FARCE.

The Golden Case Ended-Frank Admission of Mayor Adams.

The celebrated Golden case, about which so much has been said for the past few weeks, has at last been settled and Officer Golden's name will remain on the elgible list until the first of May, when a new examination of candidates will be held.

The final hearing in the matter was held yesterday at the office of the Civil Service Commission in Boston. Chief of Police Hayden, Inspector McKay and Officer Ferguson were summoned as witnesses. Mayor Adams was also present.

Notice of the hearing was also sent to Officer Golden and his counsel, and they were invited to be present if they desire-They did not accept the invitation and no one was present in Officer Golden's interest. Chief Hayden was the first witness and was followed by Inspector McKay. After hearing this testimony the Commission thought that they had heard enough and Officer Ferguson was not called. As the Commission were somewhat in doubt as to what was desired by Mayor Adams he was called.

The Mayor said that he did not prefer charges against Golden to have his name removed from the list, but in order that another name might be certified, and as this had been accomplished he did not desire to press the matter any further.

The Commission decided to drop the case, and therefore as stated above Golden's name remains on the list until the first of May when a new examination is held.

An Echo of the Times.

A comparison of the fine work done this past week in church work and literary work, with the fact of so many card parties, suggests the idea that while "all work makes Jack a dull boy or girl," the ladies who have given careful study of the Russian country are a gainer in a new direction.

Life is earnest and at the close of the century when the whole world seems one country in interest, mind and heart are needed to lift the oppressed children of men. We need not go to Russia to find scope for sympathy. In our midst are needed all the Christian service and intelligence at our command. In Fitchburg, a large Whist club of fashionable ladies, pay each afternoon fifteen cents. This money is thrown into the treasury of their benevolent union which pays a young woman secretary a salary of five hundred dollars, and which does a vast deal of good among the poor there.

Metropolitan Water.

The report of the Metropolitan Water Board gives details as to the progress of the construction of the distributing system and says that there is little doubt but that at the end of 1897 the Chestnut Hill reservoir and Spot pond will be connected by one of the main lines, and connections will be made from the Chestnut Hill reservoir or Spot pond with the most of the cities and town in the metropolitan district.

The estimated value of the work to be performed under the 45 contracts awarded by the board and of the work remaining to be performed under the 11 contracts made by the city of Boston, when they were assumed by the board, is $3,641,811 34.

Mr. Lord Excluded.

The question of awarding the exclusive B franchise of the carriage service at the B Wollaston station has been finally settled by Superintendent French by awarding the service to Mr. F. A. Rogers and excluding Mr. Joseph A. Lord. For a quarter of a century, day and night, Mr. Lord has had his carriage at the Wollaston station. He Co has given excellent service. He is now an old man but his carriages and horses are of the best for such service and his drivers careful. Mr. Rogers has been a resident of Wollaston for about two years. He applied for the exclusive privilege and got it.

PLANS. SEWER

No Two Cities Seem to Levy Assessments the Same-Different Schemes for Quincy.

Considerable data has been obtained as to the methods of sewer assessments in other cities and towns, and of the ten presented herewith probably no two are alike. Some assess but 25 per cent., others 50, 70 and 75 per cent. Some assess by front foot some by area, and some charge an annual rental. The estimated average cost per year, of sewer, is from $6,500 to $14,150, but $10,000 is the common estimate.

The following tables will be of interest, and afford study for the taxpayer:

HESAW BANKERGAGE

A STORY OF THE NEXT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

He Tells a Reporter What He Would Do if He Were Plunged Into Poverty and Coula Get No Work, But Takes It Back-How . Sensational Story Was Nipped In the Bud.

Stories of Lyman J. Gage, the big Chicago banker who is to become President McKinley's secretary of the treasury, are now much in evidence, and scores of them, good and bad, many of them without the slightest foundation in fact, are going the rounds. But here is one that is absolutely true and has never been in print. It is related by Frank H. Brooks, a well known Chicago journalist, as one of his own experiences with the great banker.

Every Chicago newspaper man of character is the friend of Mr. Gage. Probably no man of prominence in Chicago is so accessible at all hours as he. His little room at the bank is always open-there is nobody at the door to take cards or announce visitors. You just walk in, and, no matter what your business or what fool errand you may have been sent on, the reputable newspaper man is always sure of a welcoming smile and cordial handshake.

Mr. Brooks told his story to a brother writer, now on The Globe-Democrat, in this way: "If you remember, about a year ago the Chicago paper I was atevery prominent man in the city interfor instance as 'Where and how did you Everyone invited. spend your first Christmas?' or 'Which do you remember in your boyhood days as being your most enjoyable Fourth of day. July?' No matter how trifling the question or how absurd. Lyman J. Gage, because of his ready accessibility and excessive good nature, was always sin gled out to be first visited.

"One day it fell to my lot to hunt up a lot of nabobs, such as C. T. Yerkes, Marshall Field, Sam Allerton, L. Z. to them this question, 'If you should St. Bernard. suddenly lose every dollar of your property, find yourself deprived of credit, work anywhere, what would you do?'

"I made for Mr. Gage the first thing, of course, as we always did. After the usual kindly greeting I fired my question at him. He gave me a quizzical such fool errand as that? What is journalism coming to?'

"Being assured that my assignment was genuine, Mr. Gage said, 'Well, put your question again.' "I repeated it.

"'If I should lose ever dollar I had and my credit too? Is that it?' Yes, sir.

"'Why, I would hunt a job, of course.

granted that it is-why, in that case I'd get a shovel and clean sidewalks or set up a peanut stand or do something like And Mr. Gage smiled confidently.

"'And suppose again nobody would give you a cent, the same as thousands are refused on the streets every night?' "Here Mr. Gage showed just a trace of impatience, and, waving his hand, said, 'Oh, well, d-n it, in that case I would steal, and you can tell ---- (the name of my editor) that I believe he would, too, under the same circumstances.'

"I said, 'Thank you, Mr. Gage,' and, grabbing my hat, made for the door. "Here, here, young man! Come back!' yelled Mr. Gage. But by that time I was half way out of the bank, and a scare head line, 'Lyman Gage Says He Would Steal,' had formed itself in my mind. He ran after me and sent a messenger to chase me, but I dodged into a saloon and made for the office. 1 had hardly got seated to write the story when the editor sent for me. I went to his room, and there was Mr. Gage, very much excited and flushed. "It is needless to say that my interview did not go."-St. Louis Globe-

Mrs. Leland Stanford has decided to close up the estate of her husband by disposing of the lands and personal property. From the proceeds the balances due the legatees, nearly $1,000,000, will be paid, and the residue is to go to the university at Palo Alto. Years may be required to carry out her purpose. GENERAL D. N. COUCH.

Gallant Old Soldier Dies After Long and Severe Illness.

Mexican War.

He Served With Marked Distinction All Through the Civil War,

South Norwalk, Conn., Feb. 13 .- General D N. Couch, the famous veteran soldier, died at his home on Isaacs street late last night, after a protracted Illness. His death was not unexpected, as, for the past few days, his condition was critical and it was known that the end was near. Funeral services will be held from St. Paul's church, Norwalk, Monday, and later the remains will be taken to Taunton, Mass.,, for interment Wednesday, previous to which there will be services held at St. Thomas' church in that city. Darius Nash Couch was born in Southeast, Putnam county, N. Y., July 23, 1622. He was graduated at the United States Military academy in 1846, and assigned to the Fourth artillery, with which he served in the Mexican war, gaining the brevet of first lieutenant Feb. 23, 1847, for gallant conduct at Buena Vista. He received his full commission on Dec. 4, served against the Seminoles in 1849-50, and in 1853, when, on leave of absence, he made an exploring expedition into Mexico.

Lieutenant Couch wrote an account of this expedition, entitled "Notes of Travel," but it is still in manuscript. He resigned on April 30, 1855, was a merchant in New York city in 1855-57 and engaged in manufacturing at Noroton, Mass., from 1858 until June 15, 1861, when he became colonel of the Seventh Massachusetts volunteers.

He was made brigadier general of volunteers in August, his commission dating from May 17, and on the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac was assigned a division in General Keyes' corps, with which he distinguished himself at Fair Oaks, Williamsburg, and Malvern Hill. He was promoted to major general on July 4, 1862, commanded a division in the retreat from Manassas to Washington, Aug. 30 to Sept. 2, and took part in the battle of Antietam, in Franklin's corps. He was soon afterward in command of the Second Army corps, and took a prominent part in Burnside's operations at Fredericksburg and Hooker's at Chancellorsville.

FINANCIAL REFORMERS.

Massachusetts Association Banquet Turns Into a Joint Debate.

Boston, Feb. 13.-The financial question received the consideration of the Massachusetts Reform club at its meeting last evening. It was probably the liveliest meeting that the club has had for some time, made so by the principal guest, Hon. Charles N. Fowler, congressman from New Jersey, taking issue with Professor Taussig of Harvard university on the question of how best to retire the national government notes.

It fell little short of being a joint debate, and the interest of the 100 or more

Congressman Fowler had made a capital address on the question of "Specific ment of a receiver would be disastrous. Remedies for the Evils of Our Present Currency System," which had been received with every evidence of approbation by the club. The chief points of his address were that the government notes should be gradually retired, national bank notes to be substituted for

Professor Taussig's speech was an academic discussion of the money question, in which he urged the retirement of the greenbacks as the first step toward a reform in the currency, the government then to devise a system of national bank currency that would be both

On May 30, 1889, Mrs. Jeffrey married Augustus Chapman of Norwich. They lived together for a few years, and one child was born to them. Chapman suddenly left, and nothing has been heard from him since. Mrs. Chapman, as she is known, then removed to Newtown. She seeks a divorce on the ground of de sertion, but whether that can be proved remains a question.

The court continued the petition for further order of notice, as the evidence failed to show that either of the respondents had ever been notified of the pendency of divorce proceedings.

Congregationalism has received a shock, and the ministers of that denomin tion are everywhere discussing the manner in which the Rev. Lyman Abbott has been handling certain parts of the Bible in the series of lectures which he has been delivering in Plymouth church, Brooklyn. "The Literature of the Bible" is his general, subject, and under this title he has taken up various Bible stories. The incident of Jonah and the whale he disposed of as a myth and

To say funny things in Henry Ward Beecher's old pulpit is regarded by many orthodox people as little less than sacrilege. Many Brooklyn ministers have answered Dr. Abbott in the course of their Sunday evening sermons, and the Manhattan Congregation al association, composed of ministers, has passed a resolution condemning such treatment of the Bible. One minister has even gone so far as to compare Dr. Abbott to Ingersoll and Thomas Paine.

Shod in high legged lace up boots, While a frog sat on a hurdle Smoking five cent cheroots. There were beetles riding butterflies. And crickets riding crabs, There were eysters in overshoes, There were elephants in cabs, But when a dog began to mew,

And thought it was a bark, I wondered what was coming, Till I heard a voice remark:
"Go away, go away! 'Tis the land of Topsy Turvy.
Do not stay.'' But I lingered, yes, I lingered,

For a monkey on a stick Sang a love song to an ostrich, And he called her "pretty Dick." It was very sweet and touching, Like the taste of apple pie, And a listening potato Had a seardnop in its eye. So I turned away discreetly,

With a sympathetic sneeze, And loosed the laces in my boots, To give my feelings ease. Then the rain came like molasses, And I nurmured, "What a shame That I didn't bring a bucket.' Till I heard a voice exclaim: "Go away, go away!
"Tis the land of Topsy Turvy.
Do not stay."

So I went, but now wherever People walk across my toes, Or some absentminded person Hangs his hat upon my nose, Or whenever things look yellow Through a bilious attack.

Or some clumsy handed waiter Trickles gravy down my back; When a sudden wind unkindly Shuts my fingers in the door, Or I sit upon a tin tack
And go dancing on the floor,
I recall that time departed

ARBITRATION TREATY.

Senators Trying to Reach an Agreement and Dispose of Matter.

New England Senators Have Gone on Record.

Sherman Will Endeavor to Present Satisfactory Amendments Today.

Washington, Feb. 13.-Senator Blackburn, in announcing in the executive session of the senate yesterday that he would probably soon move to postpone the further consideration of the arbitration treaty until the extra session of congress, brought out for the first time formally what senators have been saying in conversation about the impossibility of getting a vote on the ratification of the treaty at this session, and the necessity of getting it out of the way of other

Senator Blackburn's motion may not carry; indeed, it may not be pressed, because it will probably not be necessary for him to press it, since the action of postponing the consideration of the treaty until after the 4th of March will in all probability be taken without any formal motion or vote, unless Senator Sherman should make some motion of a test character, as he has intimated he may do. There were several speeches on the merits of the treaty, but these were interspersed throughout the entire proceedings with suggestions looking to the importance of speedily disposing of the treaty, either temporarily or permanently by agreeing to a postponement until the extra session or by a direct vote on the document, which would result either in its ratification or rejection. The suggestion which appeared to meet with to the postponement of further consideration until immediately after the 4th of March. There were innumerable short speeches during the day, but the principal addresses on the merits of the treaty were made by Senators Daniel, Stewart, Hoar, Lodge and Chandler. The proposition advanced by Senator Turple that any abrogation under the treaty would, under its terms, necessarily be submitted to the senate, just as we would any original treaty, formed the rasis of the proceedings. It was generally conceded by all those who spoke that, if there could be any assurance that this interpretation would be placed in the treaty, if accepted, there would be no especial opposition to its ratification. Senator Turple contended that no other position as possible, in view of the indisputable fact that the senate was a part of the treaty-making power of the United

Senator Daniel made an elaborate argument, taking a view radically dif-ferent from that advanced by the Indiana senator, and showing that, from his point of view, the government of the United States would, by the acceptance of the treaty, place itself in a position to Office, 4 Chestnut St., Quincy, Mass. make this country subordinate to England in many important respects.

He said that he had been willing to acing it. We have it by the roll for from 7 cept the treaty as reported by the committee, but that if it could be further amended, so as to render it more acceptable, without completely destroying its course should be taken. Senator Chandler announced himself as for the treaty if amended, as opposed to it if not amended, and as favorable to a postponement until the 6th of March. He said that the senate would best consider the treaty during the special executive session immediately following the inaugural of Mr. McKinley, when it would otherwise have nothing to do except to pass upon nominations. Senator Lodge said that his interest in the treaty was such, and that he was so anxious to sercure its adoption, that he would agree to any change in reason that would insure its acceptance. He would, he said, accept any amendment that might afford a better safeguard for the rights of this country than the treaty is now supposed to contain, or that might explain its ambiguous phrases. He believed that an amendment could be formulated which, while maintaining the integrity of the document, would still render it acceptable to Senator Elkins urged that the whole question should be postponed until the next session. Speeches were also made by Senators Vest, Vilas, Stewart, Blackburn and others.

An amendment suggested, which seemed to meet with general favor, provides for the insertion of the words "and to the acceptance of the treaty-making powers of the two governments" after the word "treaty" in the third line of the first article of the treaty. This amendment, it is claimed, would render it necessary to secure the approval of the senate to any negotiations, and thus avoid the objection that the senate had abrogated its power.

The statue of Abraham Lincoln, in the old hall of representatives, was draped yesterday in the American flag and wreathed with flowers, in honor of the 88th anniversary of his birthday, but the house did not suspend business. He further says that the queen was forcibly confined in the Iolani palace, and, being told that those she loved, her personal friends, were awaiting execution, signed the abdication as the only means to save them.

"The ring of adventurers knew their vocation," says Mr. Palmer. "Had they proposed her immediate death, they ment." He further says that, not only der duress, but that it was worthless for another reason; it was not her legal signature. Mr. Palmer, who refused to admit that his profession. he speaks for Liliuokalani by direction. closes his card by this statement, perhaps significant of the future intentions. "No question is ever settled until it is settled right, and that the whole Hawaiian matter should be properly reviewed is the opinion of a great many of the people of the United States.'

The Four Sunbeams.

Four little sunbeams came earthward one day, Shining and dancing along on their way, Resolved that their course should be blest. "Let us try," they all whispered, "some kind ness to do.

Not seeking our own pleasures all the day Then meet in the eve at the west."

One sunbeam ran in a low cottage door And played "hide and seek" with a child on the floor

Till baby laughed loud in his glee
And chased with delight this strange playmate so bright,

The little hands grasping in vain for the light That ever before them would flee. One crept to a couch where an invalid lay And brought him a dream of the sweet sum mer day,

Its bird song and beauty and bloom, Till pain was forgotten and weary unrest, And in fancy he roamed through the scenes he loved best. Far from the dim, darkened room.

One stole to the heart of a girl that was sad And loved and caressed her until she was glad And lifted her white face again, For love brings content to the lowliest lot And finds something sweet in the dreariest spot

And one, where a little blind girl sat alone, Not sharing the mirth of her playfellows, shone On hands that were folded and pale And kissed the poor eyes that had never known

That never would gaze on the beautiful light Till angels had lifted the veil.

At last, when the shadows of evening were falling And the sun, their great father, his children was calling,

Four sunbeams sped into the west.
All said, "We have found that in seeking the pleasure Of others we fill to the full our own measure."

Why He Wasn't Particular.

Joseph A. Iasigi, Turkish Representative at Boston, Arrested.

Which Were In His Hands,

Boston, Feb. 15 .- Joseph A. Iasigi, Turkish consul at Boston, was arrested his wife have been leaders among the

From the facts which counsel on either claimed he has embezzled, had endeavored to obtain an accounting from Iasigi in the civil courts.

General Francis Peabody, who is acting as counsel for the Derieux heirs, who reside in France, says that he has given Iasigi-every opentunity to produce the "My position," said Mr. Peabody, "of course, prevents me from discussing the case as fully as I might. I have caused the arrest of Iasigi, acting as counsel for Pierre Charles Derieux and Charles Armand Antoine Berger de la Villardere, the beneficiaries of these securities. The arrest was caused because Iasigi failed to produce about $250,000 worth of securities which he held. I have positive and convincing proof in support of the charge of embezzlement of these securities."

The warrant for the arrest was obtained in the local court Friday after noon, after Iasigi had failed to appear in the supreme court, where, it is said, he had promised General Peabody to produce the securities. Some difficulty was experienced in locating Iasigi, as he had already left for New York, but late Saturday night the local officials were notifled of his arrest.

been made on all his property in this city and his bank account. The Derieux fortune amounted to about $300,000 or $400,000 when, in 1849, the testator died. Every three months the income was sent to the heirs, who continued to live in France. Nothing appeared to cause difficulty. In April last the usual amount of the income was sent to France. Since then, it is said, nothing has been paid over to the heirs. This an investigation. But it dragged along without result until six weeks ago, when counsel was employed ,and the power of attorney to Iasigi was revoked.

An effort to get a list of the securities themselves failed. Mr. Peabody, who had received a new power of attorney from France, demanded to be shown the securties, so as to be satisfied that he (Iasigi) still had them. Mr. Iasigi's repeated promises to do so were not fulfilled. Coudert Bros. of New York then came to the case, and some correspondence suggested the possibility of litigation over the ownership of the securities, ·which resulted in the attempted hearing in the injunction Friday. Moorfield Storey, the counsel for Iasigi, absolutely refused to talk of the case.

Iasigi was held in $10,000 bail at New York to await proceedings to secure his extradition to this state. Requisition papers are now in New York, and the accused's counsel will be given a hearing

The treaty then is the act of the president and the senate. It is quite apparent that it was not intended that the action of the senate should be a mere perfunctory duty and that the requirement of two thirds majority was inserted because the framers of the constitution were impressed with the importance of treaty making. The senate being a part of the power which creates treaties, it cannot rid itself of the responsibility of seeing that they are properly made. It is as incumbent upon us to give treaties due consideration as upon the executive to do so. The senate being charged with this duty of advisement in the construction of a treaty cannot transfer that duty to the president or anyone else.

King George Said to Be Determined to Annex the Island.

Commander of Grecian Flotilla Warned by British.

Foreign Troops Are In Possession of City of Canea.

London, Feb. 16 .- From one of the ambassadors in London, whose name cannot be published, a reporter has obtained the following information:

The King of Greece is determined at all costs to carry out the annexation of Crete. To this end he has the complete sympathy and every possible assistance upon the part of the queen, the Prince of Wales, the royal family of Denmark and the czar, consistent with the necessary official attitude of the powers, in view of the Turkish situation. An agreement of the powers, which will be promulgated today, provides for the occupation of Canea, Heraklion and Retimo only, and they will prevent any landing of troops or ammunition at these points.

Instructions have already been wired to the commanders of the foreign war ships, ordering them to prevent landings at Canea, Herkalion and Retimo, but to use force only after all other means are exhausted.

According to a dispatch received here from Athens, the Russian minister to Greece has openly declared that Russia is opposed to any scheme for the annexation of Crete by Greece, and it is further stated that the Austrian charge d'affairs had an interview recently with M. Shouzes, the Grecian minister for foreign affairs, when the former demanded explanations of the course adopted by Greece.

A dispatch to The Chronicle from Athens says that the commander of the English ironclad threatened the commander of the Greek cruiser, and told him that he would sink his boat if he fired at the Turkish transport.

The Chronicle gives the substance of an interview between Prince George of Greece and the British admiral off Canea, and vouches for its absolute correctness. The prince, having admitted that his orders were to prevent the disembarking of Turkish troops, by force, if necessary, the admiral, without any reservation, declared that he had strict orders to use every means in his power to prevent the execution of the prince. However much he might regret it, he had no option in the matter. He then desired to know the prince's intentions under the circumstances. Prince the service with which he had been entrusted to the letter.

The Chronicle, editorially, denounces in a highly indignant manner the foregoing treatment of a friendly prince and nation, and says that it will cause a thrill of passionate shame to enter the heart of every man caring for freedom The Chronicle's editorial then exhorts Greece, in God's name, to go on.

The Times, in its editorial columns, applauds the naval occupation of the Island of Crete as a sensible act and as practical statesmanship. A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Vienna says that M. Delyannis declined to accept the responsibility for warlike action, and resigned. The king, however, refused to accept the resignation The Rome correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Crete now practically belongs to Greece. If Turkey accepts the situation, the marines will withdraw, and the Crete de facto will pass under the sovereignty of Greece. The Grecian government, it is asserted, has signified its assent to this arrangement, and Prince George and his flotilla will be withdrawn from Cretan waters. A dispatch to The Times from Constantinople says that the porte is send. ing a note to Greece, and threatens to break off diplomatic relations unless the Greek squadron is withdrawn from Turkish waters.

Reports From Greece.

Athens, Feb. 16 .- Replying to the collective note of the powers, the Grecian government has declared that its intervention in affairs in Crete is justified by the massacres there, and that it is not due to a desire to disturb the island. New Haven, Feb. 17 .- Elias B. Serearly yesterday morning. It was at first believed he had been murdered, but developments show that he was the victim

The first intimation the family had of the shocking accident was about 7 o'clock a. m., when one of the servants found the fearfully mutilated body of the young man on the front porch of the residence. In the breast was a gaping wound, made by the contents of a double-barrelled shotgun; one hand was almost completely shot off and shot was distributed all over the body.

Near the body was found a shotgun besmeared with blood, with broken stock, evening. Professor Egbert C. Smyth of while all about the snow was trampled and gave every appearance of murder and a desperate struggle. The accident was brought about by the young man trying to kill some dogs that were attracted to the premises by the smell of a freshly butchered pig. Their barking disturbed him early, and, taking his father's double-barrelled gun, he went out to the porch to shoot the animals. He tried to fire at them, but the gun did not explode, and he evidently decided club the dogs with the gun, and the weapon was discharged. His father heard him shouting at the dogs, and a few moments later heard a double report from the gun. No outcry or noise of any description followed, and, supposing that his son had fired at the dogs and returned to his room, he paid no further attention to the incident.

The victim of the accident was 28 years old, and leaves a widow and two small children. He was the only son of seven Adopted Fcb. 8, 1897.

In regard to the Metropolitan water supply, the board say "When the subject to form the sewerage commissioners, that a house-owner ought to be willing to more and the sewerage commissioners, that a house-owner ought to be willing to more and the council County in 1895, the town of the General Court in 1895, the town of the sewerage commissioners and unjust. But inasmuch as assessments may levied on all abutters for the construction of sewers, there should be no legal objection to levying rentals or yearly assessments upon all abutters. Then it would not be necessary for the sewer commissioners and the board of health to quarrel, and the abutters would not be so backward about entering. At the same time abutters would not be paying more than is now proposed under the assessment plan, for any apparent excess would be THE COMMITTEE ON LIQUOR saved on taxes. All Went to Washington.

About 200 were at Hancock hall Tuesday evening at the stereopticon lecture on Washington, but it is said that this did not represent half of the tickets which were sold in aid of Mr. Candlin's contest for the Globe prize. Excellent pictures of McKinley, Hobart, Bryan, Sewall, Wolcott and of Mr. Candlin were shown, also views at Washington and en route, and at the close a series of humorous scenes.

There was enthusiasm for Mr. Candlin at every possible opportunity, and as he is one of the six today they intend that he shall be on the final count.

Those working for Mr. Candlin desire that all votes be sent to them today or tomorrow as it takes considerable time to stamp large numbers.

APPEAL TO THE SENATE. Petition From Liverpool Churches In Regard to Ang'o-American Treaty. Boston, Feb. 17 .- A petition which was adopted by the churches of Liverpool last Sunday, asking the United States senate to accept the arbitration treaty, has been cabled to a Boston society. The petition has been forwarded to Senator George Hoar at Washington. It is as follows:

The Christian churches of Liverpool have heard with deep concern that the adoption of the arbitration treaty between England and the United States is likely to be frustrated by the amendments which are being proposed in the United States senate. They acknowledge the inalienable right of the American people to protect their national interests, but they feel they are justified in appealing to the senate, and in asking their brethren across the Atlantic, members of sister churches, to consider the disastrous results to the cause of peace which must ensue if the negotiations of such a treaty should be found impossible be tween kindred nations. They therefore petition the senate to accept the treaty as signed by the representatives of the two governments, and entreat all Christian people throughout the United States of America to exercise their influence on behalf of a treaty which will not only tend to make war impossible, between England and America, but will open the way to the adoption of similar agreements, throughout the civilized world, and will help to bring about the peaceful settle ment of all international disputes.

SHORTAGE MADE GOOD. Plymouth's Treasurer Repays Ten Thousand Dollars Which He Had Used.

Plymouth, Mass., Feb. 18.-George S. Dyar, the clerk and treasurer of this town, has confessed to embezzling town funds to the extent of $10,000. The confession came as a result of discrepancies found in his accounts by the town auditor, James T. Thurber, who is also one of Mr. Dyar's bondsmen. The actual figures of the shortage are said to be $10,240, but the town will not lose anything as Mr. Dyar has made good the

The story of Mr. Dyar's shortage created a great stir in the town, as he was very well known, prominent in political circles and well liked in society and church organizations. He became town clerk temporarily in 1894, owing to the illness of Clerk Curtis Davie, and was elected to the office in 1895, holding it until this time. The embezzlements, according to the selectmen, began a year ago, and were first found through suspicious irregularities which brought out an investigation by the selectmen through the auditor. The town was amply covered, however, by a $30,000 bond, on which were William S. Morrison, Edgar D. Hill, Charles Quincy, Mass. T. Holmes, James T. Thurber and Harvey N. T. Hubbard.

Tenth Anniversary.

It was ten years ago that a well known young man of Quincy and a young lady of Brockton in conversation came to the same conclusion, as many others are constantly doing, that the only thing needed to make their happiness complete was to join hands in the holy bonds of matrimony, and henceforth live and do for each other. The young man was Mr. Charles Henry Penniman and the fair bride Miss Alice Stock of News in "City of Presi-

Time passes quickly and as the year 1897 dawned upon them, and they paused a moment to look backward, they realized that ten long years had quickly sped onward since they had vowed to love and cherish each other. The fact of the approach of this tenth anniversary also became known to some of their friends who on Wednesday evening gathered at their pretty home on Orchard place to help them celebrate the event.

It is needless to add that they were made welcome and that the few short hours of the evening passed all too quickly with whist. Shortly before midnight the guests were invited to the dining room where a wedding supper was served, and at midnight when they took their departure it was with many wishes for continued happiness and prosperity.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Penniman were presented by Mr. E. Frank Mitchell, in behalf of those present, with a little remembrance of the occasion, in the shape of a pair of silver sugar tongs. Prizes for the best whist scores were awarded Mr. E. Frank Mitchell and Mrs.

NEW SPRING ATTIRE.

Stylish Coats and Skirts and How They [Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.-The empire, directoire, Louis XV and XVI are all distinct styles, and every one of them is shown among the season's newest gowns and garments. The empire coats with flaring collars, these sometimes plain, but more often slashed in hatchet shaped tabs, are among the best of the novelties in wraps. These coats flare at the bottom and have one wide double box plait in front or two narrower single ones. These are sometimes fastened invisibly and in other cases have tongue tabs which reach from under the plaits and button to the coat, nearly always double breasted. The bottom and indeed all seams are tailor finished. The smooth faced cloths are the only ones used for these stylish coats. Some have plaits in ing out in the bottom, while others are so cut that there is but one plait, and that is "sprung" and forms a trumpet. A very few have the straight box effect

There is a new skirt called the octa gon. It has eight breadths, and each is gored on both sides. The gores are rather narrow. The effect of this skirt is that of a half closed umbrella, and, though At the whist party at the Granite City | the three back breadths are arranged in organ pipe folds, it is not a pretty skirt or a graceful one. Still, they are made for those to whom something striking is as necessary as their daily food.

The jacket is to remain with us, and it will be worn well into the summer. The zouave, bolero, Eton and figaro are all variations of the same style, and, with the many fancies in trimming, the number seems endless. They are adapted alike to evening, street and home gowns, and every one wears them, from the tiny tot to the great-grandmother. On many new gowns, especially those for young ladies whose figures are not too well rounded out, bretelles are placed. These reach from the belt in the back over the shoulders and to the belt in front, widening at the shoulders, where they are frequently pinched up to form caps to the sleeves, and narrowing near the belt. They are pretty and may be made of any suitable material tle passementerie along the edge-in that is required is that they shall be lined with something suitable as a background. Perhaps the most serviceable style is black velvet. The bretelles made of this are lined with black or colored taffeta and have small flaps arranged at the top of the shoulders on the underside, which are to fasten them to the dress by means of safety pins. The bretelles are fastened to the belt only, and the belt is not sewed to the dress, so that the set of bretelles and belt can be easily transferred to any other gown, and the velvet bretelles are suitable for any dress, from thick wool to silk, muslin and gingham.

Young girls will wear an unusual quantity of plaid this season. The wool plaids are very pretty, particularly those where the soft browns and greens mingle. Some are large patterned, others scarcely more than pinhead checks. The shepherd's plaids and fine blarney tweeds are very stylish. Velvet and braid, with once in awhile a few bright buttons put on in Breton style, form the most tasteful trimming, and also the most serviceable. Full waists are the best liked, for two reasons-they give the wearer a chance to grow, and they disguise the uniformed figure and make it graceful.

Another outdoor gown for a young lady was of fancy cheviot in light biscuit and brown. The skirt was untrimmed. The waist was a queer arrange-

The preceding mild winters had lulled us into a false security as complete as it was unwise. Cattle and sheep by thousands were feeding far from barns and sheds. She chose for her initial piece "Star Bright," a piece which has been made familiar through the Captain January stories by Laura E. Richards. It is essen tially a story of the sea and the nautical atmosphere lends to its rendition a most peculiar charm, requiring great diversity of expression. It is as "Star Bright" that Miss Sherman shines. She envelopes the part of the little child cast up by the sea, with a charming and wholesome fashion eculiarly her own.

Bonds for Grand Jury.

Nellie M. Henderson his 13 year old stepdaughter, came up for hearing at the District Court in Quincy this morning, Before the case was called, Albert P. Worthen, who had been engaged by Card J. F. McGrath, Natick high, as counsel, withdrew from the case, leaving Emma L. Card's wife was not present at the hearing this morning, having refused to testify against him and has evidently relented her part of the disclosure.

Card was first brought to public attention last July when he was arrested and arraigned for manslaughter in causing the death of C. L. Henderson, by whom he was employed as a fa:m hand. Before the case came to trial Judge Humphrey held an inquest on Henderson's death.

The testimony at the inquest showed that Card was employed as a farm hand by the said Henderson; that he was living in the family of the decessed, and that he was intimate with the wife of his employer; that he was unfriendly to Henderson and that on the morning of the 10th of July, after some angry words between the deceased and his wife, Card struck Henderson a severe blow in the face, breaking the ower jaw and knocking him down; that while prostrate, he was kicked upon the chest and side and a fracture of the rib was caused which induced pneumonia, which resulted in the death of Henderson on the second day after the assault.

Upon this testimony Card was held for ne went to Braintree and married Henderson's widow, and for a while everything was quiet. Some ten days ago Mrs. Card, while in a fit of anger stated some facts about Card's ntimacy with her daughter Nellie M. Henderson, aged 13 years. Acting upon this he was arrested and arraigned Feb. 9. The case was continued, however, until

In the meantime the State society had taken charge of the little girl and on her was disclosed. Evidence was also obtained to warrant the issuing of another warrant against Card for felonious assault upon Horses clipped at Stable when requested. Minnie C. Henderson aged 15 years.

It is understood that since these cases have come up, new evidence has come to would not be surprising if District Attorney Harris reopened that case, and that when the assault cases are called in April, Card may find another and more serious complaint confronting him.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick J. Whalan paid his fine of $5 for runkenness. The continued case of Harry Price for keeping a common nuisance at Quincy came up and he was fined $70.

After the court had imposed the fine, Oct. 26. Price's wife with tears in her eyes, made a touching appeal to His Honor for mercy, but without result. She then called upon Henry H. Faxon with her tale of woe and appealed to him to give her money enough to pay her husband's fine, to keep him out of jail. Henry however did not take kindly to her entreaties and Price will therefore go to jail.

A foreign press notice of the Lutteman sextette will be timely: A paper in Brandenburg, Germay said: "The Swedish concert last evening rejoiced, as was expected, a large audience, which was taken by storm. True Chivalry.

"What is the age of chivalry, Aunt Penelope?" "Those good old times when men fell in love with women over 40."-Chicago Record.

A Call. I saw her flush. In each blue eye a dancing light, Her red lips pouting with delight; Her round cheeks were roses bright. I saw her flush. "My hand is best!" she cried in glee. "Mine all are red—yours, aces three!
The pot, the pot belongs to me!"

I saw her blush. I saw her flush. "Your hand is best, Maude," then 1 say: "May I not hold it, love, alway?"
Her eyes quick to the carpet stray.

I see her blush. I watch her blush. "Let us trade hands," I softly plead.
"One queen for life is all I need." "You are my king," my love agreed.

I saw her flush!

Greece Apparently Disregards the Powers.

War Liable to Break Out on Border at Any Moment.

Canea, Feb. 19 .- Rumors have reached here of a wholesale massacre of Mussulmans at Sitia, a town in the eastern extremity of Crete, some of the reports placing the number of killed at 2000, which includes almost the entire Moslem population of the town.

It is said that men, women and children were killed indiscriminately by the Christfans. It is impossible at present to confirm the deepest anxiety here. General Bor, who is in command of the gendarmerie at Canea, has sent two Italian officers of the gendarmerie to Sitia in a gunboat to inquire into the truth or falsity of the reports. It was rumored that Greek troops had occupied the town of Sitia, but up to a late hour no confirmation could be obtained. Hundreds of refugees are arriving here from all parts of the island. Most of them are Moslems who have fled from their homes, fearing the vengeance of the Cretan Christians or their allies, the Greek soldiery. Shortly after eight o'clock past president James Rapson, opened the concert with a few well chosen words of welcome. After which the following program was rendered: Quincy Male Quartette consisting of Wm. Warmington, 1st tenor; Q. Pierce, 1st bass; J. E. Glover, 2d tenor; and G. Turner, 2d bass.

The various efforts were well received: responses being called for in almost every case; and the generous applause of the large audience was well merited because of numerous easy chairs and a couch, while the unusually high order of the entertainment. A special feature of the programme was the character sketch, and exhibition of double ball punching by William Donovan and Prof. Robertson. The acting of these gentlemen was excellent, and the manner in which they made that ball move, was nothing less than marvellous. This fact there is nothing lacking to make the feature took the audience by storm, and the clever ball punchers received an ovation. About eleven o'clock the stirring strains of Wilson's orchestra announced that the ball had opened. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spargo led the grand march, and were followed by over two hundred couple.

When the dancing was in full swing, the scene within the hall was beautiful in the extreme. Pretty women with sparkling eyes and lovely dresses, and men faultlessly attired in evening costume swayed to and fro to the rythm of the music, making a scene well calculated to please the eye and call forth warm admiration.

With the exception of a short interval for refreshments, the dance went on and was kept up with spirit until between four and five o'clock in the morning, when the assembly dispersed, and the eleventh anniversary celebration of the order of the Sons of St. George, came to a close.

He writes to the Ploughman: "I noticed, in reading an item in your Poultry column, that the writer says he gets 20 eggs from 100 hens and thinks he ought to get double that this winter. Well, he had and three times that, certainly he ought to get two and one-half times that at least. My flock of 125 hens laid in January from 70 to 84 eggs daily, and they are continuing to do the same now in February."

Quincy Club to Entertain in New Quarters.

A Brief Sketch of This Popular Organization.

And a Description of the Rooms They Will Occupy.

The formal opening of the new rooms of the Quincy Club in the Savings Bank building will be held tonight from 7 to 10

The Quincy Club is a purely social are interesting.

It was during the latter part of the year 1894 that several young men conceived the idea of forming a club and renting rooms Masons, Clan McGregor, Granite Cutters which would furnish them a home in which the long winter evenings might be passed in a pleasant manner.

Other young men were induced to go with them and the rooms over Crane's furniture store were engaged. One night assembled there to form, what is now, the Quincy Club. The rooms at that time Prominent among Quincy's many excel- were anything but inviting. No curtains lent benefit associations stands the Granite covered the windows, no carpet covered the

There were no chairs even and that the organizers might not have to stand, a few larger or more representative gathering. A old shoe boxes were secured for seats and conservative estimate would place the tables. Although this building is not quite completed the club has moved into its rooms and they are beauties. They occupy a suite of three rooms in the upper story, all of which are connected by folding doors. The walls are prettily tinted in attractive shades forming a background for many handsomely framed pictures.

The front room is occupied as a parlor and reading room. Here is the piano, on the table are all the important daily, weekly and monthly publications.

The second or middle room is the card room, and here are found numerous tables for the enjoyment of games.

The third or rear room is the billiard and pool room, for the club has added a billiard table besides its two pool tables. There are also numerous closets and in which Colonel Lee of the Fortyfirst Illinois sends over the veteran camps when he declares more disastrous charge during the war than that Illinois brigade at Jackson, Miss., July 12, 1863. This charge very closely parallels the one made at Petersburg, July

First Maine Heavy artillery. The numbers actually engaged in them were about the same, the odds in both cases terribly against the assailants and the losses about equal. Both were useless, inexcusable slaughters, of which it could well be said that such is not war, but murder. The only relieving feature, and one common to both affairs, lies in the glorious courage displayed by the men. They faced death gallantly, and those who came out from the jaws of death clung to their colors until victory at last crowned our arms. This is the story of Colonel Lee, who was twice wounded that day:

"On July 5, 1863, just after the Union army had captured Vicksburg, with its 27,000 prisoners and all the paraphernalia of the forts, with the thousands of small arms, General W. T. Sherman was ordered by General Grant to proceed to Jackson, Miss., and drive the Confederate army under General Joseph E. Johnston from Jackson and the Mississippi valley. He took with ston and his army evacuated Jackson, him about 35,000 men. Among that number were Lauman's Fourth division of the Thirteenth Army corps, commanded by General E. O. C. Ord. The Union troops closed in on the city and drove the Confederate army back into their heavy breastworks. The city was invested from Pearl river on the north to the Mississippi Central railroad on the south. On Saturday the Fourth division came up and was ordered to take up a position on the south, and Sunday morning was sent across the railroad, and Colonel Isaac C. Pugh's brigade, composed of the Twenty-eighth Illinois, Forty-first Illinois, Fifty-third Illinois and Third Iowa infantry, was selected to fill up the gap between the railroad and the Pearl river and to drive the enemy into their works. There was no thought on the part of General Sherman that there would be an assault made on the enemy's works, for he says he was four miles away on the Clinton road at the time of that charge and knew nothing of it. We had been maneuvering all morning in the timber, driving the Confederates back and slowly advancing until we had them into their works and total, 162, or 73 per cent. There were us He touched the leper with His fi had gone to the edge of the timber that lay along the open field in front of their works. Colonel Pugh saw that to advance farther meant an assault or sure death in the open field. He ordered the men to lie down, which was done, to protect themselves from the shells of the enemy, which were flying over our heads in a lively manner. Just then an orderly rode up to General Lauman and handed him an order, which he read and immediately ordered Colonel Pugh forward.

"Schreely had the order been given until the remnant of these four old regiments, about 900 men in all, moved forward with a terrific cheer that made the very earth almost tremble. Forward they go, right into the very jaws of death, for they are facing the famous New Orleans Light artillery, one of the finest batteries in the war; also Mebane's Tennessee battery and Cobb's Kentucky battery and General Breckinridge's division of veteran Confederates, behind impregnable breastworks.

"On goes the charging column; but, see, they are falling like wheat before the sickle. The batteries are using double charges of grape and canister on them and the very air is filled with leaden hail. A section of the Fifth Ohio battery follows up the charge as far as it dares to go, and see those gallant boys! Every horse is killed and almost every man who belonged to the battery has gone down in the struggle to help out the infantry. Colonel Pugh, as soon as he could make his voice heard above the din of battle, gave the order for the recall. But it was too late, for many a brave boy had gone down that day to rise no more. Oh, the carnage of that hour, the sad havoc of some officer's mistake! Out of those 900 who went into this charge history gives the figures that 645 were killed and wounded. There were a few made prisoners of war who had charged over the enemy's

"Hundreds of boys in blue were sleeping their last sleep on that fated field. The colors were the special targets for the enemy's artillery. The blue field flag of the Forty-first Illinois had two of the color bearers wounded and four killed. The last one to hold this flag was Sergeant Samuel B. Hall of Company F, now living at Ashmead, Neb. He was wounded twice. The last time he was shot he fell near the rebel works and two big Johnnies took his flag from him. They took it to General Beauregard's headquarters, whence it was sent to Richmond as a trophy of war and remained there until the close of the war, when the flags were taken to Washington, and this flag was returned to E. T. Lee by the secretary of war, March 24,

"It is now in Memorial hall at the statehouse at Springfield, Ills., where it can be seen, stained with the blood of neath its folds that day at Jackson. The color bearer of the Fifty-third Illinois was Sergeant George Poundstone of Ottawa, Ills. He had carried his flag almost to the rebel works, and stopping by a small tree the gunner of one of the pieces of the New Orleans artillery leveled his gun at him and his flag. When he saw that he was about to be taken, T IS a bold and he said, 'They can't get my flag unless ghastly challenge | they get me.' And reaching up he tore it from the staff and was in the act of putting it in his bosom when the artilleryman fired, and the shell struck brave Poundstone, almost severing his head city, the leading thought is the samefrom his body. His flag was taken namely, that the Lord is our keeper, from him by the rebels and sent to and we may trust Him in all the vari-Richmond with the others. It was also ous phases of life when there is trouble returned, and should you ever visit Memorial hall you will see this old flag, saturated with the blood of George made by Pugh's Poundstone, along with the other colors of the Fifty-third Illinois.

"The recall was sounded, and what was left of that gallant brigade rallied around the remaining colors at the timber whence they had only recently emerged. There were gathered around the old stars and stripes of the Forty-18, 1864, by the first Illinois regiment 47 men, many of whom had been slightly wounded. Sergeant H. M. Streever, now living at flag torn and riddled with bullets and of heaven and earth." And again he shells he brought it off the field in trinever forget. Over two-thirds of the men who had gone into the charge had been killed and wounded or taken prisoners. It was a fearful mistake on the part of someone, and the men have always blamed General E. O. C. Ord for the blunder. General J. G. Lauman was placed under arrest and the command given to General A. P. Hovey, late governor of Indiana. General Lauman returned to his home in Iowa and without any investigation being made. His mind became deranged brooding over this fearful charge. He always said that he was not to blame for this great loss of men.

"On the 16th of July General Johnand after our wounded had been cared for the army returned to Vicksburg. There was no charge during the war that was more disastrous to the number engaged than the charge at Jackson, Miss., July 12, 1863."

Colonel Pugh's brigade numbered that day, according to his official report, 880 officers and men. It was composed as follows: Forty-first Illinois, Lieutenant Colonel John H. Nale, strength 338; Fifty-third Illinois, Colo-Iowa, Colonel Aaron Brown, strength careth for us. 241; Twenty-eighth Illinois, Major Rhoades, strength unknown. The last named regiment was attached to the brigade temporarily. The strength here "strength on paper." The killed and mortally wounded numbered 44, 13 per cent of the men engaged. In the Fifty-third 219 were re- about doing good." From this descripported present. The Twenty-eighth Illinois lost 6 killed, 43 wounded and 19 missing. Many of those set down as missing were killed or wounded and captured.

COLOR SERGEANT POUNDSTONE, FIFTY-THIRD

As usual, there is a difference between first estimates and the revised figures, but it is clear that the three regiments whose strength is given lost 477 men, and it is unlikely that they numbered more than reported. Colonel Pugh says he led about 880 men in the charge, but does not say whether this includes the Twenty-eighth Illinois, which was attached to his command, or not. With the losses of that regiment included the brigade suffered 535 casualties.

But Colonel Lee, who commanded a company that day and was twice wounded, says he was not reported wounded and that three of his company besides were wounded and not reported, and he thinks that there were at least 100 casualties in the brigade which did not get into the official records. Colonel Earl of the Fifty-third was killed, Colonel Brown severely wounded and Colonel Nale stunned and disabled. In its charge at Petersburg the First Maine carried, according to estimates, 900 to 950 men. Major Low of the regiment places the strength after close revision at 832. The killed and wounded officially reported were 580, but later details swell the figures to 632. The killed and mortally wounded were 210. The regiment marched in three battalions, each about the equivalent in strength to one of Colonel Pugh's war worn infantry regiments.

the brave boys who went down under- Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 21. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic .- Our little worries and how to get rid of them .- Ps. cxxi, 1-8; John xiv, 1. The One Hundred and Twenty-first Psalm is one of the most beautiful of the psalms. Some have supposed it was written in exile. Others conjecture that it was used by the caravans of pilgrims going up to the yearly feasts when they first came in sight of the mountains on which Jerusalem stands. Whether it was the exile looking from a distant land to the mountains whence came his help or the pilgrim nearing the sacred and difficulty. It is the same thought that is emphasized in John xiv, 1: "Let not your heart be troubled. Ye believe in God; believe also in Me." The idea expressed, that Jehovah, the Maker of heaven and earth, helps and keeps the individual, is a comforting one. We might imagine sometimes that the individual is lost sight of by God in the myriads of people in the world. We might be tempted to think that our little troubles and worries could not surely interest the Maker of heaven and earth. But the psalmist Argenta, Ills., carried this flag, and teaches us differently. "My help," he with his flagstaff shot in two and the says, "cometh from Jehovah, the Maker adds: "Jehovah is thy keeper. * * * umph. This was a sight that we shall The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the meon by night." God cares for each one of us. "Not a sparrow falls to the ground without His notice," and if He cares for a sparrow how much more for those created in His own image?

The constancy of Jehovah's care and guardianship is beautifully expressed. Day and night He watches over us and keeps us. We need not fear that our keeper may sleep. "He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.' demanded an investigation. He died He cannot sleep is the sense of this expression. His eye is always upon us and His great, loving heart interested in us at all times.

The universal application of Jehovah's willingness and power to keep and uphold us is strikingly set forth. "The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night." Sunstroke is a special danger of the east. In hot climates the influence of the moon is often injurious, causing dizziness and even death when one is exposed for a length of time to its shining. These two figures may illustrate that in great trials (the sun) and even in the smaller worries and cares of life (the moon) the Lord is our keeper.

The Bible has but one plan of refuge for all worries and troubles, whether they are great or small. We should cast nel S. C. Earl, strength 219; Third all our cares upon the Lord, for He

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

Street Car Damage Suits In a Great City. The Grand Opera Outlook-The Rainy Day Club's Fad.

[Special Correspondence.] Most persons who ride on the street cars of a city and find that the accommodations are not exactly what they might be are addicted to the habit of finding fault. That is all right. The have reason and justice on their side. But they do not usually stop there. It is their habit to explain how little it costs to operate the road. Then a learned dissertation as to the details and expense of management usually follows. But there is one item, and a most important one, which these persons always neglect to include. I refer to the damages which the company is obliged to pay as a result of the carelessness of its employees. A lady is about to step from a car, for instance, when the conductor, who fails to see her, strikes the bell for the gripman or driver to go ahead. Th€ passenger is thrown out and sustains more or less serious injuries. A suit is threatened, and in most cases the companies of this city have preferred to settle at a fair figure rather than to let the matter be aired in court for the double reason that the expense would in mos cases be greater, and the airing of these matters, it is generally conceded, tends to stimulate litigation of this nature. Settled Out of Court.

A gentleman who is in a position to speak with some authority has told me that the money paid out as damages by one of the prominent street railway corporations of this city each year would suffice to pay the wages of a small army of employees. Most of these, too, he declares, are settled out of court, and many of them, in his opinion, are about as near blackmail as one may get.

A great many persons, it is alleged, knowing of the aversion of the railroad companies to litigation of this kind and their willingness to settle privately, have presented claims which were pure swindles. This has had the effect of making the corporations as much too careful as they were previously too careless, with the result that there are now an unusu- previous one. ally large number of cases on the docket which will be fought to the bitter end. ables us to make the extremely In addition to the other troubles of the street railways it is said that the largest two of the corporations in this city, while their main lines are phenomenally prosperous, would be more than willing to get rid of the majority of the branches, which are a heavy drag upon the money making routes.

The Grand Opera Outlook. A good deal has been said as to the dark outlook for grand opera in this city next season, but it is all moonshine The prospects were really never brighter.

According to one who evidently speaks with authority, the season of 1897-8 will be conducted on the same lines as those which prevail this year and under the same direction—Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau, limited. Opera will be given in the style that obtains at present and with artists of the same class. In other words, the season of this year will be duplicated in all respects and will be continued by the present management. All rumors of the abandonment of the enterprise by the opera house directors or by the Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau company are moonshine. There has been ar discussed, and, though a renewal of the lease has not yet been formally executed it will be drawn up and signed shortly. The directors of the Metropolitan, or the one hand, and the managing company, on the other, are satisfied with the results obtained, and their relations are to continue on the present basis.

Calve's Return Improbable. In regard to the artists, MM. Jear and Edouard de Reszke return next season, as does Mme. Eames. These mat disfavor. They strive to belittle the Old | ters are definitely agreed upon and settled. M. Jean de Reszke was not at one time sure whether or not he would renew his centract for 1897-8, as he thought of remaining in Europe for the season. Many of the directors, as well as the management, urged him to return here, and the arrangement for his reappearance with the company has been completed. Mme. Eames' contract was renewable on or before Feb. 1, and the renewal has been formally made. Mme. Calve's return is improbable, as she has promised to appear in Massenet's "Sapho" in Paris, and unless it is deferred she cannot come to New York until season after next.

Mme. Melba's contract was cut short by her illness, and its renewal is still in abeyance. She may and she may not come back. It will be settled upon after her return to America, toward the close of the supplemental season of this spring. M. Plancon also returns, his contract having a year yet to run. If Mme. Calve and Mme. Melba do not return, two other prominent singers will fill their places. But it is more than probable, almost sure, that Mme. Melba will be here.

The Rainy Day Club's Fad.

A lady who was present declares that any one who attended the recent meeting of the Rainy Day club expecting to see rainy day clothes was disappointed. Rainy day clothes were there all right enough, but they were of the conventional, trailing, bedraggled sort long familiar to femininity. The curtailed skirt and high boots were to be seen upon not more than a dozen out of the 80 or 90 women. Of course the club is as yet in its infancy. The members haven't yet had time to become converted, much less to reform their wardrobes.

Boots seemed to be the stumbling block for most of the women. Granted that the skirt be made short, how should the feet be shod? Some were for leggings, others for bicycle boots, and still others for specially designed affairs. A leading light of Sorosis asserted that the main reason for her not going into short skirts was for fear the little boys would hoot at her. Many women with fine ingenuousness declared that all that kept them from donning the garb was their DON'T Advertise unless JOSEPH RUSSELL

Daniel and Teller Successful In Preventing Vote.

Sherman Made Strenuous Efforts to Force a Vote, but Failed.

Washington, Feb. 20.-Another day was spent on the arbitration treaty by the senate and no action taken. All the tactics of parliamentary battles were used by friends and opponents of the treaty, and an executive session of eight hours' duration resulted in an adjournment because of no quorum.

Senator Sherman made repeated efforts during the day to secure a vote on ratification or to get the senate to fix a day and hour when it would agree to vote upon the treaty. He was defeated in both purposes, and when the senate at last adjourned, because of the absence of a quorum, he did not say whether he would make another effort today or within this session to secure further consideration for it, but it is generally supposed that he will renew the motion for an executive session to-

The advocates of postponement were somewhat disappointed in the size of the majority developed against them on the vote on Mr. Nelson's motion, but they say that the vote indicated no more for the treaty than against it, as several senators who oppose ratification voted against postponement, on the theory against postponement, on the theory that it could be defeated by a vote at this time. Senator Sherman also rallied many of the friends of the treaty who had heretofore advised postponement, including Senators Allison and Frye both of whom had given it as their opinion, Thursday, that it would be wise to defer further consideration until next

The vote on the motion to postpone was taken at 6 o'clock and resulted in the negative, 20 to 30. After this vote there was no quorum, and the time was spent in a vain effort to secure one.

Senator Teller was very vigorous in his opopsition to the treaty. The more the treaty was discussed, he said, the more necessary it became to postpone in order to give proper consideration to such a "bungling document." No one, he declared, could tell what it meant, or could construe its provisions. He would not say that he could support the treaty. but, in its present form, and on account of lack of consideration, he certainly should vote against it. Moreover, it was well known that a two-thirds majority of the senate were not in favor of the Senator Daniel of Virginia made a strong speech against the document. He declared that, under it, the United States bound itself with shackles. "I love the blood of revolution,' he declared. "War is often a good thing. Revolution is often progress. The senate has never declared war unjustifiable. For 120 years His country has made a r On the other hand, the senator pointed out that the whole method and scheme of England was acquisition. Ever grasping and greedy, always reaching out for some territory, the only nation strength to cope with her was the United States. It was the purpose of this treaty to bind the United States to peace. With the shackles on this country, England could continue her spoliations of weaker nations, and, when she interfered with what was considered the rights of the United States or countries under our protection, arbitration would step in with a hostile tribunal against us. The senator said that he opposed driving away the rights of the senate as a part of the treaty-making power. To subject many questions to arbitration would be impolitic. We had always had good presidents, but some time there might be a bad one, then the coun-

Senator Daniel opposed selecting judges of the supreme court as members of the tribunal. He objected to mixing our judiciary with foreign complications, besides some of the questions submitted might come before the courts. He also insisted that the United States members of the tribunal should be confirmed by the senate. At the close of Senator Daniel's speech, Senator Hoar submitted some queries to him. He wanted to know if Senator Daniel did not think it satisfactory that men who had been confirmed to such high places as judges of the supreme court should sit as arbitrators without again being confirmed by the senate Mr. Daniel replied that he did not be lieve the senate should abate one jot or its power in questions so vitally affect. ing the welfare of the country. Senator Hoar argued that it would be impossible to find men in whom so much confidence was reposed as in those who composed the greatest tribunal of the World, the United States supreme court. Senator Lindsay followed Senator Daniel with a legal argument intended to refute the Virginia senator's contention that the ratification of the treaty would result in the abdication of the treaty-making power of the senate. He argued that the senate would surrender nothing by accepting the treaty, and that it would do much to promote the cause of peace. The vote was then taken on Mr. Nelson's postponement motion Important as this motion was, the total ballots numbered only 50, but four more than a quorum. This small margin disappeared almost immediately and the remainder of the time was spent in a vain effort to recall a sufficient number of the absentees to render business possible. The enemies of the treaty and the advocates of postponement refused to permit the transaction of any business in the absence of the necessary 46 senators. Motions to adjourn, to notify absentees and other like moves were made in rapid succession. Senator Sherman repeatedly anseverest methods to compel attendance of senators, and towards the last a motion prevailed to arrest and bring in the absentees. The sergeant-at-arms had however, not completed the preparation of his varrants when a motion to adjourn, nade by Senator Gallinger, s friend of the treaty, was ratified.

The third player then adds so on. In course of time some one has to add the letter that completes a word, only, of course, as far as this turn goes, the winner being the last left in, and he starts the next word. For instance, the first player may start off with a C, his elbow as his wife spoke the second venture on H, the third I, the fourth M, the fifth N, the sixth E, the seventh is obliged to finish up with letter making a longer word. This being the first letter that forms the whole into a word, he is out of the game. If the fourth player had said N instead of M, he would have spelt Chin. He would have been out, and the fifth player have started another word. This game requires just a little thought, especially after the first two or three letters. CH of the few railroad presidents in the I, for instance, might have become chilblain or Chimborazo or children.

Elephants Packing For a Journey. The elephant, when on the eve of a journey in India or Siam, has but few preparations to make. He has no goods 38 years he has risen from shop hand in to pack up and no supply of food to prepare. He trusts to the chance of finding grass and leaves and roots by the way, and his only coat he carries on his back. The one thing of which an elephant has to prepare a supply is water. He must take enough to last several days, in case he should not meet with any, and in the hot season he very likely may be some time finding it. He must take more water than he wants to drink, for he must have a little to sprinkle over his heated body every day. Rather earlier than usual in the morning before starting away elephants may be seen at the river busily engaged in drinking as

That these pits are constructed with great skill will be evident from the following experience that befell an English traveler and sportsman. He was passing over a path covered with dry, smooth grass, seemingly well trodden by game, when the ground gave way suddenly, and he found himself supported by his arms, but his feet "dangling in space." Fortunately he was accompanied by gun bearers, who rescued him from his uncomfortable position. This pit was free from spikes and stakes, but the skillful way in which it had been hidfor the young railroad man, for he was den by the smooth, well trodden grass showed that the natives were true artists at this class of work.

The Maid of Tinkletown. There was a maiden in Tinkletown Who lived on frittered pears, Because they made her feel as if She hadn't any cares.

She fried those pears from morn till night And it is strange but true, The more she fried and more she ate The happier she grew.

For joy she did begin to dance And round the pan to hop, And when she once was fairly off She found she couldn't stop.

She danced across her attic floor And down her winding stairs, And right away from Tinkletown, And all through frittered pears.

The vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church was again crowded on Friday evening with members of the Unity club.

At the last meeting Louis XIV was exhaustively discussed. At this meeting the building. papers were read upon his successor Louis XV, "A true Bourbon, one of that family of whom Napoleon said, 'They never forgot and never learned anything."

Mrs. Charles S. Comins read an interesting paper upon this monarch, under whose reign France lost her power in India all her possession in North America, and the islands of Grenada, Dominica and Tobago in the West Indies: whose internal affairs were greatly disturbed by contests between ecclesiastical and civil authorities; struggles between himself and the parliaments; and the preparation of the way for the overthrow of the monarchy, which carried with it to destruction his successor.

Mr. Charles E. Finch, Jr.'s, paper was upon Jean Jacques Rousseau, the French author of whom it was said that he declared war against all civilization, and henceforward set himself up as a ceusor and reformer of society.

The tendency of current gross railway earnings is to increase and a majority of reports of railroads earnings for the second week of February show increases. Gross and net earnings for the year 1896 are in sharp contrast with those for 1895. While promising well, the depressed trade and political excitement had an unfavorable influence. But it is encouraging to note that decreases eral eleciton in the fall of 1894 Mrs. from corresponding totals in 1895, a year of exceptionally favorable railway earn: ings of 142 companies, which include 8 per cent of our railroad earning capacity, aggregated $956,834,241 last year. a decrease of 1-5 of 1 per cent from the like total in 1895, while total net earnings-$288,929,004-showed a similar falling off of 1/2 per cent. The Southwestern, Southern and Pacific groups of roads report increases, both gross and net, as compared with 1895. Heavier decreases are by Central-Western. trunk line and Granger groups, in the order named, the last named reporting an increase of 21/2 per cent in gross, but a decrease of 2.6 per cent innet.

Among the more important staples for which prices have decreased are wheat, oats, coffee, cotton, rosin and turpentine.

The unexpected weakness in wheat and wheat flour prices forms the best nce of the lack of confidence by the trade and general public in official reports of the size of the domestic wheat It is now probable the un-official 450,000,000 bushel estimate of the domestic crops will have to be increased. Judging recent bull calculations, we are now exporting wheat which will be needed at home before

THE HUMAN STOMACH.

A Much Abused and Little Understood Organ.

Some New and Common-Sense Truth About the Stomach That Should Be of Peculiar Value to Thousands.

From the Boston Herald, Feb. 13, 1807. The most important thing in the world is health. Health means more than the absence of disease; it means strength, will, energy, zeal, happiness -the power to do and enjoy things. Perfect health is so rare that we regard it as a special gift. Nature intended that disease, not health, should be rare. We are just finding out that it is natural to be well, and learning what it is that makes people well and keeps them well.

The idea that the source of all health and strength lies in the stomach is not new, but to prove this beyond doubt. and to make the knowledge of practical use, is one of the latest services of science. The real functions of the stomach, and their relations to perfect health, are just being learned. Important results will follow. A new science of medicine may result; perhaps, in time, we can do away with medicine altogether. People, as a rule, know very little about the stomach. They ought to know more, for the knowledge is of vital importance. The following information ought to be worth to many all that health is worth: The human body is an automatic, self-repairing, self-adjusting machine, that would probably run a hundred years or more, if proper materials were supplied to it through the stomach. The burning of fuel in the fire-box of an engine is a rough illustration of the function of digestion. The burning of the fuel is a chemical action. This action produces energy, and the energy is converted into mechanical force.

The same odd transformation is taking place in your stomach all the time, but it is only one of the things the stomach is called on to do. Our bodies require electrical energy, heat energy, and mechanical energy. They also require materials for growth and repair. The source of all this is the food, and, through the work of the stomach, the food is converted into the various kinds of force required to keep us alive, and into the elements needed for the repair of the every-day wear and tear. If we are unable to digest enough food to take the place of the material constantly destroyed, our organs and tissues must suffer, and a host of ailments come as a result of this lack of Disease cannot possibly come unless invited by some internal weakness. If you will remember this, and, also, remember that as long as digestion and nutrition are perfect, there can be no weakness, you will know the secret of health. The remarkable functions of the stomach can, perhaps, be better understood through an illustration of the power it produces.

Most of the energy in the food we eat goes to keep th blood at an even temperature. If the heat energy, developed every day by our stomachs, were converted into mechanical energy, there would be power enough produced to lift our bodies directly up into the air to a height of eight miles. In addition to producing this heat, the stomach must constantly supply new tissues and furnish the power for all our mental and physical activity.

In this connection it will be well to tell something of the structure of the stomach, and explain, briefly, the process of digestion. Reference to the drawing here shown may help in understanding the matter.

An outline view of the Human Stomach, with the front wall removed to show the lining of the organ Portion of the outer wall of Stomach. Section of Duodenum. (C) Esophagus, through which food enters the Stomach.

(D) Pylorus, or gate though which the digested food passes into the Duodenum. (E) A section of the inner surface of the Stomach, greatly Magnified. The dark spots are the mouths of the little tubes through which the gastric juices come. The human stomach is an elongated curved pouch, holding, on an average, about five plats. It has strong muscular walls and an inner muscular coat, which is capable of motion. The organ is lined with mucous membrane-the same membrane that lines the mouth nose, throat and bowels. The membrane is thickly dotted with little pits (see E in the cut). These are the mouths of minute tubes that have direct connection with the blood vessels of the stomach. Through them come the gastric juices that digest food. When food enters a healthy stomach the muscuar walls contract on it and knead, roll and mix it. The food is kept moving so that every portion will come in contact with the gastric juices pouring out of the little tubes. These fluids soften and dissolve what we eat, and thus prepare it for absorption The nutrition of the body depends entirely on perfect digestion, and perfect digestion depends largely on the rapid secretion of an abundant quantity of healthy gastric juice. If the stomach is to do its work thoroughly, it must have the muscular power to keep the food mixing and moving, or else portions of it will remain undigested and become a source of danger to us. There must be an ample supply of gastric juice secreted-from fourteen to twenty pounds daily. This returns to the blood when its mission is ended. If a scant amount of gastric juice is formed, digestion is not only delayed or prevented, but the germs always present in the stomach set up fermentation or decay. Poisons are created—frequently enough to kill us if they were all absorbed.

Dr. Frank Woodbury, A. M., M. D., says in his recent treatise on Dyspep-"One of the most common causes of digestive disorder is inflammation of the stomach accompanied by excessive secretion of mucus, forming what is usually termed gastric catarrh."

This is indeed, the cause of a large share of the cases of chronic indiges-tion, and the reason is simple. Refer to the cut and notice the magnified section of the lining of the stomach. The dark spots are the mouths of the little tubes through which the gastric juices enter the stomach. Inflammation causes pressure on these tubes and partly or wholly closes them, thus stop-ping the free flow of digestive fluids. The mucus, secreted as a result of the inflammation, fills the mouths of the little tubes and still fourth. little tubes and still further impedes the flow, and worse still, it mixes with the scanty supply and thus dilutes and

Science now says that if the stomach is all right all the organs will be right, because it is impossible for them to stay out of order long when the stomach does its duty. A weakened organ is simply. simply an organ out of repair, and it will not stay out of repair if the digestion is right. The sober, common-sense judgment of every one probably tells them that if they could eat heartily of putritions food and

them that if they could eat heartily of nutritious food and then perfectly digest it, they would get strong and well.

When your health suffers think of your digestion. If that is faulty there probably lies the whole cause of trouble. One thing is certain, no permanent relief can be looked for until the stomach is made right. If you find a remedy that will give you sound digestion, you will not have to do anything else. Nature will do the rest. Modern research shows that an effective stomach remedy must do these things:

It must strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach, giving them the power of contraction necessary for the proper kneading and mixing of the food. It must reduce all inflammation and stop the secretion of mucus so that there may be free flow of gastric juice. It should also stimulate the secretion of digestive fluids so that at all times there will be an adequate supply for the prompt digestion of food. Thousands of peeple are saying that Puritana, Dr. Dixi Crosby's great for-mula, is just such a remedy. It relieves catarrhal conditions of the stomach in twenty-four hours; causes an abund-ent secretion of gastric juice, and thus hastens the digestion and absorption of food. As a result, all the organs receive proper nutrition and the patient is not only relieved of stomach troubles, but "cured from head to foot."

THE TRAMP EVIL. Professor John Brooks of Cambridge Suggests

a Remedy. New York, Feb. 20.-Professor John Graham Brooks of Cambridge, Mass., elivered a lecture before the Woman's League for Political Education, in Berkeley Theatre yesterday, on "The Tramp and the Unemployed."

The speaker said that the terms tramp and unemployed were not synonimous. 'We have in this country," said Professor Brooks, "some 50,000 or 60,000 tramps. They are dragging themselves rom one part of the country to another. doing an incalculable amount of injury of different kinds. It is not the loss of $12,000,000 that is felt. It is the slow trail of disease, degeneracy and bad example, bringing the young boys to adopt the same mode of life. I never saw a boy tramp in Massachusetts four years ago. Now he has ceased to be a phenomenon. I believe every practical thought, remedial or educational, must rest, not on the assumption that the tramp and the unemployed are passing phenomena, but are here to stay in the future over which we have con-

Professor Brooks said that the opening up to cultivation of large areas of land in India, Argentina and Southern Rusia, had made them dangerous competitors of the farmers in the West, as the latter had crushed out of existence the little farmer of the East. The principle was the same in regard to the small shop and the great department stores. "The battles of the standards" said to contend against four a five standards of living, high and low. are doing for this country what the West had done for the East in the past 20 or 30 years, made it almost impossible for the farmer to grow cereals at a profit. Professor Brooks said the advertiseents in the newspapers for help lured the young men from the farms to the cities, and the saloon and the promiscuous living completed, in a great many instances, in turning them into tramps and dead-beats. He offered as a solution of the difficulty the establishment of a training school where men could be taught the rudiments of a trade. Boys should not be allowed to leave a school of manual training until they were 16 years old. He would have a work test for all who applied for assistance and those who refused to work should be sent to a colony where they would be treated as criminals and unless they worked they should not be allowed to eat.

Harvard Graduates Feast.

New York, Feb. 20.—Grizzled old men and beardless youths, all graduates of Harvard university, enjoyed themselves alike, from sundown until late last night, at the 31st annual jollification, which vas held at the Hotel Waldorf. The Harvard college club of New York is perhaps the largest and most popular college organization in the country, and 360 of its members sat in groups of 45 round the eight class tables in the main ballroom of the Waldorf, singing old songs and playing the part of jolly good fellows. Among the veteran collegians in the enthusiastic gathering children. were noticed Nathan P. Rice and John D. Taylor, class of '49; James C. Carter class of '50; Edward King, George H Sargent and Edward R. Andrews, '53 William G. Coates, '52; Charles F. Mc Kim. '68; Prescott H. Butler and Nathaniel S. Smith, '69, and George Adams 70. Beside President Carter at the guests' table sat Captain Alfred T. Mahan, U. S. N.; President Albert Bushnel Hart, Rev. Joseph Twitchell, Rev. William R. Hustington, William G. Choate Edmund Wetmore, George Wharton Peppers and Sigourney Butler, and at the heads of the class tables sat A. Bruce Whiting, N. Thayer Robb, Samuel B. Clarke, Nathan P. Marshal Prescott Lands Outlaw Nadeau In Portland Jail.

He Attempted to Kill the Arresting Officer.

Prescoft Went to Cabin Disguised as a Woodsman.

Portland, Me., Feb. 23.-Freeman Nadeau, the outlaw, who has long defied arrest, is now in jail. United States Deputy Marshal Prescott brought him here last night.

His brother, George Nadeau, shot United States Deputy Marshal Mc-Nally, when that officer attempted to arrest him, and Freeman Nadeau had threatened to kill any officer who atempted his arrest. A week ago Deputy Mashal Prescott went after Nadeau with goods and covered Prescott with a rifle. Nadeau said: "I know you, Prescott, and if you make a move or take a step to-wards me you are a dead man." Prescott replied: "I know that you've got the drop on me this time, but I'll take you to Portland yet.'

Nadeau said he would never be taken alive and told Prescott to get out of the woods or he would be a dead officer. The deputy marshal let a week pass and finally went to Nadeau's cabin in To Have Your Carriages, Wagons and Harthe woods disguised as a lumberman. There were 16 or 12 Frenchmen in the hut with Nadeau. The outlaw did not recognize Prescott and asked him to shake dice for the drinks. Pres- Caldwell was no Chicago woman or she cott shook dice for some minutes and finally grappled Nadeau and threw him on the floor of the hut. The outlaw sprang to his feet and started for his rifle, but Prescott struck the man over the head with his billy and knocked that, even though I retire, my brains and him unconscious. He was then double ironed and brought to Portland.

Nadeau will be arranged in the United States court for selling liquor without a United States license, for assault with intent to kill, in two cases, and lutions of the fleet on the North Atlantic for many other crimes.

Then he attacks us because we would not tell our ages. I want to thank God that the women of America have enough sense not to tell their ages. Chicago, Feb. 23.-Miss Jane Caldwell, Alleged Inaction of Our State Department Said to Pe the Cause.

> Consul Asked For Warships to Protect Americans.

"It was here in this Christian city Denied at Washington That Any Serious Complications Exist.

> [Special to the New York Herald.] Havana, Feb. 23.—Consul General Le has resigned. He determined som days ago to take such a step if he were not upheld in his efforts to protect all American citizens in Cuba.

> The consul general asked the stat department that he be authorized to demand the release of citizens of the United States confined in Cuban prison under the same illegal circumstar as was the iil-fated Ruiz. Such autho ity has not been granted to him.

> Great pressure is being brought t bear here to make Consul General Le deny The Herald's Jacksonville dispatch to the effect that the diplomatic repres had asked the government to send war ships to Cuban waters. As a pretex for such denial and as a basis up which it can be founded, it is state that, according to the dispatch, Consu General Lee had asked for a warshi to take him to the United States. Wha the consul general did do, it can be re iterated on the highest authority to ask for warships to support him his efforts to protect Americans in per of their lives, and American interes which were in jeopardy. The Herald' Jacksonville dispatch, therefore, was al solutely correct, and upon indisputab authority can be confirmed in every de tail. If necessary, the full official telegram in which Consul General Lee ask ed for warships can be secured.

Over Fifty Thousand More Than Was Necessary.

Pupils Not Yet Decided.

The result in the Globe's contest is announced today and Quincy is "in it." Mr. Candlin is one of the six successful ones from Massachusetts, being fourth in the list, with the tremendous vote of 174,652. While the leader had over 50,000 more than Mr. Candlin, the Quincy gentleman had 50,000 more than was necessary. The vote of the six winners follows, while No. 7 had 122,954:

Total Vote. 255,086 Annie G. Hill, Everett, 243,595 John F. McGrath, Natick, 178,006 Annie O'Brien, Cambridge, 174,652 Albert Candlin, West Quincy, 161,541 Mary A. Boland, Cambridge, 152,630 Nellie L. Sheehan, Woburn,

More votes were cast in the Massachusetts division than any other, viz: 2,683,-683. While in Massachusetts over 123,000 were necessary, in Rhode Island less than 30,000 were required.

QUINCY CLUB OPENING.

About 700 Inspect New Quarters and Enjoy Hospitality.

From 7 to 10 Saturday evening there was a constant stream of ladies and gentlemen coming and going from the new rooms of the Quincy club in the Savings Bank building, and inside the number was so large that one moved about with difficulty. It is estimated that 700 accepted invitations to be present and that at times there were 300 in the rooms.

The reception was very informal although all the members of the club were indefatigable in their efforts to make everybody feel at home and enjoy themselves. Three pieces of the Hungarian orchestra discoursed sweet music, and Cook of Boston served coffee, chocolate, crackers, olives, salted almonds, etc.

All the rooms of the club are large and have hard wood floors. The parlor and reading room with its couches, easy chairs, tables, books, fire place and pictures, is on the Hancock street front, there being three large windows. The second room in the suite is the card room, and is lighted from overbead. The billiard and pool room is in the rear, and well lighted. When the three rooms are thrown into one by the wide folding doors, as on Saturday evening, they are spacious indeed.

There are also bath and toilet rooms and back stairs for a fire escape.

The main stairway leading to the club cooms was not quite completed, but is of marble and attractive. The floors in the halfways are of small tiles.

The rooms where the refreshments were served will not be used by the club, but are for offices, etc.

The young ladies hope that ladies' night will be observed often by the club, although they hear that a few members object to entertaining the fair sex.

Our Boys Being Ruined by Drink at a Chinese Laundry.

The boys were so far gone from the effects of the whiskey they had drank that the officers had to almost carry them to the police station.

Later in the evening they were It was this rivalry that helped to swell bailed out and were probably punished he vote for each candidate, and could the before they reached their beds. A Grand Concert.

One of the most enjoyable concerts given in Quincy this winter was that by the Oilie Torbett Concert company at Hancock hall Saturday evening, composed of Miss Ollie Torbett, violinist; Miss Lucie E. Mawson, pianist; and the Lutteman Male Sextette. Although the selections by the sextette were given in the Swedish language the music was thoroughly enjoyable and so freely did they respond to encores that the large audience had no reason for complaint.

Perhaps the most enjoyable numbers on the programme were the violin and piano solos. Miss Torbett is a winsome miss and is certainly a master of the violin, which under her skillful touch almost beautifully rendered.

Miss Mawson is also an accomplished pianist. Her selections were of a classical nature being from Rubinstein and Chopin and were greatly enjoyed.

The tenor and bass solos by members of the sextette were also very fine, especially that of Mr. Froholm, with the violin ob-

Plan of the Powers to Bring About a Settlementt---Armistice Agreed To.

Canea, Island of Crete, Feb. 23.-The English, Italian and Russian consuls have returned from Selinos, accompanied by 179 Mussulmans fugitives. They were unable to hold conferences with the chiefs of the belligerents, who are conducting a war of extermination. Both sides have mutually massacred prisoners. Two thousand civilians and 250 Turkish soliders are resisting the advance of the insurgents with three cannon. Ther position is extremely critical. The consuls proceeded to Cadano on board a ship. The Christians there, although advised of their arrival, fired on the consuls, in spite of the white flag of truce which they carried. The consuls returned to Salinos, where the Christians occcupied fresh positions. Here, also, the consuls were fired upon, the shots falling all around the ship.

KING GEORGE OF GREECE. The insurgents have rehoisted their flag at Halepa, but they have not fired on the Turks, who have planted a flag 1500 yards from the insurgent position. Fifteen Christians, including three nuns of the Elias convent, were wounded by the bombardment. Five thousand insurgents arrived within half an hour after firing commenced. IN CONCRESS. Routine Business Transacted by Both Houses. Washington, Feb. 23 .- The senate spent its first hour yesterday in listening to Washington's farewell address, read by Mr. Daniel, and then turned its attention to the Indian appropriation bill. It involved a contest over sectarian Indian schools. The clause directing temporary contracts with these schools, when no government schools were available, was agreed to, 51—8. The Indian bill is still under consideration.

A veto from Mr. Cleveland on a private pension bill brought out sharp criticism from Mr. Gallinger against the president's course. Mr. Morgan brought out in the course of inquiries that all these bills would involve less expense than the amount which went to the syndicate commented on the modern methods of criticising the pension rolls.

The house sent the naval bill, the last of the appropriation bills, to the senate yesterday. Mr. Boutelle was in charge of the measure, and displayed such skill in its handling that its provisions aroused little opposition, and it was passed practically without amendment. In my last paper I mentioned the hand: Diamonds (trump), A, K, J, 6, 4; spades, J, 9, 4, 2; hearts, A, J, 9; clubs, K, the D Q being turned by the dealer, as a hand from which I led the S 2 as a "call through the honor." Several points of the play being unusually instructive, I reproduce it here. The above hand is North's. North leads to the first trick. The winning card in each trick is underlined, and the card underneath is led next:

Trick 1 .- The lead of a small card as call through the honor turned was first recommended in "Whist Openings" (page 39). Before that the only signal used for this purpose was the original lead of a high or supporting card from a short suit, or an tice, still followed by many players, but recommended by few experts, is illogical, because it frequently necessitates a weak opening from a strong hand. Under our system we open the best suit, at once giving the desired information to partner and treating the leader's hand according to its deserts. A purely arbitrary use of the convention, such as leading a deuce from the deuce and one other I do not favor, although it may very rarely be permissible For instance, my partner in a match once had to open a hand containing the A, K, J. 10 and one other trump, the Q being turned, and absolutely no strength in and 4. When I got in, I led through the honor. Partner played the 10 third hand and returned the K and A, catching the Q on the third round. We gained a trick on the deal, this bit of tactics being the only thing there was in it. In plain suits we took only one trick-that on which I got in the lead to give him the trump. We were pleased by the result, because-I frankly admit-the game of "catch the honor" is very rarely successful. It is not successful even in the present instance, as we shall see. The small opening is better than the original lead of the trump, be cause it enables South to ruff with one of his two little trumps, but it does not bring about the capture of the Q turned. Trick 2. - West's return of the spade is questionable. Its danger is just what happened-the ruff by the original third hand. As the cards lie, and probably theoretically, West's best lead is the C 10. Trick 8 .- East was, of course, a long suiter or he would never have opened the clubs here. The only winner he has in the suit is the ace, and he ought to hold that until he can kill a high card with him. The H 10 is the right card to lead now. Trick 4.-North is not sure that partner can ruff the spade, but this is the best chance. He still hopes, too, to get the lead through the honor. Trick 5 .- Whether or not South is justifled in disregarding the leader's desire for the trump lead is not clear. His play is fortunate anyway. If he had led the trump, North would have caught the honor, but would then have had to lead away in both hearts and spades. North's refusal to ruff the C Q costs nothing, for if he wins this trick and leads the last spade and shuts South out. Trick 6 .- South's second hand play is peculiarly important. I cannot here go into the subject in detail, but the general principle is that second hand should cover the "supporting" 9, 10, J or Q led if he has the card next above or next but one above, regardless of number, unless he has a tenace over the card led, in which case nounced in the second edition of "Whist good. Openings" (page 200). The Q put in at second hand here probably saves a trick. Trick 7. - North is obliged now to clear the trumps in defense of his winning Without further comment, I append the overplay of the deal, the North and South players being routine long suiters this time

This letter, which is forwarded by Sylvester Scoville, The World's correspondent, now imprisoned at Sancti Spiritus, was, it is stated, obtained exactly one week before he was caught while trying to reach the seacoast. He had forwarded a copy by a pacifico, to be cabled to his paper. This messenger was also caught by the Spanish and the contents of his dispatch were cabled to Senor De Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington.

The original documents, including the letters in the original Spanish, were Cleveland. Turner, after his successor only received yesterday. In his letter accompanying them, Sylvester Sco-

Cuba will accept any peaceable means laid down by the United States that will secure their independence. Last year General Gomez authorized the statement that, in his opinion, the Cubans would even go as far as to allow the United States to administer the finances of the Island until such time as any loan secured from or in that country could be repaid."

Lee Did Resign, New York, Feb. 24.-A dispatch to The World from Washington says: Fitzhugh Lee, consul general af the United States at Havana, has resigned, but has been requested to remain at his post for a time at least. The following cablegram was received at the state department: Havana, Feb. 22.-Secretary of state: My resignation mailed per steamer.

Secretary Olvey replied to this almos immediately, urging General Lee to withhold his resignation until something could be done, and declaring that his resignation at this time and in such a manner "would cause untold trouble." After sending this dispatch Secretary Olney hurried over to the White House with General Lee's telegram in his pocket, and talked over the situation with the president for nearly an hour before the other members of the cabinet arrived to attend the regular meeting. The president fully approved of Mr. Olney's action in requesting General Lee to withdraw his resignation for the present. The matter was not laid before the cabinet.

CUBAN MATTERS AGAIN

Senate Taxes Action Regarding Amer- said: icans In Spanish Prisons.

Senator Pettigrew Arouses Senator Hoar.

William J. Bryan Cordially Greeted In

Washington, Feb. 25.-The Cuban question is once more alive in congress, tleships to Cuban waters. This resolution also comes up today. A third resolution, by Mr. Hill (N. Y.), was agreed all correspondence with Consul General Lee relating to Americans imprisoned in Cuba. Mr. Morrill (Vt.) withdrew the notice he had given of a speech today opposing the Cameron resolution on Cuba, owing to the prospects that some of the belated appropriation bills will fail of a demand for the protection of American citizens, who have been subject to maltreatment by Spanish authorities in the war-racked island. It is said that the state department files are crammed with cases of American citizens who have appealed to the United States government for protection, but to whom the administration has not yet been able to afford relief. Where release should have been demanded peremptorily, the department has contented itself with diplomatic correspondence, in which the chief purpose seems to have been to avoid giving the slighest offense to Spain.

Little progress was made on the Indian bill, and Mr. Allison warned the senate that the status of appropriation bills was most dangerous. Beginning today, the senate will sit until noon. A sensational episode occurred late in the day, during the consideration of the Indian bill. Several of the New England senators criticised variou items. This aroused Mr. Pettigrew (S D.), in charge of the bill, to some caustic recitals of barbarities practiced against Indians in Massachusetts in the early days. Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts defended his state, and amid impressive silence, arraigned Mr. Pettigrew, a New Englander by birth, for "befouling the nest in which he was born." Mr Hoar added bitterness to his words by referring to Mr. Pettigrew not as the senator from South Dakota, but as "the person" who had made the remarks. The status of the great appropriation bills is as follows: Passed and signed by the president, the pension bill, the urgent deficiency bill, the military academy bill and the legislative appropriation billl; in the hands of the president, the diplomatic and consular ap opriation bill; in conference, the arms bill and the agricultural bill; under consideration in the senate, the Indian bill, on the senate calendar, the postoffice appropriation bill; before the senate committeee on appropriations, the sundry trict of Columbia bill, the naval bill and the deficiency billl.

The leading feature of the house was president, on the floor. He had come to the city to attend a dinner given in his honor by John R. McLean of the Cincinnati Enquirer, and, as an exmember, was entitled to the privilege of the floor. He came into the hall with! guire of California, Mr. Sulzer of New York and ex-Congressman George Fred Williams of Massachusetts. He was immediately escorted to the cloak room. where he divested himself of his overcoat, his entrance not having been generally observed. His presence soon be came noised about, however. The Democrats deserted their seats and hurried back to greet him. A few minutes later he emerged and walked calmly down the aisle to his old seat, near the centre aisle round of applause, the people in the gal- men and was released from jail. leries craned their necks and took up the demonstration. There were several wild shouts. He was surrounded on al sides. Many of the Republicans joined in the welcome to their old colleague. The first was Judge Strode of Nebras ka, his successor in congress. Among the others were Messers. Hitt of Illinois, W. A. Stone of Pennsylvania, Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Dolliver of Iowa. The confusion I came so great that Speaker Reed was forced to call the house to order. After a few minutes, Mr. Bryan made his way back of the rail which divides the seats from the lobby around the speaker's rostrum, where he shook hands with the speaker. The galleries again joined in the demonstration which becurred at this juncture. Mr. Bryan soon after left the house. Most of the day was devoted to District of Columbia business. The conference report on the bill to define the rights of the purchasers of the Atlantic and Pacific railroads under the foreclosure sale was adopted.

Salvationist Brutally Assaulted. Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 25.-A bruta and unprovoked assault was committed on Ensign Brewer, leader of the Salva-tion Army. After a parade the army stopped to hold service, when a man with one leg requested prayers. WEYMOUTH LANDING-W. E. Cun- says: Two of the most influential papers counsel modification and deference to the powers. Others urge an immediate declaration of war and an advance into Macedonia, the "consequences of which," they say, "would injure Europe more than Greece." A bitter feeling prevails against England. It was supposed she secretly supported the Greek policy, but the greatest animosity has been displayed against Emperor William. Popular feeling is so strong that only the complete abolition of the sultan's jurisdiction in Crete will calm the excitement. It is stated that Colonel Vassos, commander of the Greek forces on the Island of Crete, is marching to the interior.

King George has sent the following message to the Greek army: "The king, in the present critical circumstances, relies for aid on the nation, his officers and the army and upon no foreign power." The Chronicle announces that the foreign admirals have already requested

Colonel Vassos to quit the Island of Crete and threaten to bombard him if he attacks any position occupied by the Turks. Colonel Vassos replied that he must execute his orders. The Chronicle also publishes a two-

A note to this effect will be sent to Greece in the near future. The military preparations have been completed. It is also stated that the minister of marine has pledged himself to have 13 ships ready a week from now. The Athens correspondent of The Standard says that he has ascertained from a reliable source that Greece will reject the proposals of the powers. A dispatch to The Times from Constantinople says:

New York, Feb. 25.-When the case of Joseph A. In a few days, Judge Brown will decide the question whether Iasigi is amenable to state jurisdiction or whether his case should properly come before a federa. judge. WELSH RECEPTION.

An Enjoyable Occasion at the Bethany Congregational Church.

One of the most enjoyable and successful receptions held at the Bethany Congregational church this season was that tendered to the Welsh people Thursday evening. The reception was in charge of the Strangers committee, and besides others of the society present, there were seventy-five of Welsh descent.

The reception commenced at 7 30, at which hour a lunch was served. This was followed by a pleasing entertainment, part of which was in the Welsh language, the programme being as follows:

Inflammatory Rheumatism:

Inflammatory Rheumatism:

OFFICE OF J. F. GREER, COUNTY JUDGE, I Green Cove Springs, Clay Co., Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Twenty-three years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I was attended by the most eminent physician in the land. I visited the great Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the noted Hot Springs of Arkansas, and many other watering places, always consulting with the local physicians for directions, and finally came to Florida, ten years ago. About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism, was confined to my room for treelve weeks, and during that time was induced to try P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, knowing that each ingredient was good for impurities of the blood. After useing two small bottles I was relieved. At four different times since I have had slight attacks and each time I have taken two small bottles of P. P. P., and have been relieved, and I consider P. P. P. the best medicine of its kind. Respectfully, J. F. GREER.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio, says he bought a bottle of P. P. at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and it did him more good than three months' treatment at Hot Springs. Rheumatism, as well as sciatica and gout, is cured by a course of P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is a friend indeed to weak women. It is a positive and speedy cure for general weakness and nervousness. All skin diseases are cured by it; anything from pimples to the worst cases of eczemas succumbing to the wonderful healing powers of P. P. P. Dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst form are cured by it. As a tonic to restore the appetite and to regain lost vigor, it is simply marvelous. P. P. P. is the best spring medicine in the world. It removes that heavy, out-of-sorts feeling and restores you to a condition of perfect physical health. For Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Failure, Fever, Chills, Debility and Kidney Diseases, take P. P. P. Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful medicine in the world

AN IMPOSING CEREMONY.

How the New President Will Be Inaugurated.

THE TRIP TO THE CAPITOL.

Cannon Will Announce the Taking of the Oath.

The Great Parade From Capitol to White House-Contrast Between the Present Display and That of other Times-The Great Ball In the Pension Building.

The first president of the United States to take the oath in Washington was Jefferson, and it is one of the traditions of history that he rode to the capitol, hitched his horse with his own hand and went without escort in to the senate chamber, where he was sworn in. This story, though has another version, which is sustained by some authority. It is said that Jefferson was living in a boarding place not far from the capitol, and on the day of the inauguration he walked to the senate chamber in a very democratic way and entered without escort. He went back to the boarding house and sat, as was his custom. at the foot of the table that evening, and when some one offered to congratulate him he said that he would rather be congratu-lated at the end of his administration than at the beginning of it. There is no doubt of Jefferson's "simplicity" in his official relations. Though he had been accustomed to the life of a planter having a small army of slaves at his beck and call, he refused to observe the ceremonies which Washington and his friends had thought should be a part of the tribute to the great office of president, and he was found by a foreign minister one day blacking his own boots.

Washington was escorted from his home at Mount Vernon to Elicabethport, spending one night at Princeton, where he was to be present afterward at a famous graduation day of the university; and at Trenton young girls strewed flowers in his path. From Elizabethport he went by barge to New York, still under formal escort, and his entry to New York was of a triumphal character. His inauguration was a severely formal affair, preceded by prayer and followed by attendance on divine service. He took the oath in the presence of the people in front of the federal building, and

GRAND MARSHAL GENERAL HORACE PORTER. he delivered his inaugural address to the senate. There was much perturbation among the senators over a question of etiquette on this occasion. They were unable to determine whether they should remain standing or scated in the presence of the president. Without any agreement they arose when Washington entered the chamber and remained standing while he read his message; for this first address was as much a message to congress as an inaugural address. Custom has changed this. The president no longer addresses congress in person. All his communications are sent in writing. Besides congress is not in session nowadays when the president is sworn in. The senate meets at noon of the 4th of March on the call of the retiring president, but the house does not meet until the new president issues a proclamation calling congress together.

Washington's inauguration was witnessed by a great throng of people, and there was much enthusiasm, which lasted for several days. All the incidents of the inauguration were not crowded into a single day, as they are now. The inaugural ball was held several days after the day of the inauguration, but on the night of that day there were fireworks.

Washington drove to his second inauguration in a coach drawn by six white horses. He was dressed in black velvet coat and knee breeches, with diamond buckles at the knee. His stockings were of black silk. His shoes had silver buckles. His hair was powdered and held in place by a black silk bag. He wore a dress sword, with a highly ornamented hilt. Washington took the oath in the hall of the house of representatives, read his address to the assembled senators and repre sentatives and withdrew. A great gathering witnessed his arrival at the temporary capitol and his departure from it and cheered him boisterously.

Washington was again the chief figure of the inauguration when Adams was sworn in. Six months before he had made public his historic farewell address to the people of the United States. The nation had trusted so much to his sagacity and patriotism that there was a feeling of uncertainty as well as sorrow when he was about to turn his trust over to Mr. Adams. Sorrow was in the ascendant, and there was not a dry eye in the hall of the hous of representatives when John Adams took

During the administration of Mr Adams the capital was removed to Washington, and Jefferson was inaugurated in this city, as I have said. He would not countenance formality in the matter of his inauguration any more that he would permit it afterward when he was in the White House.

For one, tatiously as the first. There was a goodly there is the parade and the ceremony at will attend the McKinley ceremony. James Madison had a really great crowd in 12 years, and 10,000 people, according to the estimate of the historian, congregated about the capitol unable to gain admittance. There was a parade, in which regular troops of infantry and cavalry took part, and salutes were fired at the navy yard and at Fort Washington, not far below the city. The troops escorted the president from the capitol to the White House. In the evening a reception was held in Davis' hotel, on Louisiana avenue, between Four and a Half and Sixth streets, which was attended by the president. And The National Intelligencer records the fact that 400 people were present on this festive occasion. Since Madison's time the ceremonial accompanying the inauguration has grown more elaborate. Jackson and William Henry Harrison rode to the capitol on horseback, but not in the simple style which tradition credits to Jefferson. Each had a military escort. In 1833 Jackson rode to the capitol with Van Buren in a phaeton made of wood from the old Con-

Mr. Hayes came into town quietly, took the oath on Sunday (which was the 4th of March) and went to the capitol to deliver his address Monday. President Elect and Mrs. McKinley say goodby to their two story frame house in anton, where they have spent many happy days, with a touch of regret. In that house have come to them their greatest triumphs. I say their triumphs because all that Major McKinley has belongs to both of them in the fullest degree. It was in that house that they received the news of Mr. McKinley's nomination, and there the news of his success at the polls was flashed to them over the special wires.

Until Major McKinley is inaugurated his home will be at he Ebbitt house. With his party, in addition to his wife, are his mother, his two nieces, his brother, Abner McKinley, and probably Mark Hanna and his family. Quite likely his inaugural address will not receive its finishing touches until just before the inaugural ceremonies. Making an inaugural address is a very serious matter, for, however poorly a president may carry out the policy which he announces at his inauguration, the American people always take his utterances seri-

Major McKinley will see few visitors except the members of his cabinet to be. All of them are expected to be here. And then his great and good friend, Mr. Hanna, will be in and out of his rooms at all hours no doubt. But the office seeker will be kept at the outer gate. General Porter, the marshal of the inaugural parade, will call and submit the plan of that display for Major McKinley's approval. The senate committee which has charge of the inaugural ceremony will call to notify him what will be expected of him Thursday. Some of the senators and representatives who knew him when he was in the house will be admitted to his reception room.

There is no likelihood that he will leave the hotel at all until accompanied by Mrs. McKinley, he takes a carriage for the White House Wednesday evening, to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland at din ner. This is not in accordance with "time honored custom," as has been said. Adams

When the address is completed, and no before, that immense throng will melt away from the plaza and go to pack the sidewalks and fill the wooden stands which have been built on all the public reserva tions along Pennsylvania avenue. Gavly decorated these stands will be, and from the windows of the buildings on the broad avenue (000 flags will flaunt in the breeze. On all the side streets around the capitol men in uniform will await the signal to start. First the president's escort will move. Ahead of it will ride Grand Marshal Porter, in full military uniform with particolored sash, and his glittering aids. Behind will come the carriage drawn by four horses in which the president and Mr. Cleveland will ride. Then he will go to the White House to rest until the hour for the ball. It was dark four years ago when the review was completed.

There have been inaugural balls since the day of Washington. The only presidents who failed to celebrate their induction into office in that way, I believe, were Jefferson and Hayes. Three of the balls have been held in the pension building, where the ball next Thursday will occur. They are gorgeous, glittering, glaring frauds, these inaugural balls. They are not balls at all. Standard Time.

"Standard time" is a system of tim measurement established in this country in 1883. It started among railroad me and was adopted by the people at large's October and November. Its peculiar consists in dividing the country into belt of 15 degrees each and taking the time some important place within each belta the standard time for all places in the belt. The time of any belt is thus on hour earlier than that of the belt west and one hour later than that of the belt east 0 it. The eastern belt takes the time places on the 75 degrees meridian west Greenwich, and is thus just five how later than Greenwich time; central time that of the 90 degrees meridian; mounts time is that of the 105 degrees meridian and Pacific time that of the 120 degree meridian. In use the system saves t necessity of changing one's watch contin ally in traveling. For instance, before the system was adopted, a person travell from Boston to Washington would have from three to five different times ton member. He would leave Boston by Bos ton time, Providence by Providence tim New London by New York time, No York by Philadelphia time and Baltime by Washington time. Now he travels w only one time, and that is what he has begin with. If he goes west of Pittsburg he sets his watch just one hour back; west of Bismarck, he moves it another hour back, and if he goes to the Pacific coast he sets it a third hour back - New York Sun.

ing up of bands of marauding, scalping fierds, the bad remnants of the once mighty and picturesque tribe. The campaigns of 1872 and of 1886 each opened with a tragedy of the kind so mournfully common on the plains—the useless sacrifice of gallant soldiers worthy of a sublimer fate. The victim of 1871 was Lieutenant Howard B. Cushing, Third cavalry, the last of a trio of brothers whose deeds in another age and land would have won them rank in the order of knighthood.

At the time of the fierce outbreak in the spring of 1871 Cushing was continually in the saddle among the mountains. Riding into Bear Springs canyon one day at the head of 22 men, he fell into an ambush laid by the famous Cocheis, one of the chiefs of the Chiricahua Apaches. As usual, Cushing showed fight and made a stand until the Indians swarmed into the canyon in his rear. Then, facing part of his men about, he charged back to open a road of escape. The wily Apaches gave proof of their keeping at a distance so long as he remained in the saddle. The death of several of his men gave them no encourage ment, but when at last he fell they charged the remaining troopers and nearly annihilated the command. Cocheis, the leader of this attack, became celebrated among his people for this exploit, and the tribe went on the warpath partly through fear of the white man's vengeance and partly to win more glory.

The entire Apache nation either took up arms or encouraged the outbreak by giving it sympathy, and when General Crook arrived on the scene to suppress with ordinary means the wildest savages that ever roamed the plains old frontiersmen smiled at the credulity of the government and the army. The Apache is not only equal to the cleverest of his savage brethren in the wiles and tricks of warfare, but has the habits and endurance of a veritable wild man. In the semitropical climate of his habitat his the cactuses growing abundantly along ery foot of ground and every water hole. On the warpath each brave is supplied with three to five ponies and thinks nothing of making 70 miles a day against 30 of the best equipped cavalry. Besides in Arizona in 1871 there were settlements along the trail to supply Quincy. food and horseflesh, and all to be had for the asking under a brandished tomahawk.

Crook defeated the Apaches in two battles, and those victories, gained by two detachments out of the many afield, broke the fighting spirit of the nation. All of the distinct tribes went on reservation, promising to learn the white man's ways and industries. One band evaded the touch of Crook's discipline—that is, they missed the sting of the thrashing and paid little or no attention to the lessons which followed. These were the Chiricahuas, led by Cocheis, the wily, wiry, but stately and magnificent heathen who had butchered Cushing. The Chiricahuas were exempted from Crook's jurisdiction and were never conquered. They sneaked cn to the reservation when they needed food or clothing or ammunition and made off again when under the impulse for plunder or blood. One day in 1882 the whole band of over 700 souls set out for the Sierra Madre mountains in Mexico, and in crossing southern Arizona left behind the usual trail of smoldering embers and scalpless heads. Crook was recalled to the field by the cries of the frightened settlers and "friendlies," deliverance a murdering band of Chiri- ditional surrender. The talk was long cahuas sallied from their Sierra Madre stronghold, dashing through Sonora, Arizona and New Mexico on a circuit of over 800 miles, slaughtering or carrying away captive Mexican and American alike. The Chiricahuas on this raid of March, 1883, numbered but 26 brave. and were led by the successor of Cocheis, a young chief of superior intellect and unusual daring named Chato. The campaign, which ended in a few weeks in the return to the reservation of every male, squaw and child of the Chiricahuas, stands unparalleled in border history. Crook enlisted 200 Apache scouts and placed at their head Captain Emmet Crawford, Cushing's former comrade of spect even in a degenerate savage like the Third cavalry. Other detachments the bloodthirsty war chief of the Chiriof soldiers took their stations along the border, but the scouts, accompanied by Crook and 43 white soldiers, pushed on the back trail to the savage lair in the Sierra Madre mountains. The Indian camps one by one fell under skillful attacks, planned while the braves were absent raiding in the Mexican settlements. The scattered war parties returned to find their enemies masters of three columns were printed about my a St. Thomas (Ont.) Christian Endeavthe situation.

For two years General Crook continued his methods with the Chiricahuas but in May, 1885, 124 of them, under and arranged for negotiations for peace. Geronimo offered to surrender on terms which the government refused to accept, and General Crook asked to be relieved. General Nelson A. Miles, the hero of the Nez Perce campaign of 1877, then appeared in Arizona for the express purpose of bringing Geronimo to his senses. To show his contempt for the new white chief the renegade sallied forth from his mountains and swept over Sonora and southern Arizona on a raid of slaughter and plunder. Adopting Crook's methods, Miles organized a picked force of whites and Indians and put them on the fresh trail. The oursuit lasted from May until September, and soldiers who had served in India and South Africa described it as the roughest warfare they had ever engaged in. The heat often reached 120 degrees F., and the foot soldiers marched in their underclothing. The roughness of the country made cavalry pursuit impossible, and the rations for the men were carried on pack mules. The trail wound among the rugged mountains and deep canyons of ricahua Apaches.

Senators Did Not Continue Fiery Debate on Cuban Resolutions.

Day Devoted to Indian Appropriation Bill.

House Passed International Monetary Bill Under Suspension of Rules.

Washington, Feb. 27.-Yesterday was ies. It was expected that the debate on the Cuban resolution would be continued, but the news that Sanguilly had been pardoned effectively killed the resolution demanding his immediate release. The Indian appropriation bill was considered at the opening of the session, and after a bit was displaced by discussion of the Allen Cuban resolution.

Mr. Frye said, at the outset, that the Sanguilly resolution should be retired, as it was useless to waste powder in making a noise. Mr. Morgan secured the adoption of another resolution, calling for information as to the imprisonment of George Washington Aguirre Mr. Morgan also reviewed the Sanguilly case, declaring that the action of the senate had warned Spain against a collision with the United States and had moved the queen-regent to the unusual expedient of a pardon by cable. The senator severely criticised the president and the secretary of state for alleged inaction on this case.

Mr. Gray of Delaware asserted that in urging the rights of American citizenthe dispatch from General Lee, stating there is an unbroken scene of desoladar by general consent, which disposes of it as a matter of present interest.

At 8 o'clock the consideration of the Indian bill continued, the amendment relating to the five civilized tribes being discussed at great length.

Senators Teller, Platt and Hoar urged the necessity of replacing the corrupt Indian courts with a United States judicial system, while Mr. Vilas protested against "jamming" through an amendment despoiling Indians of their rights The amendment, as finally agreed to, gives the United States courts exclusive jurisdiction over civil and criminal cases. abolishing the native courts. Two ad ditional judges are provided for the territory. The Indian appropriation bill was then passed.

Day In the House. The last six days of the session are suspension days. All the ordinary rules are suspended and bills can be passed and resolutions adopted by a two-thirds vote of the house. Yesterday was the first of these six days, and the house celebrated by passing the senate international monetary conference bill. Despite the seeming w de divergence of was passed after a lively debate of two hours by a vote of 279 to 3. It was supported alike by Republicans, silver Re-Democrats. The silver Democrats and of Keene and Chief Munsey of Exeter. silver Republicans disclaimed any faith in this attempt to secure bimetallism by ar international agreement, but they expressed themselves as willing and anxious to see the test made. Mr. Quigg (Rep., N. Y.) and Mr. Johnson (Rep., Ind.) both made vigorous speeches in opposition to the bill. Those who spoke for the bill were Messrs, C. W. Stone (Rep., Pa.), Grow (Rep., Pa.), Watson (Rep., O.). McCreery (Dem., Sparkman (Dem., Fla.), Hartman (Rep., Mont.), McRae (Dem., Ark.), Cooper (Dem., Tex.), Cox (Dem., Tenn.) and Mc-Millin (Dem., Tenn.) Bills were also passed to provide for the arbitration of differences between the carriers of interstate commerce and their employes (known as the Erdman bill) and the senate bill to prevent the importation

Driven From Their Homes.

Cincinnati, Feb. 27.-What seems unprecedented in the present Ohio river flood is its persistence at certain stages. It became stationary at 8 o'clock yesterday at 61 feet 2 inches, and remained 13 hours at that stage. At present, the condition of people driven from home by the flood is pitiable. With the mercury at 25, and steadily falling, their suffering increases. Outside of the regular charity organization and the police force, there bas been no provision for the assistance of these sufferers, except such as is ren-dered by their immediate neighbors.

Beginning up the river, the village of California is flooded. Its houses look a day of disappointment to the crowd of like so many islands rising from out of spectators who filled the senate galler- a sea. At Columbia, many families are driven to the upper stories, and many are driven clear out of their homes. At Pendleton, next below Columbia, the situation is still worse, owing to the great extent of the submerged district. In both these suburban wards, the flood invaded many factories and stopped work. Over in Newport, the 7-inch rise since dark Thursday night very greatly increased the suffering. Not only the upper part of Newport, but that portion lying between the Ohio and Licking rivers is seriously affected. Water, from a few inches to 6 feet deep, covers this region to wishin two blocks of the court house. Grounds occupied by the old Newport barracks are deep under water. In Covington, along the immediate water front, houses are submerged. while farther up town cellars are filled with water.

ager Brooks of the Yale Baseball association will not give out the schedule for some time, dates have been arranged for nearly all the principal games. The Yale team will start on its trip about April 20, going as far south as to meet the University of North Carolina. The first olg game of the season will be Brown, at Providence, Saturday, May 1. The return game will be played on Yale field May 15, and the final game of the series in Providence, Saturday, May 29. The first game of the series with Harvard will probably be played at Cambridge, June 24; the second, June 29, at Yale feld, and the third, if it is necessary July 3, on some neutral ground. April 21 and May 19 are Amherst dates. May 22-25, and June 13, if necessary, Yale will meet Princeton.

McCook Wanted to Be Attorney General New York, Feb. 27.—It is now known positively that Colonel J. J. McCook was equested by President-elect McKinley to become a member of the cabinet. This was some time ago, and Colonel Mc-Cook gave a qualified consent. He expected to be asked to become attorney general, which would have fitted in with his tastes and attainments, and he would have accepted the office. On Tuesday last he received a letter from Mr. Mc-Kinley, asking him to become secretary of the interior. Colonel McCook did not care to take that position, and promptly declined. While General Stewart L. Woodford is still a candidate for the cabinet and has the backing of the regular Republican organization of the state, it is not believed that he stands any chance of getting it. In this case, New York will not be represented in the cabinet, unless Major McKinley changes his mind and concludes to make Colonel McCook attorney general. This he probably will not do, as it is understood that he has already offered that post to Judge McKenna of California.

Hawkins is said to be a pupil of Corbett's, Flaherty expects to train with Fitzsimmons.

CONDITION OF BUSINESS.

Bradstreet's Weekly Trade Review Says Outlook is Brighter.

New York, Feb. 27.—Bradstreet's says: The placing of orders for nearly 1,-500,000 tons of steel within the past three weeks is the most important influence for improvement in general trade since the November election. A good share of these orders is for blooms and billets, and inasmuch as the bulk of them are placed with the more modern among the larger steel mills, the latter find themselves well supplied with work for months. The Bessemer pig iron and stee! billet markets have been duly influenced and are firm, with moderate advances on heavy sales. The contracts for steel rails taken since the break in the price together with the expenditure necessary to lay the rails, means the placing in circulation of no less than $35,000,000 The meaning of sales of rails for export has been exaggerated, as some orders placed abroad were due to English mills being temporarily engage on other forms of steel. The rush fo rails appears to be about over, and the outlook is for higher prices. Consumption of Bessemer pig iron is in excess of production, and wire and wire nail mills are running full time. Many woollen mills in New England have started up. Manufacturers are buying in expectation of a duty being placed on raw wool. Recent improvement in cotton goods is maintained.

At most cities there has been no chang in the volume or temper of the trade Demand has been quiet, and while expectations favor an early improvemen progress thus far has been somewha disappointing. The most marke gains are at Chicago and St. Louis where visiting merchants have made relatively heavy purchases of dry goods Jobbers at lothing and groceries. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee an Louisville in some instances regard the outlook as more favorable. Unfavor able weather on the South Atlant coast and at the Northwest has inte rupted business, and reports from Gal veston and Nashville are that the move ment of merchandise has been dis

Even when compared with the last week of February in 189 this week's clearings show a decreas of 6 per cent. Contrasted with the corresponding total in 1893, the falling off is 27 per cent, and with 1892 it is 21

The price movement is more favorable with advances for hides, and in some in stances for shoes, for Bessemer pig iron steel billets, cotton, Indian corn, oats cheese and turpentine. There are 258 business failures re-ported throughout the United States this week, compared with 325 last week 271 in the week one year ago, 234 in the last week in February 1895, 272 in the corresponding week in 1894, and as contrasted with 217 in the like week of 1893. Railway earnings continue to improve Total gross earnings of 30 leading railroads for the third week of February show a gain of 5.6 per cent over the con responding period of last year, 11.7 per cent gain over two years ago and nearly

Exports of Indian corn amount to 4, 744,000 bushels this week, compared with 6.441,000 bushels last week, 3.158,000 bush els in the like week last year, 847,000 bushels in the week two years ago, 1, 237,000 bushels three years ago, and a contrasted with 1,076,000 bushels in the like week of 1893. Total exports of Indian corn during February aggregate approximately 20,000,000 bushels, the largest monthly total of corn exports in the history of the trade.

Boston Wool Market. Boston, Feb. 27.-The Boston Commercial Bulletin says of the wool market: The market is much quieter.

Even the smaller sales of domestic represent in part speculation among dealers. The total sales are swollen by heavy transactions in South Americal crossbreds. These wools cost five or ix cents a scoured pound less than medium American wools, and are being sold in large blocks from the stock on the spot, and to arrive to the Riverside mills and other manufacturers of rough faced fabries. Over 2,000,000 pounds of these wools were reported this week. The general selection is now limited and prices are firm throughout the list.

The sales of the week are 2,451,000 pounds domestic and 3,410,500 pounds foreign, against 3,505,000 pounds domestic and 3,087,000 pounds foreign last week, and 949,000 pounds domestic and 799,000 pounds foreign for the same week last year. The sales to date show an increase of

25,555,000 pounds domestic and 11,896,-500 pounds foreign, from the sales to the same date in 1896. The receipts to date show an increase of 11,690 bales domestic and 3432 bales foreign.

Hundreds of Weyler's Soldiers Killed and Wounded.

Captain John Linn, an American, Handled Death Engine.

Chicago, Feb. 27 .- A special to The Tribune from Havana, via Key West,

The advices from Santa Clara are that in the battle at Ceniza the loss of the Spanish, under General Weyler, amounted to 500 killed and wounded. In the battle at Calabazas and Cabaiguan, the lowing: Spanish losses are reported to have been equally as large, but the Spanish dead and wounded were sent to Sancti Spiritus, and definite figures cannot be obtained. In these two battles General Gomez commanded in person.

The fighting has been continuous or Weyler's march through Santa Clara, and the Cuban patriots have scored numerous victories. The battle of Ceniza resulted in a complete rout for the Spanish commanded by General Legura. He was met by the patriots under General Carrillo and Colonel Mirabal, and his two battalions were held in check and then forced back, the Cubans charging with their machetes.

One field piece mounted on an eminence did terrible execution.

General Legura reformed his forces, and, with two new battalions, again charged the Cuban forces, and was again repulsed, with heavy losses. Canea, Feb. 27.-Nearly all of the foreign warships that were lying in the harbor here have gone to Suda bay, where there is better anchorage. It is likely, however, that their presence here will again be required, as the situation has become more critical than ever be

The interposition of the powers led the Moslems to believe that Europe is back of them in their combat with the Christians. As a result, there were yesterday afternoon 8000 Moslem fighting men, beside the Turkish soldiers, all heavily armed, parading the streets and de manding the blood of the Christians.

The combined forces landed by the several powers number only 800, and it is believed that without the aid of the warships they would prove of no avail in preserving order. The popular passion has been added to by Ismail Pasha, the acting governor. who has circulated false stories to the effect that the Greek troops are mutilating Moslem children.

The governor is carrying matters with a high hand, and it is likely that the powers will have to intervene to check his ardor in behalf of the Turks. Accompanied by an armed body of Turks, he left Candia yesterday and occupied strategic positions in the vicinity of the city, from which he attacked the Christians, causing serious losses to them.

The commanders of the warships remaining in the harbor vainly protested to the governor against his breaking the armistice. The admirals command ing the foreign fleets have been notified of Ismail's action, and there is much speculation as to the course they will of the meeting, said "It was due to Great Britain that Garibaldi in 1860 was not hindered in landing in Sicily. Today the case is identical. If the powers intervene it ought to be for the liberation of oppressed nations and never to maintain a state of barbarism living on incendiarism and assassination."

Natural Leads and the Meaning of the Term "Convention." XI.

I have referred to the lead of a small card as a call for trumps through an honor turned as "a convention." It is the only "convention" of a more or less arbitrary nature that we employ in the new game of whist. A few writers have appeared to find a great deal of the purely conventional in "Whist Openings," and their discovtion) to eliminate from the game everything of a purely arbitrary nature. That is what I understand by a "convention" - | 201, and we won by sixty-eight pins. a signal, or play, which is arbitrary or empirical, and not a natural outgrowth of the principles of the game. Such is the generally accepted meaning of the term "whist convention."

Let me illustrate. When a player, holding the king, queen and small cards of a suit, leads the king, and it is won by the adversary with the ace, or if partner, holding the ace himself, clows the king to win, partner understands that the leader holds the queen. Why? Because a player understanding the simplest rudiments of the game would not jeopardize the king by leading it from the top of a suit of which the other cards are all small. If he has not the ace, his only excuse for leading A Company, Henry W. Sprague, signal the king is to force the ace out of the way so as to make his next best card, the queen good for a trick. The play is a natural and logical one, requiring no predetermined rule nor understanding between partners. Because it is natural and logical, and not arbitrary nor empirical, the mean ing of the play-the inference to be drawn properly be called a convention.

On the other hand, suppose the player has the K, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5 of a suit and wishes to open it. Which of the six cards would he naturally choose to lead? Would not the intelligent card player, unacquainted with conventional whist, pick out the Monday. lowest card of the suit? Experience has shown that he would-that the natural lead from the suit is the 5. Conventional whist, however, teaches us to lead, not the 5, but the 7, from the given combination —that is, the "fourth best" card, counting from the top. This rule is purely arbitrary. In order that the meaning of the play may be distinct to the other players, they must all know the rule. A player who had never heard of the "fourth best" convention, no might be, would never be able to fathom the leader's intention in opening with the 7 rather than the 5. The play, in order to be intelligible, requires a prior understanding and agreement among the players. It is a convention, pure and simple. Now, when I recommend that a long plain suit be opened with a small card only in the presence of accompanying strength in trumps and re-entry. I recommend principle of our game that unless the hand does contain, besides the long suit, considerable trump and re-entry strength it is better to let the long suit alone and open a short one. The principle may be unsound. A few of the dyed in the wool long suiters believe that it is. Most of the progressive whist players of the present day acknowledge, in full or in part, its soundness. But whether the principle is well founded or not, provided we accept it as a principle conventional, nor, as one popular writer delights to put it, "wooden. from partner the suit may be established and brought in. Now, suppose a player does open his hand with a small card from a plain suit. What should the other players infer? Is it not that he must possess, besides his long plain suit, considerable trump and re-entry strength?

I fail to see anything arbitrary or conventional either in the inference or in the play itself. And when Mogul, the faplay for a text upon which to preach a sermon against conventionalism, as he recently did in the London Field, I can explain his attitude only by supposing that he is not acquainted with the fundamental principles of our whist theory.

But to return to the proposition with which we started. I desire to acknowledge that the lead of a small card as a call for trumps from partner is, indeed, a convention, though not altogether empirical. It is what may be denominated a logical convention, which is founded upon principle, but developed a step beyond that point, Let us analyze the idea. An honor-say, the queen-is turned. I lead a small lay card. By so doing I tell partner, without any convention whatever, that I hold considerable trump strength. I encourage him to lead trumps. Should I do so unless I held a trump that would beat the turned honor? Probably not. Now comes the step-the step beyond principle. In elaborating our system of play we tell the player that the card which he leads in this situation absolutely must have the meaning that it probably should have. This is the only arbitrary feature of the process. The probability we agree to convert into a certainty, and upon the certainty we establish the rule.

I wonder if Mogul has received a copy of the latest edition of Work's "Whist of Today," in which the author recommends the queen, 9 and 8 as "calling cards" for no other reason than that they can be most easily afforded for the purpose, being less conventions). There is empiricism for you! In comparison with it my small card "call" is as elementary and unpretending

After some discussion between Mr. Scollard, Mr. Willis, Mr. Abercrombie, Dr. Dearing and Mr. Kelley it was thought best to appoint a committee at the town meeting whose duty it shall be to look into the merits of the matter and report.
